WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2,488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups. The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wear the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

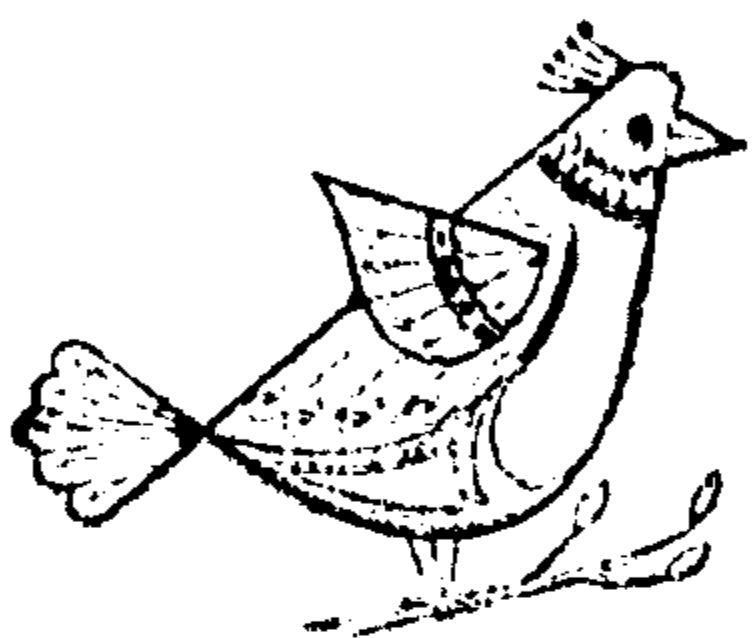

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Lattof said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

Hotrodders chase tots indoors

by NANCY GOTLER

A handful of teen-age hot-rodders have forced some residents of W. Berkeley Drive in Arlington Heights to keep their children indoors and to fear retaliation if they press charges.

"I hate to say it, but one of our children isn't going to be with us by the end of the summer," one mother of seven predicted.

"I don't know who's going to get it and I hope I don't have to find out," she said. "I don't want to be the one to have to pick up a dead child from the street, carry it to its mother and say, 'Here, bury it.' But it's going to happen."

THE WOMAN and a half dozen of her neighbors in a two-block area along West Berkeley Drive between Mitchell and Ridge avenues refused to allow their names to be used because they fear reprisals from the teenagers.

They say the racing, which includes motorcycles, cars and minibikes, starts by 3 p.m. almost every day and sometimes lasts until midnight.

"A neighbor and I recently pulled two 3-year-olds out of the path of speeding motorcycles," the woman said. "Some of the boys involved live in this neighborhood and I've talked to them and to their parents, but it doesn't do any good."

Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights police captain, said residents who can positively identify a reckless driver can press charges.

Although many residents said they have called police numerous times to complain, Buckholz said he was not aware of a severe problem in the area.

HOWEVER, after being contacted by The Herald about the situation, Buckholz assigned an officer to monitor the area with a radar speed detection device and said the neighborhood will be watched in the future.

Another mother of two preschool children said she no longer allows them to play in front of the house in the late afternoons or evenings.

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

• Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

• Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

• Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

• Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

• Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

Dundee upgrade revived, changed

Plans for improving sections of Dundee Road between Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 59 have been revived with major changes by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation. New plans call for widening a five-eighths mile stretch of Dundee between Hicks and Rand roads from two to four lanes at an estimated cost of $400,000. Plans also call for widening and resurfacing a 3.2-mile stretch of Dundee between Ill. Rte. 59 and Ela Road, plus intersection improvements at Dundee and Barrington roads at an estimated cost of $1 million. The transportation department is seeking 70 per cent federal funding for the project. The remaining 30 per cent would be paid by the state.

Palatine man's trial delayed

The trial of Mark Breuer, 22-year-old Palatine man charged with the attempted murder of two Palatine policemen, has been delayed in Cook County Circuit Court until May 18. Breuer will appear in Judge Frank Wilson's courtroom at the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago. Breuer originally had been scheduled to stand trial Monday. He is charged with firing a shotgun and narrowly missing two policemen who knocked on his apartment door at 915 Countryside Dr., Oct. 20, 1976. He is being held in lieu of $500,000 bond in Cook County Jail, Chicago.

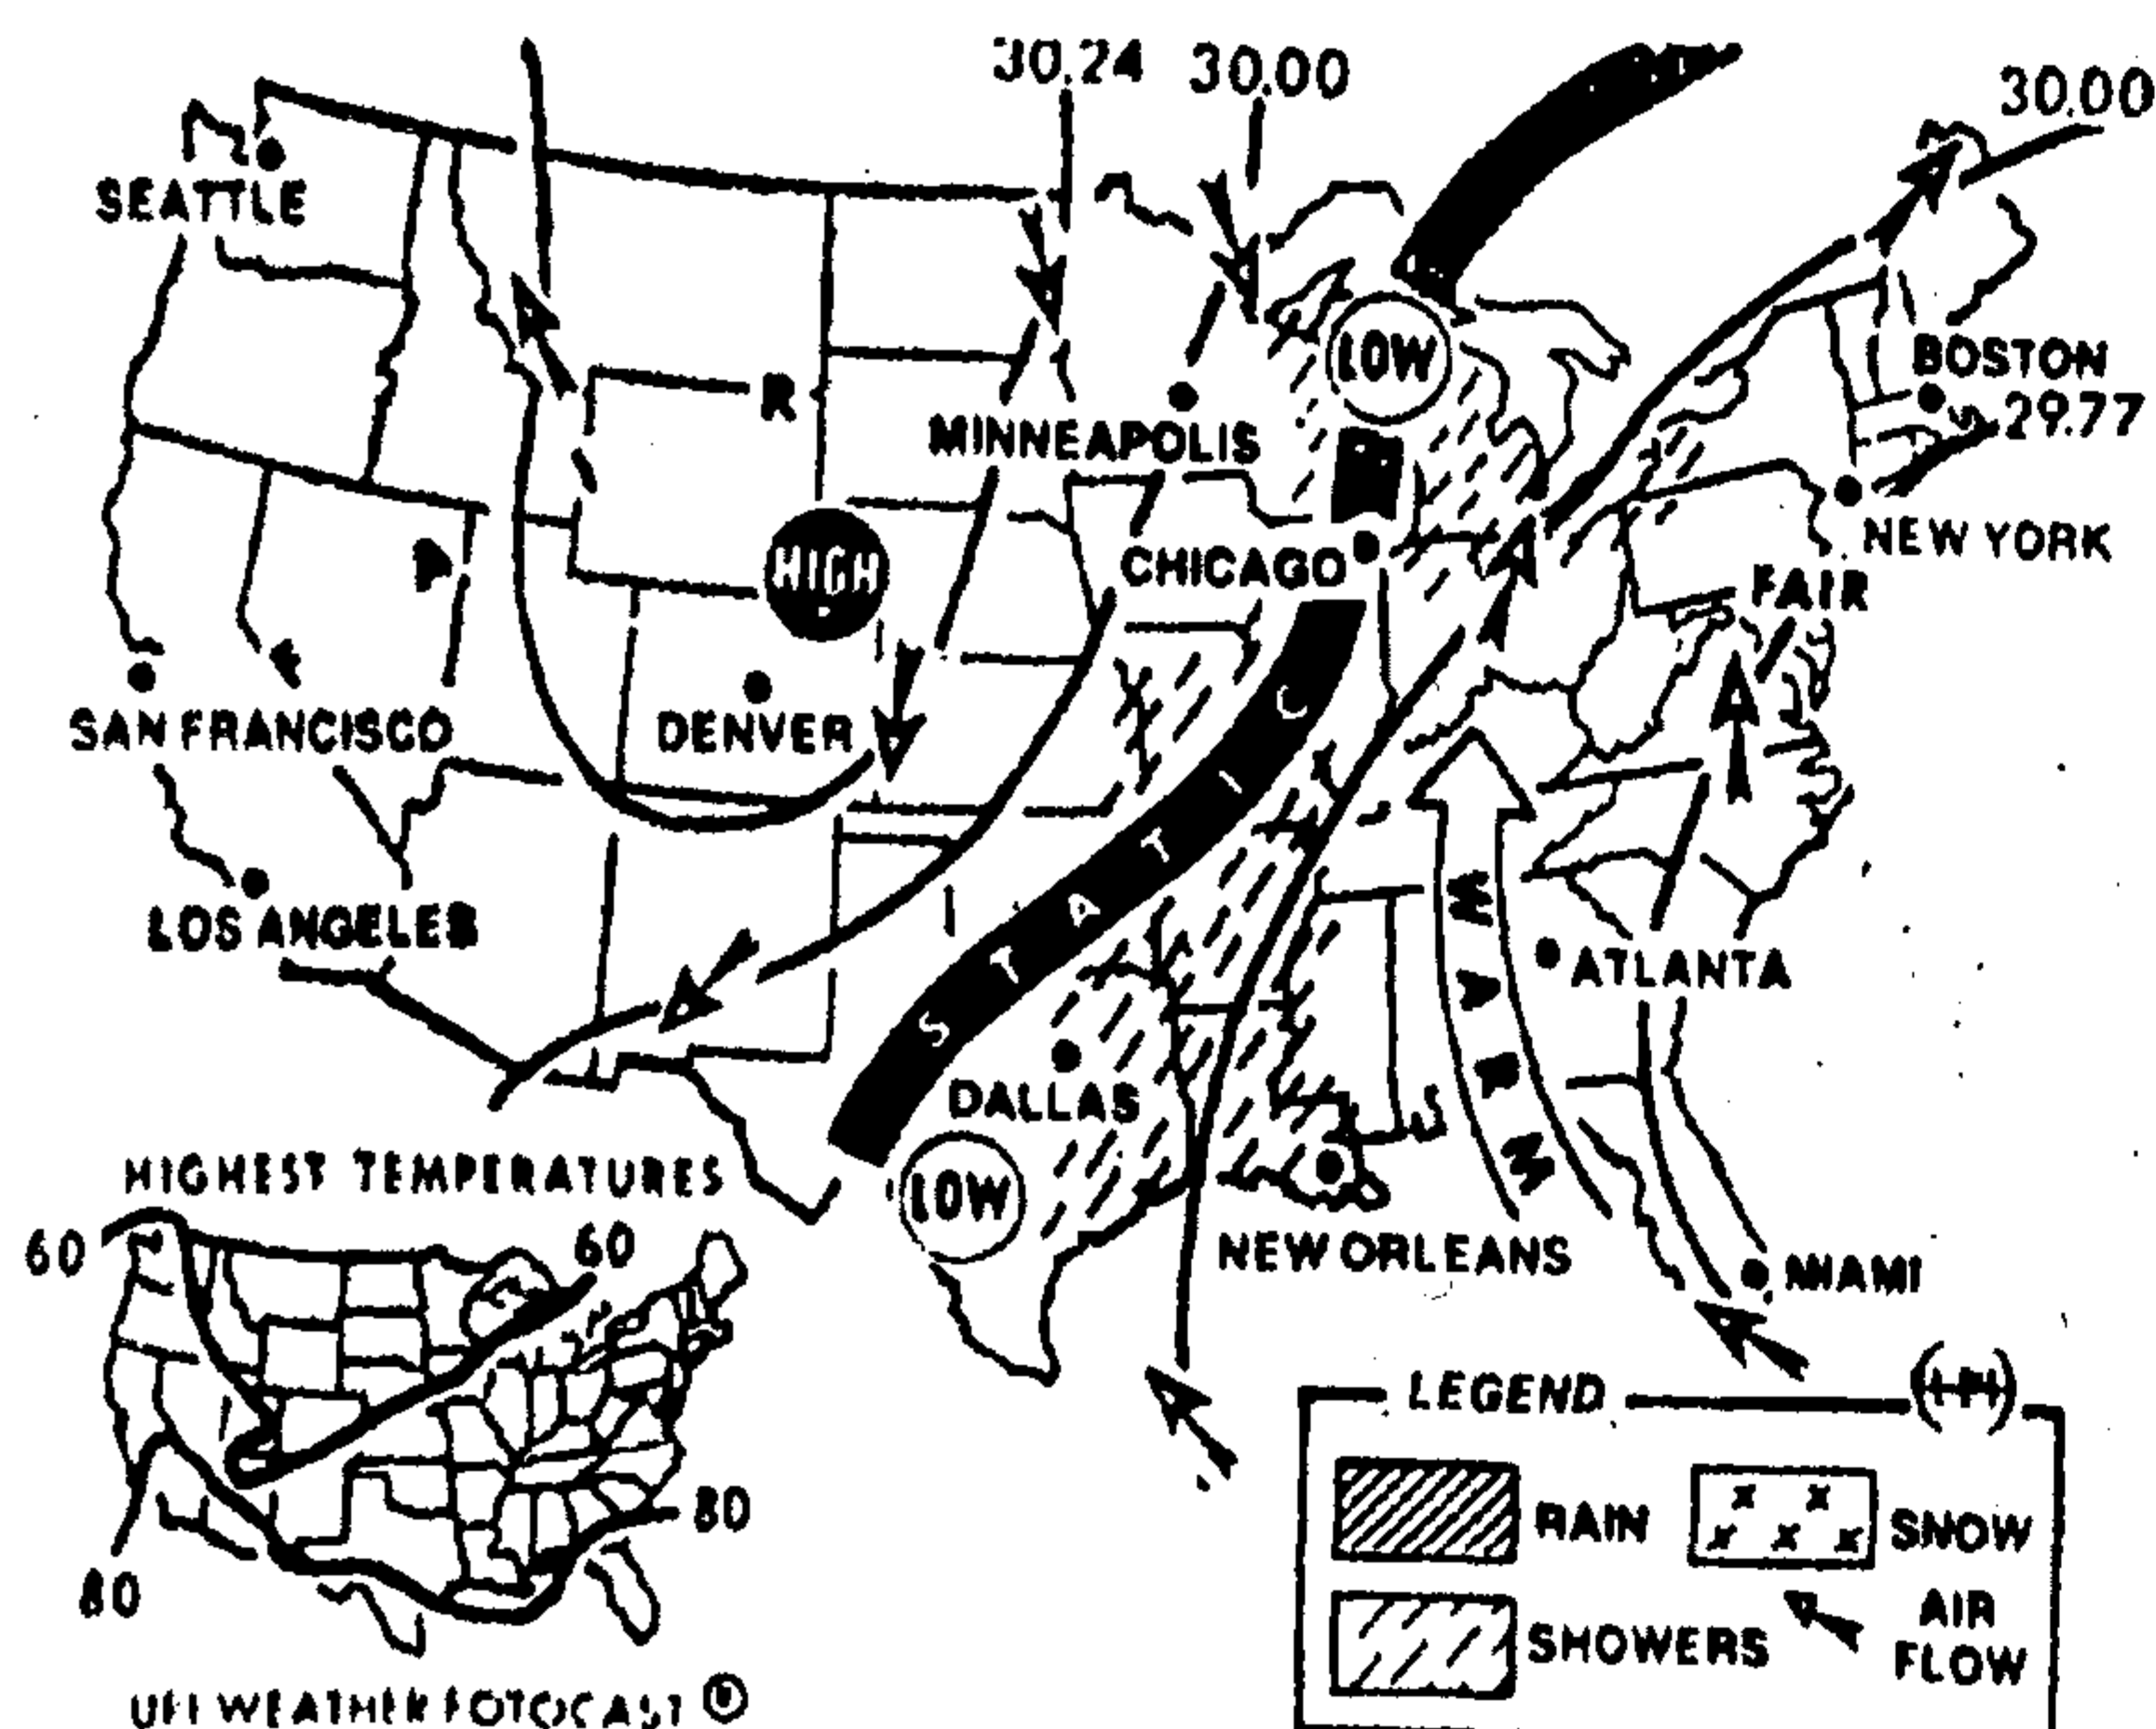

Man hurt when building falls

A Chicago man received minor injuries Wednesday afternoon when a roof collapsed at a building under construction at 1030 E. Central Rd., Arlington Heights. Jeff J. Riegler, 27, of 5817 W. Grace St., was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, when the roof of a house he was building fell on top of him. Several other workers escaped without injury. The cause of the collapse has not been determined, although police suspect that a crane being used to hoist materials might have been responsible.

HERBERT VOLBERDING

Herbie the cop takes over a citywide beat

by SCOTT FOSDICK

For 23 years Des Plaines have called him "Herbie the friendly cop." But the morning after Tuesday's landslide victory over six opponents, Herbert H. Volberding was ready to take on a new moniker.

"Mayor-elect's office," he answered the phone at campaign headquarters, adding after a pause, "This is the mayor-elect!"

How did he do it? How could anyone fashion a 48 per cent victory over six other candidates, including an incumbent mayor who had received endorsements from most current and former city officials and from local newspapers?

"I DIDN'T DO IT. My volunteers did it. The only thing I provided was the product. They sold it," Volberding said.

Where did he get so many loyal supporters?

"They were pounding at my door. They were true believers in city government that would represent the will of the people," he said.

Although Volberding is leaving behind his career as a Des Plaines police detective, it is the friends he made as the "friendly cop" who worked hardest on his campaign.

"I have laid the groundwork, unknowingly, for the past several decades," he said.

THE NEW MAYOR, eight aldermen, the city clerk and the treasurer will all be sworn-in May 2 at the city council meeting. By that time, Volberding said he will have resigned from the police department and discontinued his real estate business in Des Plaines.

Volberding won Tuesday with 7,374 votes out of 15,158 votes cast. He was trailed by Acting Mayor Charles J. Bolek, who received 5,612 votes, or 36 per cent.

Volberding won all wards but the 7th and 8th. He beat Bolek by one vote, 174 to 173, in Bolek's home fifth precinct in the third ward. He swept his own home precinct — ward two, precinct five — with 347 votes to Bolek's 85.

"I expected to get 51 per cent," Volberding said Tuesday, but was obviously pleased with his 48 per cent victory.

"This has something to say for the lack of endorsements from former officials and newspapers. My mandate came from the people," he said.

Volberding anticipated having no trouble working with the city's aldermen, the majority of which endorsed Bolek.

"I'M HOLDING absolutely no hard feelings because of their errors in judgment," he said.

Volberding said he is not planning sudden changes in city government.

"Any changes made will be given thorough consideration and thought. There will be no snap decisions, made. They will be made with the entire community in mind," he said.

Now that Herbie-the-cop is mayor-elect, his old boss, Police Chief Arthur Hintz, will work for him. Volberding said he will have no trouble reversal in roles.

"Art and I have been friends for decades, and we will continue to be friends. He will continue to be chief of police as long as he desires," Volberding said.

Crane, Mikva reactions differ on energy plan

The area's two U.S. congressmen predictably lined up on opposing sides Wednesday in the post-mortem on President Carter's complex energy message, both agreeing though that legislative approval will be hard to get.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, took issue with nearly every phase of the energy plan, while U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, indicated the plan may be enough to solve the problem. Both sit on the tax writing U.S. House Ways and Means Committee, which will handle much of the energy proposal.

"Why trust the government to run the entire energy industry when it is the government that created the problem," Crane said after Carter's address to the joint session of Congress.

CRANE INDICATED step one in solving the energy problem is full government deregulation of natural gas and oil. He applauded the President's call for a 1 billion gallon oil reserve and the need for conservation of all types of natural resources.

Mikva rated Carter's proposal as "tough measures" which if passed through Congress in not heavily watered down versions could meet the nation's energy needs.

Additional Congressional reaction broke down generally along party lines, but some Democrats raised concerns about elements of the proposal.

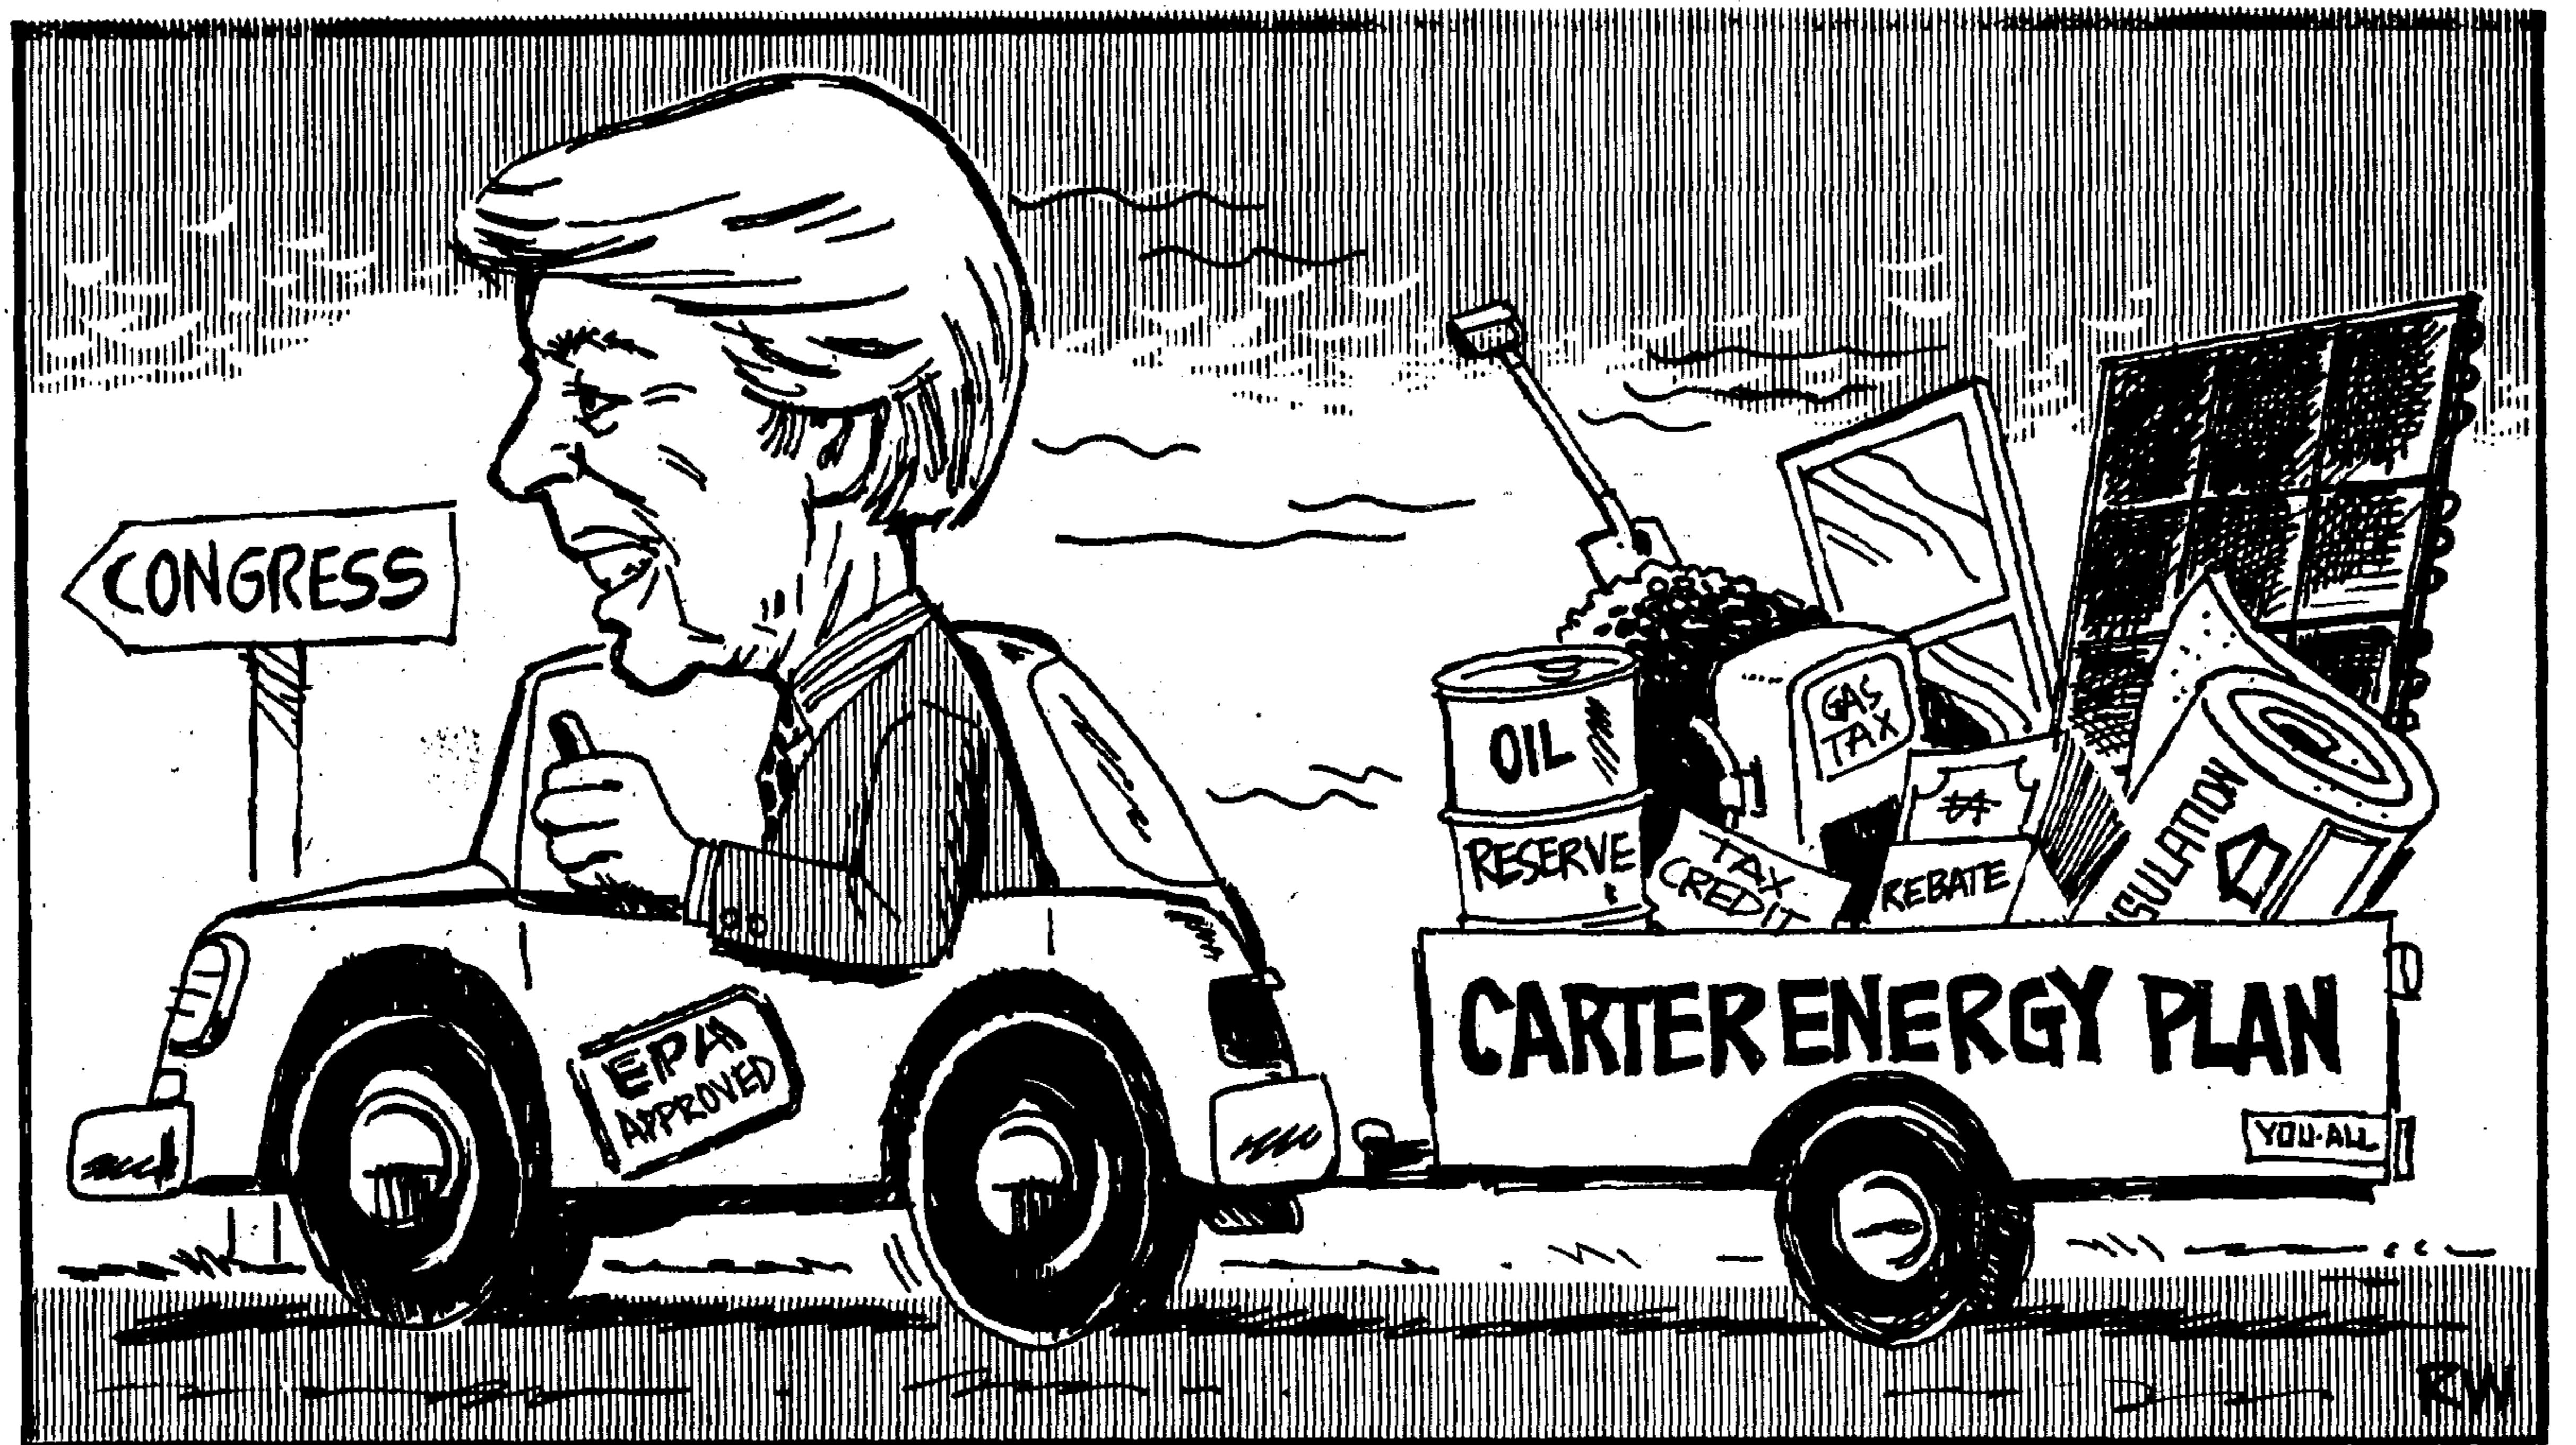

U.S. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said "parts of the plan will no doubt be revised in the interest of workability and equity."

U.S. REP. JOHN MURPHY, D-NY., said proposals such as the gasoline tax, tax credits and rebates "deserve a thorough hearing before the Congress."

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who represents a coal rich southern Illinois district, said "I am willing to vote a heavy tax on big gas guzzling cars, but I am not willing to vote a tax on people who face a real struggle to pay their present gasoline bills."

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., said "asking America, the richest nation on earth, now to start acting like a poor nation is absolutely contrary to the character of our people."

Rep. David Treen, R-La., said the proposal "will receive a nonpartisan evaluation by those of us on the Republican side of the aisle," and he said he hopes "parochial interests will be submerged by national interests."

velop new sources of fuel, such as deregulation of petroleum prices.

"The problem with (Carter's plan) is that it will not encourage development of a new supply," Johnston said.

Other energy plans detailed drew favorable reaction. Lana Beaty, co-owner of Beaty's Insulation, Elk Grove Village, Wednesday said she agrees with Carter's proposal to offer tax rebates for homeowners who insulate.

"Proper insulation does save energy, and help cut down the heating bill," she said. "And I think this proposal will encourage more people to insulate their homes properly."

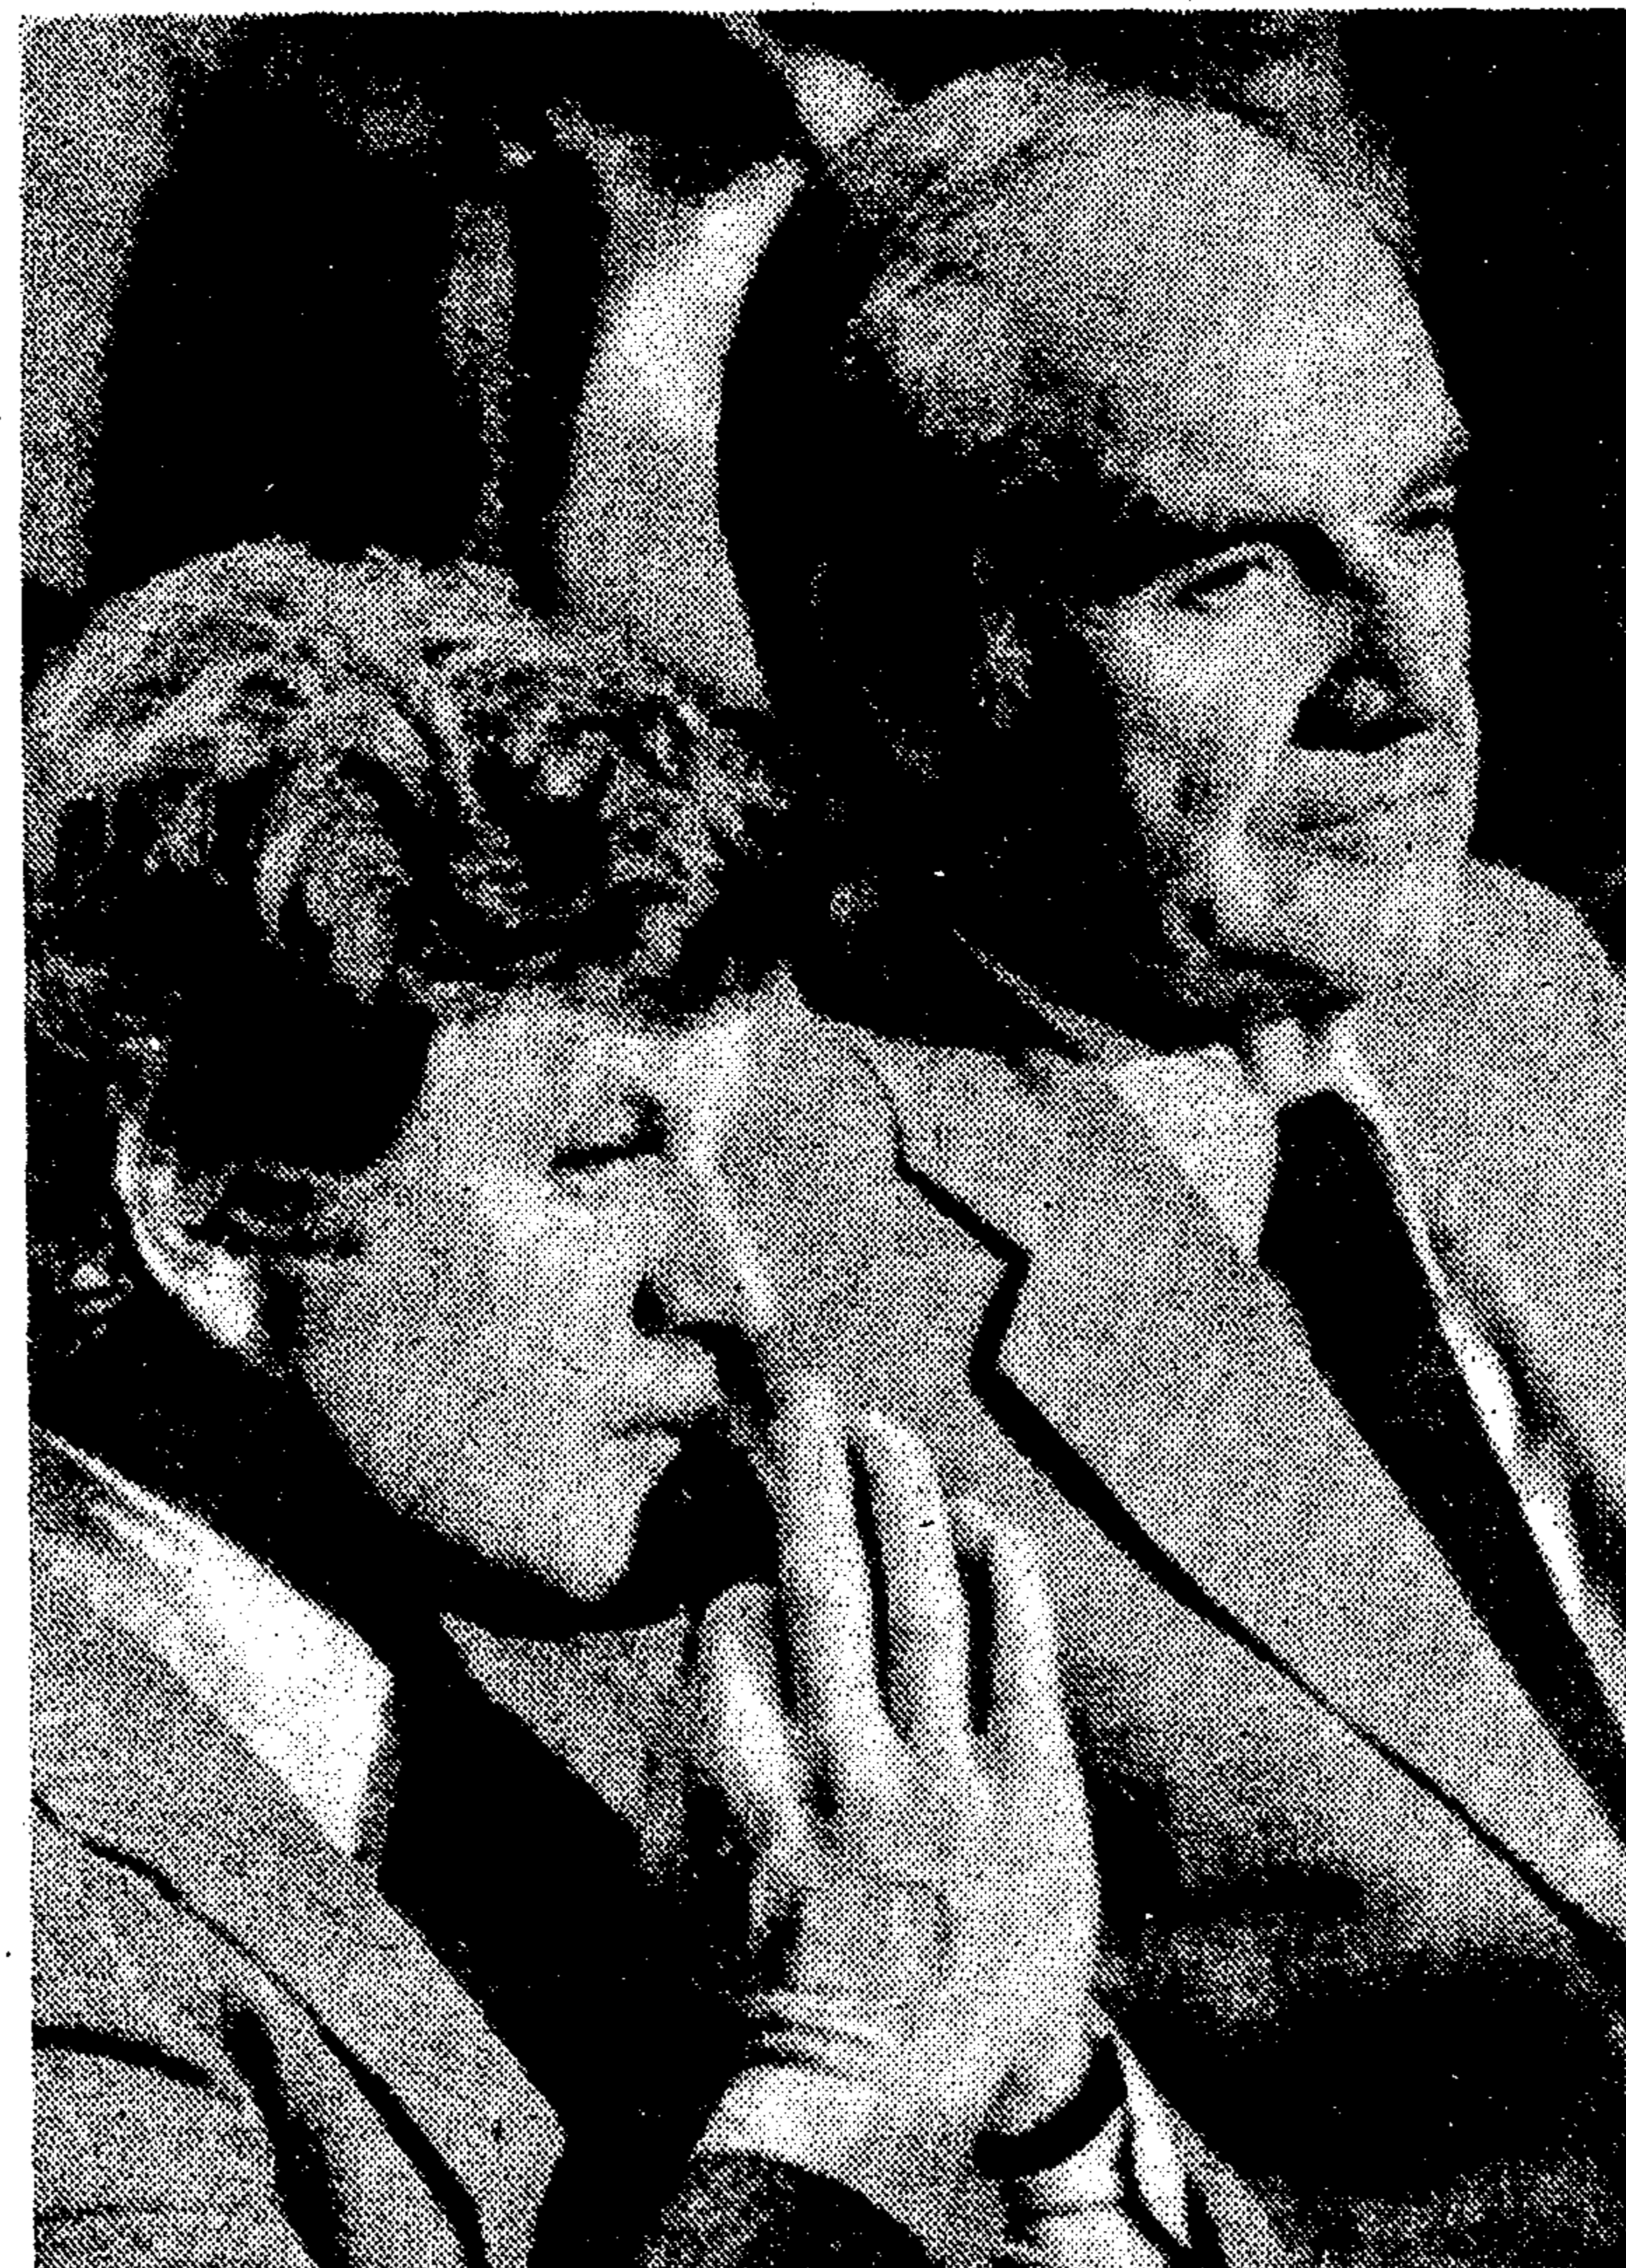

Mrs. Beaty said she has received about 10 calls since Monday from homeowners who are interested in home insulation as a result of Carter's recent energy television talk.

ALTHOUGH Northern Illinois Gas Co. spokesman Bob Kearby said the utility favors conservation proposals along reasonable lines, he said conservation is not the total picture. Total price deregulation is the best way to encourage development of fuel supply, Kearby said.

The President's call for increased research of coal development and the installation of pollution controls on coal-burning plants are goals already adopted by industry, said an Inland Steel Co. spokesman in Chicago.

Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman Bill Harrah said Carter's proposal to cancel "bargain rates" for large energy customers doesn't make sense because the present price system is based on cost of service.

gress at the Capitol Wednesday night. Carter's 35-minute speech was received diffidently, interrupted only eight times by thin applause. The first burst came on page five of his 8-page address. By the end, only Democrats were clapping.

Champ takes on ABC in fight for big stakes

• Muhammad Ali has a new fight on his hands, but this time, in court. The champ wants ABC to pay the $181,000 in legal fees it cost to defend himself successfully last year against a $20 million slander suit brought by flight referee Tony Perez. ABC filed a lawsuit this week opposing Ali's contention he is entitled to the payment as a "performer covered by the network code."

• The judge in a guardianship hearing for Groucho Marx moved his court to the comedian's home Wednesday night to determine whether Marx felt his old age was being smoothed or endangered by his female companion, Erin Fleming. Miss Fleming and Marx' son, Arthur, are battling to be named conservators and guardians for the comedian. Judge Edward Rafferty went to Marx' home in Santa Monica to hear first hand from the 86-year-old Marx, his opinion of how he was being treated.

• A May 11 trial date has been set for movie director Roman Polanski who has pleaded innocent to charges of rape, drug and sex perversion involving a 13-year-old girl. Polanski, 43, and his attorney, Douglas Dalton, appeared in a Santa Monica, Calif., superior court Wednesday. (Continued from Page 1) through the new energy taxes would be returned to consumers through income tax rebates.

Carter called for steps starting this fall to make energy waste cost more and to reward those who save energy.

"We prefer to reach these goals through voluntary cooperation, with a minimum of coercion," he said.

"But I must say to you that voluntary compliance will not be enough — the problem is too large, and time is too short. In a few cases, penalties and restrictions to reduce waste are essential."

AS ONE OF THOSE penalties, Carter asked for a new excise tax to add between $52 and $449 to the sticker price of 1978 model cars — due in the showrooms this fall — if their fuel consumption is too high.

The gas-guzzler tax would climb each year to a maximum $2,488 for cars that get less than 13 miles per gallon in 1985.

Carter also called, however, for a rebate to lower the price of cars that get good gas mileage. Rebates would range from $47 to $473 for models that come out this fall, and would climb to a maximum $493 in 1983.

In the first year, the tax penalties would apply to cars getting 18 miles per gallon or less, while those getting 19 mpg or better would merit rebates. Each year the dividing line would increase by one mile per gallon.

CARTER DESCRIBED his gasoline tax proposal, based on national fuel consumption trends and going as high as 50 cents a gallon by 1988, as a "stand-by" measure.

The President's plan also included a standby gasoline rationing system for use if there is another oil embargo or if a serious world oil supply shortage should occur before the mid-1980s.

In addition, Carter would tax domestic oil in three stages so as to force the price up to the world price of more than $13 per barrel — a move that would add an additional 7 cents a gallon to all fuel prices including gasoline and heating oil. This tax would be returned to consumers in rebates averaging $25 a year by 1979.

The President chose to raise oil prices to the "replacement level" through taxes, rather than through outright decontrol, so the money would go to the public rather than to the oil companies.

THE GASOLINE TAX — the most visible pocketbook penalty for consumers — was the most controversial element of the comprehensive package.

The President asked for authority to raise the federal tax on gasoline, now set at four cents a gallon, by a nickel in 1979 if motorists burn as much as 1 per cent more fuel next year than this year.

There would be another five-cent increase in 1980 if consumption again increased by as much as 1 per cent.

After that, the tax would get tougher. From 1981 through 1987 the tax would go up by five-cent increments in every year that consumption did not drop by 2 per cent. The maximum tax would be 50 cents a gallon.

Carter placed his prime emphasis on conservation and on switching away from oil and natural gas, the fuels that now supply 75 per cent of America's energy needs.

HE CALLED FOR income tax credits totaling as much as $410 to homeowners who install such conservation features as storm windows or insulation, saying it should take effect immediately and remain in effect through Dec. 31, 1984.

"If homeowners prefer," Carter said, "they may take advantage of a weatherization service which all regulated utility companies will be required to offer."

In addition, he called for tax credits starting at a maximum $2,002 and gradually decreasing through 1984 for anyone who buys solar heating equipment.

"WE MUST ALSO reform our utility rate structure," Carter said, calling for an end to "promotional" rates or discounts to high-volume users and the establishment of "peak load" pricing to make electricity cost less at night.

Said House Speaker Thomas O'Neill: "The tax bill, the dams, the economic package, they were all skirmishes. This is the battle."

Although the proposals got kindly reviews from a number of Carter partisans, industry, labor and consumer groups expressed displeasure with various points.

"Asking America, the richest nation on earth, now to start acting like a poor nation is absolutely contrary to the character of our people," Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., said.

Bilandic asks to debate Block

Acting Mayor Michael A. Bilandic said Wednesday the League of Women Voters will be asked if it wants to sponsor a debate between himself and Republican candidate Dennis H. Block. Less than 24 hours after winning the Democratic party's nomination for mayor in the June 7 special election, Bilandic said he had asked Deputy Mayor Kenneth Sain to talk to the League of Women Voters "to see if they're still interested" in sponsoring a debate between Block and Bilandic.

Bilandic told a news conference he did not debate his five primary opponents because it was too difficult to find a time when all six could participate in one debate. Bilandic called Block "a fine fellow," but then called himself the "better candidate" in the race. "I have a record of performance in office," Bilandic said. Bilandic also said President Carter telephoned him Tuesday night to congratulate him.

Marquette Park homes bombed

Homemade fragmentation type grenades thrown through front windows exploded in three homes in the Marquette Park area early Wednesday in what police believe were racial attacks. Chicago Police Supt. James Rochford ordered a full investigation into the bombings.

No one was injured by the bombs which exploded within 10 minutes of each other. Police said two of the homes were occupied by black families. The third home had been sold recently to a black family. Marquette Park is a predominantly white neighborhood which has been the scene of racial clashes between residents and demonstrators demanding open housing.

Krishnas eviction upheld

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Raymond K. Berg refused Wednesday to reconsider an earlier decision allowing the eviction of a Hare Krishna religious group from its Evanston headquarters. Berg had ruled the city could evict the group because they violated housing code standards. The group argued in court that their status as a religious sect allowed them to transcend the building requirements of the north suburb. Evanston officials could not be reached for comment on when the eviction would take place.

Truckers sue Parker Brothers

A one-time trucker and his wife, also a former truck driver, filed a $3 million damage suit Wednesday against Parker Brothers, accusing the giant game maker of stealing their idea for a Citizens' Band radio truckers game. Hubert Lappe, 32, Hickory Hills, and his wife, Carla, who "met at a truckstop and fell in love," developed the game together and invested their $22,000 life savings to manufacture and distribute it, Lappe said in the suit filed in U.S. District Court.

"The reception we got was just fantastic," he said, and 2,000 of the "Convoy 10-4 Truckers CB Radio Game" were produced between April and June of last year. But Lappe said Parker Brothers, a division of General Mills Fun Group, Inc., exerted pressure on retailers not to buy the Lappe's game because the large company was developing its own version. The suit charges Parker Brothers with trying to establish a monopoly, and contends the firm controls at least 50 per cent of the nation's game business.

Sell planes, save on air travel: unit

The state could save $150,000 on the cost of air travel by selling most of its executive planes, a special study commission recommended Wednesday. The commission, which included Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester, also rejected a proposal by Gov. James R. Thompson, who created the panel, to purchase a new $1 million turboprop plane for state officials. The task force recommended selling four of the five passenger planes and purchasing one new plane and leasing three other aircraft.

"We might have seriously looked at the possibility of the million-dollar plane if it weren't for the governor's austerity program," said chairman James Johnson of Northbrook. The task force also recommended changes in the use of the planes including honoring travel requests on a per seat basis rather than assigning an entire plane to a single official or agency, preventing the families of state officials from using the planes and ending the scheduling of separate flights for officials who are going to the same destination, but feuding with each other. Johnson estimated the state could get $337,000 in trade-ins for the four older passenger planes in the state's air force.

Real estate assessments up 6.26% in Cook County

Real estate assessments in Cook County rose 6.26 per cent in 1976 and that may mean lower local tax rates, according to Cook County Assessor Thomas M. Tully.

Real estate assessments in Chicago and suburban Cook County increased $851 million to a new 1976 total of $14.45 billion, Tully said.

"An increased tax base, which is reflected in the real estate assessment totals we are releasing today, can mean lower tax rates for most property owners, and especially homeowners, if local taxing bodies exhibit fiscal restraint at budgeting time," Tully said.

THE ASSESSMENT totals are the basis against which local municipalities and school districts apply tax levies. The county clerk will compute tax rates and the county treasurer will issue tax bills payable later this year.

The assessments are still subject to revision by the board of assessment appeals.

The suburban assessment total increased 8.99 per cent from $7.1 billion in 1975, to $7.715 billion in 1976.

Chicago's assessed valuation increased 3.3 per cent from $6.5 billion in 1975 to $6.7 billion in 1976, Tully said.

INCREASES were biggest in the townships and Chicago neighborhoods that were reassessed in 1976, including the Northwest suburban areas of Barrington, Palatine and Wheeling townships.

"The inflation in the value of single family homes in the last few years has caused some increases in the assessments of these properties," Tully said. "But corresponding assessment increases in the assessed valuation of vacant land, industrial and commercial properties can offset the impact for homeowners."

The assessment percentage on single family homes and small apartment buildings was reduced last year from 22 to 17 per cent of market value. But homeowners still reported assessment increases of several thousand dollars in many instances.

The following assessment figures for Northwest suburban townships:

- Barrington Township increased 48 per cent from $34 million in 1975 to $50.3 million in 1976.

- Elk Grove Township increased 6 per cent from $306.6 million in 1975 to $420.8 million in 1976.

- Maine Township increased 3.2 per cent from $483 million in 1975 to $498.3 million in 1976.

- Palatine Township increased 30.8 per cent from $215.7 million in 1975 to $282.2 million in 1976.

- Schaumburg Township increased 9.3 per cent from $279.7 million in 1975, to $305.6 million in 1976.

- Wheeling Township increased 28 per cent from $367.1 million in 1975, to $470.2 million in 1976.

Foy's medical license suspended by state unit

The medical license of an Arlington Heights doctor charged with illegally dispensing drugs was suspended Wednesday by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

The suspension of Dr. Hayward W. Foy's license was based on new evidence that he has dispensed large amounts of weight-reducing drugs without conducting proper medical examinations, a department spokesman said.

Foy, 77, has practiced in Arlington Heights for 14 years. His offices are at 203 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

HIS ATTORNEY'S pleas for a restraining order to delay the suspension will be heard by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Thomas O'Brien at 10 a.m. today.

The state agency filed similar charges against Foy in February and scheduled a hearing to consider revoking his license. That hearing has been postponed twice and now is scheduled for May 4.

Foy also was charged in three indictments in May 1976 by a Cook County grand jury for allegedly dispensing drugs for "nontherapeutic purposes" to three Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents. His trial on those charges is to begin May 3.

The suspension of Foy's license, ordered by Joan Anderson, acting director of the Dept. of Registration and Education, was made because of new evidence given to the department after charges against Foy were publicized in February.

TWO WOMEN have admitted Foy gave them phendimetrazine, a weight-reducing drug often used as "uppers," for more than a year, the department spokesman said.

The state agency also has subpoenaed invoices of Foy's orders with a pharmaceutical company that show he ordered more than 500,000 tablets, mostly phendimetrazine, during the last six months of 1976.

"The fact that he ordered this amount of pills all leads the chief regulatory officer of the department to believe that if the charges against Foy are proven, he constitutes an immediate danger to the public," the department's spokesman said.

Police station cost at $2.6 million

Slightly revised plans for a new Arlington Heights police station put the price of the proposed building between $2.6 and $3 million.

The final cost of the 39,000-square-foot building will depend on decisions to include a 10-car garage in the rear of the building and an enclosed bridge connecting the police station to the municipal building.

The proposed site for the building, which would house the Arlington Heights Police Dept. and headquarters for the fire department, is immediately east of the municipal building at Arlington Heights Road and Sigwalt Street.

THE PRELIMINARY plans for the building will be reviewed May 2 by the village board, with the garage and connecting bridge listed as options.

The village board has not yet gone on record in favor of building the new police station. Architects were hired in October to design the building so the village could apply for a full-funding grant for the project through the U.S. Public Works Employment Act. However, its application was rejected.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has recommended the new building be funded with federal revenue-sharing funds but the village will receive only $2.4 million through that program before it ends in October 1980.

Hanson suggested to the village board's police station screening committee Wednesday night that the village negotiate with local banks for loans if more money is needed to pay for the building.

The only changes made to the plans for the building since last week when committee members criticized the building as "too expensive and showy" were the reduction of 300 square feet on the second floor and lower cost estimates for new equipment. A windowed area extending through the center of the building, designed to give an atrium effect, and a glass entranceway were criticized last week but remain in the revised plans.

are," she said. "When the police come the kids get away before they can be caught."

A third neighbor also feared a child could be hurt or killed.

"The way the kids drive those cars I could see a kid running into the street and getting run over. As the weather gets better the problem will probably get worse."

SHE SAID SHE has clocked speeders going as fast as 60 miles per hour in the 25 mph zone.

Parents are especially concerned because they live one block from Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School, 2800 N. Highland Ave. Many students walk home just as the hot-rodding begins.

Still another woman, whose youngest child is 10, said, "It's dangerous because there are a lot of small children in the neighborhood. If something isn't done about it there's a good chance one of them will be hurt."

Brothers held after cycle chase

Two Buffalo Grove brothers were arrested by Arlington Heights police Wednesday night after two separate high speed chases involving motorcycles.

Daniel Schrader, 18, and James A. Schrader, 18, both of 467 Forest Lake Dr., were taken into custody after their two motorcycles were clocked by radar at going 54 miles an hour in the 25-mile-an-hour zone on Kennicott Avenue near Ladd Street, police said. Speeding autos recently have been reported in that area.

Daniel Schrader was charged with driving without a valid license, speeding and eluding police. His brother was charged with speeding, eluding police, reckless driving and damage to village property.

Capt. Paul Bucholz of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said Patrolman Larry St. Pierre pursued the motorcycles after the radar clocked them speeding, but only James Schrader pulled over. His brother with an unidentified girl companion kept on going down Kennicott Avenue.

When St. Pierre chased the younger Schrader, the elder brother left the scene traveling at a high rate of speed with police in pursuit until he wrecked his motorcycle in Frontier Park, Bucholz said. The 16-year-old Schrader eluded police, but only after he ditched his vehicle and fled on foot with his girl companion.

The younger brother turned himself in to police later Wednesday night, Bucholz said.

The brothers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Schrader, had left for Jamaica only six hours before the speeding incident.

ommended the new building be funded with federal revenue-sharing funds but the village will receive only $2.4 million through that program before it ends in October 1980.

Hanson suggested to the village board's police station screening committee Wednesday night that the village negotiate with local banks for loans if more money is needed to pay for the building.

THIS JACKSONVILLE, Fla. fishing pier is not for sleeping. Occupants of this car probably thought it would be a good idea to sleep in the car . . . until they woke up the next morning and found the auto stuck in sand and waves splashing against the side. A tow truck pulled the car to dry land, and all's well that ends well.

126 S. Africa kids
kidnaped by rebels

Leftist guerrillas in South West Africa kidnaped 126 children and at least four white priests at a Roman Catholic mission school Wednesday and forced most of them across the border into Angola, officials said. South African troops chased the raiding party from the school at Onamulenga, six miles from the border, and exchanged fire with the guerrillas 200 yards from the Marxist nation's frontier, a government spokesman said in Windhoek, South West Africa's capital.

The soldiers rescued a number of the whites, an official said in this regional capital, but most of the children "were herded to the border" and marched into Angola. Ten of the 126 children escaped their captors later and made their way back to the mission. There were no details of casualties. The raid was one of the boldest ever carried out by the South West African Peoples Organization (SWAPO), the guerrilla group which is supported by Angola and last month won further Communist support from visiting Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny.

Strong quake rocks Guadalcanal

Two strong earthquakes and a series of aftershocks hit Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands area of the South Pacific, the U.S. Geological Survey reported Wednesday night. Its initial reports tentatively placed the center of the tremors on the western end of Guadalcanal — the volcanic island that was a famed battleground between Japanese and U.S. forces in World War II. The Survey's National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., reported the first earthquake measured 6.7 on the Richter scale and occurred at 5:13 p.m. CST Wednesday, or 9:13 a.m. Thursday in the Solomons. The initial quake was followed by a smaller aftershock, the Survey said, and then came a second earthquake measuring 7.4 on the Richter scale. There was no immediate word on whether injuries or damage had occurred.

Israelis honor war dead

Israelis in Tel Aviv observed two minutes of silence in memory of the nation's war dead Wednesday then turned at sundown to festivities honoring the nation's 29th birthday. A ceremonial lighting of 12 bonfires atop Mt. Herzl in Jerusalem at nightfall set off the nationwide celebrations, including parties, picnics and a cross-country 50-minute flypast by squadrons of Israel's homemade Kfir jet fighters scheduled for Thursday. The government designated the reunification of Jerusalem, after the capture of East Jerusalem from Jordan 10 years ago, as the theme of the celebrations. As a result, the 12 citizens chosen to light the bonfires included representatives of army units that fought in battles for Jerusalem in the 1948 and the 1967 Middle East wars.

Zaire prisoners cite Cuba aid

Two prisoners wounded and captured by Zaire soldiers said Wednesday Cuban combat troops joined the forces who invaded Shaba province last month but had since withdrawn back into Angola. The prisoners — the only two invaders whose capture has been announced so far by Zaire troops in more than six weeks of fighting — were paraded before President Mobutu Sese Seko and an estimated 60,000 cheering school children and government employees at a rally in Kinshasa's soccer stadium. The two prisoners, both of whom were wounded and who were forced to stand at attention in 100-degree heat under a broiling sun while Mobutu denounced the Soviet Union and Cuba for their alleged part in the invasion, talked later to newsmen through interpreters.

U.S. lifts ban in Turkey help

The White House has lifted the ban on U.S. military assistance to Turkey in an attempt to break the negotiating deadlock on the Cyprus issue, administration and congressional sources said Wednesday. Sources said the Carter plan is designed to give the United States more leverage in the Cyprus negotiations by improving strained relations with Ankara. The U.S. retains the implied threat of cutting off future military aid if the Turks do not cooperate in the negotiations.

Vice President Walter Mondale met Wednesday with congressional leaders likely to oppose the plan, which was spelled out by President Carter on Tuesday. The U.S. objective is to push the Cyprus negotiations with direct participation by Secretary of State Vance, who is expected to travel to Ankara in early May for a meeting of the Central Treaty Organization.

House OKs Arab boycott bill

The House passed a bill Wednesday making it illegal for American citizens to comply with the Arab boycott against Israel. The vote was 364 to 43. The action came after Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said advertisements claiming the anti-boycott legislation would cost 500,000 Americans their jobs was "sheer nonsense. It's scare tactics. If I thought this bill would cause substantial unemployment in this country, I would not support the bill," Zablocki said.

Stamm elected new board chief in Dist. 59

Stamm, who was elected to a two-year term on the board April 9, was elected board president Monday by a 5-0 vote.

Voting for Stamm were board members Judith Zanca, Emil Bahnmaier, Barbara Somogyi, Sharon Chavoen and Stamm.

Board members Paul Kucharski and Harold Harvey abstained.

Kucharski was nominated for the board presidency before Stamm by Harvey, but he only got his and Harvey's votes.

STAMM, 1414 S. Redwood, Mount Prospect, served on the Dist. 59 board from 1965-67 and on the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education from 1969-73.

Mrs. Chavoen, who was elected to a one-year board term April 9, was elected board secretary.

The board authorized she be paid $150 for assuming the secretary's duties. Dist. 59 Board secretaries had been paid an annual $150 salary until two years ago when the secretary's salary was abolished.

Committee chairman appointments made were Harvey as chairman of the district's finance committee and Kucharski as chairman of the policy committee.

Harvey, Kucharski and Mrs. Chavoen volunteered to serve on the board's negotiating committee.

Mrs. Somogyi retained her position as the board's representative to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Assn.

Mrs. Zanca and Bahnmaier did not volunteer for committees, but they automatically will serve on the finance committee, which is a committee-of-the-whole.

Lace elected chief of Dist. 23 board

Melvin A. Lace has been reelected president of the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education for the ninth year in a row.

Lace, who was reelected to his fourth three-year term on the Dist. 23 Board April 9, was reelected board president this week. He has served as board president since April 1969.

A district resident for 18 years, Lace, his wife and their four children live at 3 Garden Ct., Prospect Heights.

Henry Vallely, school board attorney, was reelected board secretary.

Board members elected in the April 9 election were sworn in this week. These were Lace and incumbent Mary Ann Stitak for three-year terms and newcomer Jane Adelman for a one-year term.

Vandalism forum May 3

Mae Zimmanck, president of the Zero Vandalism Committee of Arlington Heights Inc., will be one of the featured speakers at a meeting of church leaders at 8 p.m. May 3 at the First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights, 1903 E. Euclid Ave.

The subject of the meeting will be: "Are you Ready for the Summer of '77." Mrs. Zimmanck will speak on "A Positive Approach To Vandalism." Appearing on the program with her will be representatives from Forest Hospital, Des Plaines; the Arlington Heights Police Dept.; and a minister.

Longet begins 30-day jail term in condemned cell

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Singer Claudine Longet, convicted of slaying her lover, champion skier Vladimir (Spider) Sabich, has entered a graffiti-scrubbed cell in a condemned jail building to begin a 30-day sentence, authorities said Wednesday.

Sheriff's Sgt. Rick Kralicek said the cell occupied by Miss Longet, former wife of singer Andy Williams, was the only one for women in the jail, and she will share it with any female prisoner arrested before her sentence expires.

Miss Longet's cell has two bunks and a toilet, and although there is graffiti on the cell walls, Miss Longet "had no complaints," Kralicek said.

THE 14-FOOT by 16-foot cell, with one barred window, is located on a hallway leading from a cellblock for male prisoners. The jail was condemned by the Colorado Health Dept. last week because of exposed pipes running along ceilings and faulty electrical wiring.

"She should be able to serve all her time here," said Kralicek. "Her time will probably lapse before the condemnation (is carried out)."

Miss Longet was convicted of criminally negligent homicide, a misdemeanor, Jan. 14 for the fatal shooting of Sabich, two-time World Pro ski champion, on March 21, 1976. The shooting occurred in the $250,000 mountain chalet the couple had shared for two years.

THE MAXIMUM sentence upon conviction in Colorado was two years in jail and a $5,000 fine. A probation officer had recommended the 30-day sentence, saying Miss Longet was a "low risk re-offender."

The former Las Vegas showgirl reportedly appeared at the jail Tuesday and authorities withheld the news overnight. She had planned to wait for summer to serve the sentence but apparently changed her mind because of the jail's condemnation.

Kralicek said Miss Longet's visitors, restricted to Tuesdays and Thursdays, are limited to blood relatives including her three children, attorneys and clergy. He said Williams would be barred from visiting his ex-wife "under strict interpretation but the final decision will be made by the sheriff."

Bus ridership hits high April 7

More people rode the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses April 7 than any day in the district's two year history.

Joseph DiJohn, executive director of NORTHRAN, said ridership hit 19,472 that day. He attributed the peak ridership to "good weather and pre-Easter shopping."

"But seasonal factors should not obscure the fact that our ridership has been steadily increasing as more and more people discover us and learn how to use the routes nearest their homes," DiJohn said.

March ridership broke monthly records with a 35 per cent increase more than March 1976.

NORTHRAN serves 23 communities in the north and Northwest suburbs.

Man overcome by gas after death trap kills 3

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A man apparently rigged up a death chamber in an automobile trunk and killed three persons with carbon monoxide Wednesday, but fell victim to the gas himself after returning to check on his victims, police said.

The deaths reignited investigations into the disappearance of a woman and her teen-age daughter 10 years ago. Police began digging in a search for bodies of the two missing persons near a garage on Indianapolis' near Northeast Side where bodies of the carbon monoxide victims were found.

Investigators said the apparent slayer-turned-victim was Melvin Carr, 62.

WEDNESDAY'S VICTIMS were Karen Mills, 24; her son, Robert E. Mills Jr., 2; and Sandra E. Harris, 17, who lived together about three blocks from Carr's house and garage. The teenager had been sexually molested, police said.

Authorities said Carr apparently abducted the three at gunpoint Tuesday night and took them to the garage behind his home.

Homicide Sgt. James Parnell said it appeared Carr forced the victims into the car trunk, locked it and attached a vacuum cleaner hose to pipe exhaust fumes in to them.

Carr left the garage and later reentered with a handkerchief over his face to check on the victims. Parnell theorized, and was overcome while disconnecting the hose.

WHEN POLICE arrived, the trunk was open. Carr lay under the right rear bumper. A .25-caliber revolver lay near his body. Bodies of the woman, boy and girl were in the trunk.

Carr's wife, Harriett, discovered the bodies after noticing the garage door slightly ajar, police said. The engine was still running. Police said she told them she did not know the victims.

Police said Carr had a long police record that included a Texas conviction for white slavery, arrests on other sex charges and a recent prison term for embezzlement.

POLICE SAID neighbors told them Carr regularly could be seen putting at night near his garage, planting bushes or working on a fence.

The persons missing since Jan. 25, 1967, were identified as Lois Williams, 35, a divorcee, and her daughter, Karen, 17. Some of their personal papers were found in suitcases in Carr's garage shortly after they disappeared, police said.

Carr, who was convicted Nov. 20, 1970, in Houston, Tex., on white slavery charges and was paroled in late 1974, had offered to marry Mrs. Williams, detectives said.

They said investigators learned he had returned home exhausted the night of the Williams' disappearances.

House panel votes to dismiss Young charge

A complaint seeking to reverse the victory of U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., over Samuel H. Young in November was turned down Wednesday by a three-member subcommittee of the U.S. House Committee on Administration.

The panel voted 2-1 along party lines to recommend to the full committee that Young's complaint be dismissed. Mikva had filed a motion seeking dismissal of the complaint.

Young, who also is awaiting an Illinois Supreme Court decision seeking a recount of the November election, termed the panel's action "highly premature."

"I was surprised the panel did not wait. We have never had an official recount in the election," Young said.

Hospital medical director

Schools urged to work for health-care changes

by DIANE GRANAT

To provide the best health education for children, schools must take an active role in changing the entire health-care system in this country, according to the medical director of Cook County Hospital.

Quentin Young, chairman of the medicine department at Cook County Hospital, told a group of educators Wednesday that school should serve as a forum for discussion and action in the community on the health-care crisis facing this country.

Young spoke in Chicago at a conference on health issues sponsored by the Cook County Educational Service Region.

"We have created a crazy bureaucratic patchwork in federal health programs rather than a responsive, humane, local system," Young said. He said schools should identify health issues on a local basis, rather than rely on federal programs for direction in health education.

ONE PROBLEM that schools could attack is the removal of death and dying from the home and its placement into "the technological factory called the hospital," Young said.

He said children are harmed because they are excluded from intensive-care units in hospitals and they never witness death. Schools not only should explore death but also actively encourage people to die at home, he said.

When children constantly see violence and killing on television but never see death, a cause and effect relationship is never developed and children become amoral, Young said.

Young said the biggest health problem schools must handle are drug and alcohol abuse. "That addiction blocks solutions to other problems," he said.

Saccharin ban outcry shocks FDA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food and Drug Administration chief Donald Kennedy Wednesday expressed surprise at the public outcry over FDA plans to ban saccharin because the agency never said anything that "should have generated that much alarm."

"I think there was a perception on everyone's part that saccharin in all of its forms would instantaneously disappear," Kennedy told a news conference.

He said the American people now appear to be "less anxious" about the saccharin issue because the FDA last week proposed to continue the sale of the artificial sweetener for home use. He said the public now understands that the ban is only a proposal which is not final.

"I WAS SURPRISED at the nature rather than the amount of controversy because it seems to me nothing was really said at that first press conference that . . . should have generated that much alarm," Kennedy said.

"It seems as though people now understand a little better that there is a 60-day comment period; that a variety of inputs are going to be heard from, and that there's a time schedule that doesn't permit things to happen precipitously."

Kennedy defended the FDA decision to ban saccharin as a possible cancer causer, saying the American public seems to have been "belabored" by the misconception that the rats used in the Canadian study were "staggering" under unusually high doses of saccharin.

"The Canadian study was a good animal study," he said. "There weren't stuffed rats."

Kennedy said he does not use saccharin, mainly because he doesn't like the way it tastes, particularly in diet soft drinks.

"I just don't happen to like the aftertaste, that's all," he said. "I don't like the nondiet kinds (of soft drinks) much either."

HE SAID HE WOULD "urge" his family not to use saccharin either.

Kennedy warned that companies which try to get around the saccharin ban by offering a "side order" of the chemical along with a bottle of unsweetened soda pop may have a hard time getting the tactic past the FDA.

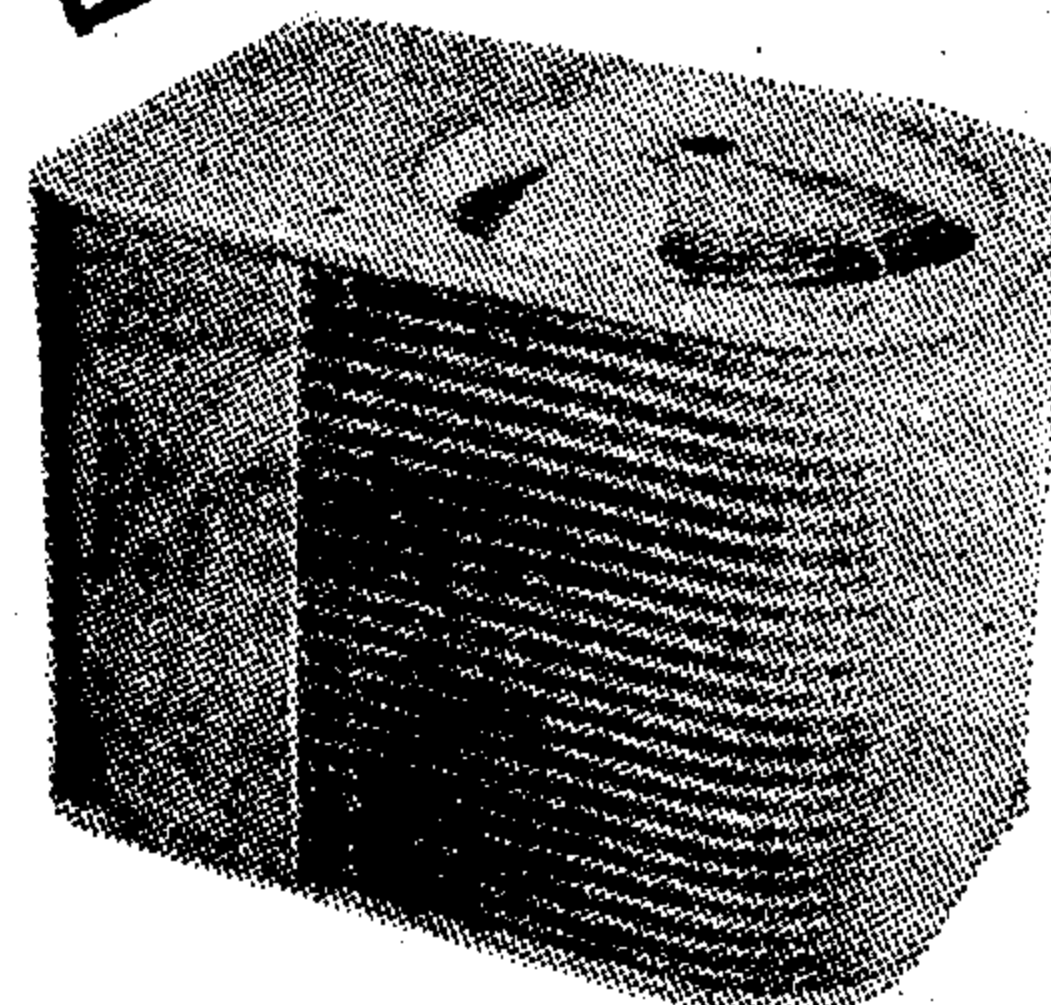

He also said the Delaney amendment, which allows no amount of a cancer causing agent to be present in the food supply, is in danger of becoming a "chaotic" regulation because of the increasing sensitivity of detection methods for finding things in food.

But Kennedy said a review of the amendment will be completed in six weeks, with the options ranging from leaving it untouched to making major revisions.

Columbo changes tune on statements

Under cross examination, Patricia Columbo Wednesday changed her testimony by saying police spoke with her one more time before she gave them statements and was charged in the slaying of her family.

Miss Columbo Friday had said police talked with her a total of four times before she made written statements to police. Wednesday, when questioned by Patricia Bobb, Cook County assistant state's attorney, she said she spoke to investigators five times.

Miss Columbo, 20, and Frank DeLuca, 39, are charged in the May 4, 1976, murders of her parents, Frank and Mary Columbo, and her brother, Michael, 13, of 55 E. Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

MISS COLUMBO testified Wednesday at a pretrial hearing on a motion to suppress statements she gave to police after they arrested her May 15, 1976.

She testified that the previously unmentioned conversation involved Det. Raymond Rose, of the Elk Grove Village Police Department.

She said Rose told her Lanyon Mitchell, 25, of Lake Villa, had told police she had solicited him to murder her family.

Miss Columbo has testified that John Landers, then an Elk Grove Village police detective, later entered the room where she was being held, and promised to help her.

Landers left the room and returned with Det. Gene Gargano of the Cook County Sheriff's police, Miss Columbo said.

IN THE FIFTH, and last visit by police before she made her first written statement, Miss Columbo said Gargano promised her DeLuca, who also was being held, would be released if she cooperated with them.

Miss Columbo said Gargano told her if she refused to aid police, they would not release DeLuca.

"I was willing to give a written statement if Gene (Gargano) would hold true to his statement," Miss Columbo said.

After Miss Columbo gave her statement, she said police charged her in the slayings of her family and released DeLuca. Police arrested DeLuca again July 17, 1976, and charged him in the murders.

The next hearing in the case will be at 10:30 a.m. today in Judge R. Eugene Pincham's courtroom at the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Children get to join mom in birth room

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joshua Jontow, age 2½, sat with his father on the edge of the bed and watched as his sister was born.

"I saw the baby come out," the tousle-haired youngster recalled proudly.

Kira Rodriguez, 3½, was taken to the delivery room at the final moment of his sister Laura's birth.

"Mommy was in bed and Laura was coming out," she said. "I lied in bed (with the mother). Then I held Laura."

Erin Jontow weighed in at 7 pounds and 6 ounces at 12:16 a.m. last Jan. 9 at the Childbearing Center on Manhattan's East Side. The mother, 24-year-old Pat Jontow, was sitting up because she was more comfortable that way.

Just 11 days earlier, Pat Rodriguez gave birth to 6-pound, 13-ounce Laura in the same room. By her side was her husband, Julio, and nearby stood the couple's two closest friends.

In each case, a doctor or midwife gave encouragement, but not orders. The policy of the facility, operated by the Maternity Center Assn. is to let parents do things their way.

"We were literally a pregnant family," Mrs. Jontow said. "It was the most marvelous experience. It's what childbirth is supposed to be like."

Mrs. Rodriguez, 36, said having her second child "was joyful. It was like a celebration."

TO DATE ABOUT 100 babies have been delivered in the center which opened 18 months ago to offer women a safe but homelike setting for giving birth — in the presence of their husbands, and, if they desire, their children or friends.

Officials at the center say they believe it is the first such project in the country, although several similar facilities have opened in other cities recently.

The two "birthing rooms," as the staff calls them, are painted in bright colors and furnished with armchairs, throwrugs and wall hangings. The beds have no straps or stirrups.

Couples are encouraged to walk around, watch television or even prepare snacks in a nearby kitchen during the early stages of labor.

Both Joshua and Kira had seen pictures of childbirth and knew what to expect.

"JOSHUA WATCHED the whole thing," his father said. "He was in awe. He was very quiet, but at no time distracted. He was very involved."

"He was pushing right along with us," the boy's mother said.

Mrs. Rodriguez, herself a physician, said Kira was "delighted" when she saw her new sister.

"She came over and rubbed my stomach and said, 'Mommy, look, Laura came out,'" she said.

Both women returned home within hours of giving birth.

"It was almost as if I had never left," Mrs. Jontow said. "The doorman said he thought he had seen me the previous day going to the supermarket."

"You did," I told him."

Commitment.

It's just possible that no other business requires the commitment that a bank must make. It is a two-way commitment to depositors and to community. For some 40 years, First Arlington has met its commitments in the form of earnings for depositors and reinvestment in the community. That is why the bank has become the largest in Arlington Heights. That, along with its other commitments to area progress: leadership in civic organizations and community activities. While the bank's new management recognizes past performance as admirable, it has stated a policy of even greater commitment to the people, the businesses and the community life of Arlington Heights. What this town and this bank have accomplished is merely the beginning. The future is limitless.

Delta rocket's misfire ruins $12 million test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — America's usually reliable Delta rocket misfired Wednesday, sending a satellite into the wrong orbit and dooming the first phase of a $12 million experiment designed by a group of European scientists.

"Preliminary evaluation of data indicates an electrical short circuit in the second stage ring caused the separation of the second and third stages to take place too soon," said Charles Gunn, National Aeronautic and Space Administration Delta project manager.

The malfunction in the GEOS satellite mission, designed to study the envelope of magnetic forces surrounding earth, ended a string of 29 flawless performances by the Delta.

THE MCDONNELL-Douglas rocket had posted 93 successes in 130 launches.

NASA scientists said the premature separation, about 25 minutes after the 5:15 a.m. launch, put the GEOS satellite into an orbit so far off target that it cannot be corrected.

The European Space Agency will have to pay NASA $14.3 million for the unsuccessful launch. But the cost will be much more than that. The project, which includes two GEOS launches, was four years in the making at a total cost of $120 million, including the launch expenses.

Officials of the European organization said, however, they would decide by next week whether to try and salvage something from the first phase of the mission by changing the spacecraft's orbit and devising new experiments.

"We definitely plan for a more useful orbit if the data can be meaningful," said Roy Gibson, director general for ESA.

"WE HAVE to talk to all the experimenters to make sure the data will have value in a different orbit before taking any action," he said.

The second GEOS satellite was scheduled for a July 1979 launch, a date which may be advanced because of Wednesday's failure, ESA officials said. The GEOS is a key part of a 30-nation project known as the International Magnetospheric Study.

'Roots' leads Emmy list, made despite award woes

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The troubled television academy stubbornly went ahead with its Emmy nominations Wednesday, giving 35 of them to "Roots," to lead all shows, though the Emmys may never be awarded — at least not on national television.

"Roots," ABC's 12-hour spectacular on the first portion of Alex Haley's book tracing his African heritage, led all shows with 35 nominations including best actor for a single appearance for four of its stars, George Stanford Brown, Levar Burton, Lou Gossett and Ben Vereen.

Ed Asner, who also was in "Roots," was the fifth nominee for his appearance in a "Police Story" episode.

AN OVERWHELMING 394 nominations were made by the academy and Lee Schulman, chairman of the national awards committee, said blue-ribbon committees would go ahead and determine the winners, though the awards never may be presented on national television as they have in the past.

Last week NBC canceled the scheduled May 15 Emmy Awards show because of an irreconcilable feud between the Hollywood and New York chapters of the academy. Schulman said "other alternatives" for the awards show are being explored.

Programs besides "Roots," that received multiple Emmy nominations were "Raid on Entebbe" (9), "Sybil" (7), "Eleanor and Franklin" (13), "M*A*S*H" (13) "NBC's Saturday Night" (10) and "Captains and the Kings" (8).

Nominated for best comedy series was the perennial "All in the Family" — although all of its stars boycotted the award — and the two ratings leaders, "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley." "Welcome Back Kotter" completed the list for best situation comedies.

Nominated for best dramatic series were "Baretta," "Colombo," "Family," "Upstairs, Downstairs" and "The Waltons."

ONLY THREE actresses were nominated for best performance in a drama or comedy series: Kim Hunter (Baretta), Madge Sinclair (Roots) and Jessica Walter (The Streets of San Francisco).

Best actress in a drama or comedy special were Jane Alexander (Eleanor and Franklin), Bette Davis (The Disappearance of Aimee), Sally Field (Sybil), Rachel Roberts (A Circle of Children) and Natalie Wood (Cat on a Hot Tin Roof).

Nominated for best actor in a comedy or drama special were Peter Boyle (Tailgunner Joe), Ed Flanders (Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking), Edward Herrmann (Eleanor and Franklin), George C. Scott (Beauty and the Beast) and this year's Oscar winner, Peter Finch (Raid on Entebbe).

Alan Alda (M*A*S*H), Abe Vigoda, (Fish), Henry Winkler (Happy Days), and Tony Randall for his own show were nominated for best actors in a comedy series.

Nominated for best actress in a comedy series were Bonnie Franklin (One Day at a Time), Linda Lavin (Alice), Penny Marshall (Laverne and Shirley) and Nancy Walker (Blansky's Beauties).

The way we see it

Hospital audit a realistic plan

The problem of restoring Cook County Hospital to public accountability without returning it to partisan political control has been addressed in a forthright and realistic manner by County Comr. Joseph Tecson.

Tecson, a Republican, issued a statement this week opposing a bill in the Illinois General Assembly which would return control of the county hospital budget to the Cook County board.

At the same time, Tecson proposed a management audit of the hospital and of its Health and Hospitals Governing Commission by the Illinois auditor general. The results of the audit, Tecson says, could be used by the county board to force changes in hospital operations to increase efficiency.

Under terms of the 1970 state law, the county board has control only of the total amount of the hospital budget. The board can cut the total but cannot dictate what line items in the budget must be trimmed.

The county lost line-item control of the budget to the appointed Health and Hospitals Governing Commission because of scandals involving hospital operations. When the county board ran the hospital, patronage workers were hired and the hospital nearly lost its accreditation.

Since then, medical services at the hospital have improved, but the hospital governing commission under Dr. James Houghton, executive director, has also been accused of waste and financial mismanagement.

The commission, shielded by law from political control, has been able to ignore all complaints about hospital budget procedures. After several years of wrangling at budget hearings, the county board is supporting the legislation to restore its control over the budget.

The problem with such an action, as Tecson points out, is that returning full budget control of the hospital to the county board would simply encourage a return to the bad old days when medical care was a political football.

However, if the state auditor general audits the hospital and makes the results available to the county board, the hospital governing commission could be forced to be accountable for its action.

Tecson's proposal is an example of the kind of responsible and innovative thinking that is needed in government. The Illinois General Assembly and county board should heed his advice.

You do that real good, Andy, now practice tongue holding.

Carter's ideals, willingness to conciliate are strengths

Jimmy Carter seems to have everybody perplexed but the people. While his popularity is evident and growing in the public opinion polls, the old pros seem mainly to shake their heads. The more sophisticated and experienced the observer, the harder time he seems to have getting a fix on the new President.

A distinguished English journalist describes the Carter administration in terms once reserved for the Soviet Union: "an enigma wrapped in a riddle."

The Kremlin's chief Americanologist confides in an interview that he can't decide whether the new President's pronouncements on human rights and arms control add up to a series of deliberate provocations or innocent mistakes.

A BRITISH LORD expresses some respectful reservations about the new American leader's naivete in armaments.

In America, punditry seems put off. James Reston in the New York Times is as admiring as he always has been of any president with an erg of political power still left in him, but the distinguished-columnist also sounds puzzled. Joseph Kraft, who aspires to be this generation's Walter Lippmann but remains its Joseph Kraft, is disdainful. He takes an epicurean's sad pleasure in proclaiming that this new leadership is turning out as badly as he had predicted.

Now any president who can discomfit both Scotty Reston and Joseph Kraft has got to have something going for him. All this mutual concern about the dangers of Carter's idealism may be unwarranted. Jimmy Carter, a familiar type to Southern churchgoers, isn't about to let his idealism get in the way of practical necessity. He's naive like a fox. The new President can back off from ideals as well as embrace them. Witness his latest offer to reason together with Leonid Brezhnev if the Russian leader didn't take to the first American proposal on arms control.

THIS PRESIDENT understands the difference between Sunday and everyday behavior without feeling any need to sacrifice either. He's not likely to let the view from the mountaintop make him forget the spadework that may still need doing down in the valley.

Paul

Now those to whom consistency is a hobgoblin instead of one quality among many might call this confusing, or perhaps even hypocrisy. If so, there are things worse. Like the sincere, straightforward acceptance of the evils of the world. The Germans have a word for it (Realpolitik) but the concept has never been very comfortable in the American ethos, even when it was a normal part of American diplomacy.

"The interesting thing about Carter," writes James Reston, "is that he seems to reject all the normal assumptions of national and world politics." The most nearly interesting thing about Reston is that he should find normal some sad and cynical assumptions about the world that appeal to only a stratified class of Americans. Kissingeresque Realpolitik is no more normal for American history than the State Department is representative of American public opinion.

PRESIDENT CARTER combines an air of righteousness with a confidence that he can still get along with the other sinners. Though that's normal in Southern latitudes, it still puzzles outlanders. "All this seems noble but preposterous to many of his political contemporaries," writes Reston, "but Jimmy Carter seems determined to change the questions of domestic and world politics, even if he cannot win."

But to change the questions that dominate politics may be to win enough. If Mr. Carter can really get the world to focus on human rights as something more than a platitude, if he can make arms control involve some real cutbacks instead of the usual sanctification of whatever the generals on both sides want, then he will have achieved a great deal.

THE NEW PRESIDENT does seem to be changing the terms of the debate. Chairman Brezhnev's latest coup in the contest of ideas is to emerge as a world figure opposed to both significant disarmament and human rights. Not that this is an unusual stance for a Soviet leader, but it is unusual for it to be so discernible.

And the Soviet foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, has to use the term "human rights" even as he is pillorying them in a tub-thumper of a speech. How long has it been since the vocabulary of these exchanges was shaped by the West and not the East? That may happen when the right questions are raised. And to accomplish that is to win.

JIMMY CARTER SEEMS able to reach beyond the usual interest groups and opinion makers, and to make contact with the people behind the labels. Even when admitting a mistake, he seems to strengthen rather than weaken his credibility. As when he acknowledges that Americans, too, have failings when it comes to human rights. It is a disarming technique — the same one Mark Twain used when he wrote his description of Hawaii and entitled it "Our Fellow Savages of the Sandwich Islands." It identifies one with the sinner and at the same time preserves one's distance. And so Jimmy Carter, without being an eloquent speaker or resonant statesman, can appeal to idealism without pretension, and come down to earth without crashing.

There may be things about Carter that should concern. Will the good feelings he inspires leave any substantial legacy? Will he just re-organize the government or actually change it for the better? Will the American people wake up after four or eight years of Jimmy Carter and find themselves still adrift, and the entropy of the Republic only further advanced?

But what should not concern about this new President is his willingness to preach ideals and at the same time conciliate adversaries. That is his great strength, not weakness.

'Zoning law will hurt city'

To members of the Prospect Heights Zoning Committee:

I believe the basic issue on the proposed zoning code to be two-fold: do we want to maintain the existing character of the community and if so, are the elected officials of the community bound by our trust to enact laws consistent with that concept.

Assuming this to be true, we must preserve our traditions and allow for the freedom to incorporate new ways into our lives.

I believe that such ordinances that limit shrub height in residential areas (except where constituting a safety hazard); limit number of pets; limit the number of persons allowed to receive instruction within a home; designate where vehicles — whether business or pleasure — can be parked on residential property (including also the constraint on street parking) and how property is to be landscaped are not consistent with the existing concept of our community. I believe them to be in violation of the rights of the individual.

As society becomes increasingly complex, more and more people have a hard time coping with the pressures of daily life.

The very quality of our lives has come under close scrutiny. On the other hand, many have more leisure and the means to enjoy that leisure. To think that a person's business or family's recreation is in jeopardy because someone doesn't like the way a truck or a camper looks parked in the driveway makes me seriously question our values.

There are many people (an estimated 20 per cent) in Prospect Heights who are engaged in some form of business conducted from their homes. Many of these people have been here since the beginning of Prospect Heights and have literally built this community. To threaten their very existence is to me a grave miscarriage of justice.

There appear to be many conditions in existence that are illegal but were either overlooked or not enforced by the county. We incorporated to provide our own "home rule" and thereby protect our integrity. We incorporated to make it easier to obtain a building permit, not more costly and with a greater delay of time. Let's not make the mistake of perpetrating laws that are unfair or unenforceable. Let's pass ordinances that can be supported by our citizenry. I am appalled to think anyone would consider allowing an ordinance to be written or adopted with no intention of abiding by it.

Our neighbor, Mr. Ralph Peterson quoted Thomas Jefferson at a recent Saturday morning hearing. Jefferson said, "The government that governs least, governs best." I believe this word of caution should be seriously considered by all when considering the effects most of these constraints would have on Prospect Heights.

Joanne G. Kuhns

'Love didn't kill'

I would first like to say that I regard any personal loss of life as tragic. That does not eliminate the chance of accidental death, nor does it console those who have lost someone close to them. I think however that you distorted the facts when you reported the accidental death of Bonnie Hoffman.

Bonnie did not "die because she loved horses." Bonnie was too close to an animal which was a stranger to her. In dealing with animals of any sort, one must exercise caution to keep an animal from becoming frightened or angry. Since a horse is such a large animal, one must be careful to stay clear of the animal when he is either in an enclosed area or tied down. The neighbor, Mrs. Quick, was wise to supervise the girls when they were with the horse, and it is a shame that the girls did not leave the horse alone after she left. The fact that Bonnie was caught in the horse's tether when he became frightened shows that she indeed was not being cautious.

Barrington is a riding community with people of all ages who enjoy the sport of riding and the pleasure of working with horses. The article stated that she "probably was attracted to the horse, and her death, by her love of animals." A less accusing statement would be that it was unfortunate that the accident occurred when Bonnie was doing what she enjoyed most. People who are just becoming acquainted with horses or who have young children that ride should not be scared off by a freak accident that was unfairly publicized. The girl was not crushed to death by a falling animal, she suffered fatally from being pinned under water. . . . she drowned. I hope that people will learn to respect horses because of Bonnie's death, not fear them. One should be free of fear in his love for animals, not ignorant of it.

Castro can't withdraw from Angola

by JOHN VIRTUE
(Commentary)

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Cuban head of state Fidel Castro acted without the Soviet Union's knowledge when he dispatched troops to Angola in 1975 and now finds he must leave them there to guarantee the Marxist government of Agostinho Neto, according to Western sources.

"Angola is Castro's Vietnam," said one knowledgeable foreigner in Cuba.

Tomorrow...

Our views on State Comptroller Michael Bakalis's call for Democratic Party reform and Gov. James R. Thompson's new executive order on financial disclosure for appointed state officials.

"He can't leave without losing face with the Cuban establishment."

"The opposition forces in Angola haven't been liquidated yet," said another foreigner. "If the Cubans leave, Neto might have trouble staying in power."

ACCORDING TO information pieced together from Western and Cuban sources, this is how Cuba came to send troops to Angola in late 1975:

Several Cuban technical advisers were killed by a South African strike force which wiped out a border post of Neto's Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

Castro was furious when he received the news and called a meeting of his top aides. Acting rather impetuously, within 48 hours of the attack Cuba packed off the first contingent of troops to Angola aboard aging Bristol Britannia prop planes.

ONLY THEN was the Kremlin advised of the Cuban action. But it agreed to provide the necessary arms.

At the height of the fighting, there were some 15,000 Cubans in Angola. Now there are an estimated 10,000.

President Carter has made Cuban troop withdrawal from Africa one of the preconditions for the lifting of the trade embargo against Cuba and the normalization of relations.

"Insisting on the withdrawal of troops from Angola as a precondition will stop rapprochement with Cuba," said the knowledgeable foreigner, who has dealings with the Cuban government. "Cuba won't change its African policy."

"ANGOLA IS not costing Cuba money because it would have to pay the soldiers whether they were there or not and the arms don't cost anything because they come from Russia," he said.

However, Cuba desperately needs the return of the technicians who are in Angola with the troops," he added.

Although there was some grumbling about serving in Angola — several Communist party militants were said to have lost their posts because of their reluctance to go — the vast majority of Cubans backed Castro's call to arms.

Oil, gas explorers need incentives to find fuel sources: businessmen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Businessmen reacted favorably Wednesday to the aim of President Carter's energy package but complained he had emphasized conservation over stimulation of exploration for new oil and gas.

Colin Lee, an analyst with the oil and coal giant Conoco, said: "Energy is Carter's Gordian knot. But this program is like trying to cut the knot with only one-half of a pair of scissors."

David H. Foster, executive vice president of the natural gas supply committee, Washington-based representative of major and independent producers of natural gas, was blunt in his condemnation.

"ON THE BASIS of those portions of the message relating to natural gas we believe the program represents a serious step backward from the development of new supplies," Foster said.

"The net effect will be disincentives for investment, discouragement of new frontier exploration and further dwindling of deliverable supplies. In brief, the program offers billions for taxes but scarcely a penny for supply. It is little more than an extension of the bankrupt policies of 23 years of federal price management. By no stretch of logic or imagination can this be called a step toward deregulation."

Don Crawford, president of the Edison Electric Institute, the national association of electric utilities, said the utilities would help consumers save as much as possible with advice and technical help.

"THE PRESIDENT'S program places a particularly severe burden on the electric utilities at a time when all energy consumers may be facing dislocations in their way of life," Crawford said. "It is certain the program will require the best cooperation between the government regulatory agencies, electric companies and consumers."

Donald Samuels, president of the Energy Fund, an investment fund that specializes in energy-related stocks, said he did not think the proposed tax on gas-guzzling cars would hurt the automotive industry.

"Most cars are in the middle and lower range, so he is only aiming at the bigger luxury cars," Samuels said. "I don't think this is disruptive. Someone who is willing to pay the $15,000 this kind of car costs is not going to worry about an extra $400 in tax."

Over-all he saw no real problems for investors.

Book value fad not so secure

NEW YORK — Wall Street likes to think of itself as a highly sensitive measuring device but, more often than not, it bears a greater resemblance to a pendulum gone haywire.

Not only does it tend to overreact hysterically in one direction or the other, but it swings wildly every time the winds of stock-selecting fashion change. A key mistake too many investors make is to assume that the latest fad will be permanent.

The most recent buzzwords have been book value, that is, the worth of a business as measured by its assets and liabilities, rather than by the market's changing appraisal of what the stock price should be.

THERE'S NOTHING NEW about concentrating on book value, but it has come back into fashion for two reasons: (1) so-called glamour stocks, selling at exceptionally high prices in relation to their annual earnings, have performed less well than stocks in general in most recent months; (2) in the same period, some of the best records have been compiled by investors who purchased stocks selling for less than their book value and at a very conservative multiple of their annual earnings.

But the comfortable conclusion that successful investing requires only the adoption of a new/old system, book value, seems equally likely to falter. First, the market is quirky; last month, for example, according to a study by Kidder, Peabody & Co., the 50 highest-multiple major stocks actually did slightly better than the market — the first such favorable comparison since November. Second, just as a low price-earnings ratio is no guarantee of investment profits, so a high book value can be a misleading recommendation. And third, the book value itself can be inaccurate.

As Mark A. Boyar, a skeptical student of the book value enthusiasm, told me, "To measure a company's value by utilizing stated book value is absolutely meaningless. Stated book value and what the assets of a corporation are, in fact, really worth can be poles apart."

BOYAR IS DIRECTOR of "Asset Analysis Focus," a research service he began in January 1975 to emphasize the difference between book value and what he terms intrinsic worth. He says he believes investment success arises from "taking advantage of favorable discrepancies between market value and intrinsic value" — which he defines as what the company would be worth if it went out of business or got sold tomorrow.

Boyar says "By employing the stated book value method of investing, even if the stated book value is accurate, an investor rarely finds the treasures that lie beneath the balance sheet... Hidden assets not appearing in a corporation's financial statements at current values may lead to disparities between market value and intrinsic worth."

So book value may underestimate, as well as overestimate. Neither it nor any other set of magic words will substitute for the painstaking task of individual company analysis — not to mention hope and faith. For the only permanent fashion on Wall Street is change.

Business briefs

GNP doubles rate of growth to 5.2%

The nation's economy doubled its growth rate to 5.2 per cent in the first quarter after shrugging off the impact of a record cold January, the Commerce Dept. reported Wednesday. With normal weather, the report said, the Gross National Product after adjustment for inflation would have grown more than 6 per cent. "This was a stronger performance than generally was anticipated a month or so ago," said the department's chief economist, Courtney Slater. Slater and Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal said the late winter surge in the economy put the administration on target for the year — 6 per cent annual growth in GNP, 7 per cent unemployment and 6 per cent inflation. The real GNP was estimated at $1,287 trillion, up from $1,280 trillion in the final three months of 1976. GNP is the market value of all goods and services produced in the United States. The 5.2 per cent annual-rate growth in the first quarter compared with 2.6 per cent in the final months of 1976. But at least a doubling had been expected. Other reports in recent days showed new home and apartment construction at the highest rate in nearly four years, industrial production making the biggest gain in 19 months, factories using machinery at the highest rate in 29 months, the number of persons with jobs growing by 865,000 since December, and record high retail sales. Slater attributed much of the improvement in GNP to consumers and businesses doubling their combined rate of motor vehicle purchases.

Chamber hits consumer bill

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce Wednesday called the proposed Agency for Consumer Advocacy "a government-by-lawyers bill" that would let loose an "unaccountable creature" on the federal bureaucracy. The American Bar Assn. supported the creation of the agency, arguing it would ensure more representation for consumers in the federal government. The measure, which has administration support, would set up a new agency to represent consumer interests before various federal proceedings. It would be empowered to challenge agency rulings in court. The bill last year cleared the House and Senate but never won final congressional approval because of President Ford's threat to veto it.

Smith Corp. profits show drop

A. O. Smith Corp. recently reported lower profits from continuing operations for the first quarter of 1977 compared with the same period last year. L. B. Smith, chairman and chief executive officer, said sales reached $182 million for the quarter compared with $152 million in the first quarter of 1976. Profits from continuing operations totaled $4,734,000 or 97 cents a share compared with $5,245,000 or $1.07 a share for the year-earlier quarter. The firm's A. O. Smith Harvstore operations are based in Arlington Heights.

Dow up 3.82 in active trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks snapped a two-day losing string with a modest gain Wednesday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues prior to the formal unveiling of President Carter's energy program.

An afternoon buying surge was sparked by a 5.2 per cent increase in the first quarter gross national product — the best since the 9.2 per cent rise in the first period a year ago — and by American Telephone & Telegraph's report of higher earnings.

Late profit taking trimmed earlier gains as investors waited for Carter's 9 p.m. EST energy package presentation to Congress. The conservation program, calling for taxes, rebates and incentives, already is controversial.

Against that background, the Dow Jones industrial average gained 3.82 points to 942.59 after being ahead six points earlier. The closely watched average had lost 8.99 points the previous two sessions, including 3.99

GNP doubles rate of growth to 5.2%

The nation's economy doubled its growth rate to 5.2 per cent in the first quarter after shrugging off the impact of a record cold January, the Commerce Dept. reported Wednesday. With normal weather, the report said, the Gross National Product after adjustment for inflation would have grown more than 6 per cent. "This was a stronger performance than generally was anticipated a month or so ago," said the department's chief economist, Courtney Slater. Slater and Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal said the late winter surge in the economy put the administration on target for the year — 6 per cent annual growth in GNP, 7 per cent unemployment and 6 per cent inflation. The real GNP was estimated at $1,287 trillion, up from $1,280 trillion in the final three months of 1976. GNP is the market value of all goods and services produced in the United States. The 5.2 per cent annual-rate growth in the first quarter compared with 2.6 per cent in the final months of 1976. But at least a doubling had been expected. Other reports in recent days showed new home and apartment construction at the highest rate in nearly four years, industrial production making the biggest gain in 19 months, factories using machinery at the highest rate in 29 months, the number of persons with jobs growing by 865,000 since December, and record high retail sales. Slater attributed much of the improvement in GNP to consumers and businesses doubling their combined rate of motor vehicle purchases.

Chamber hits consumer bill

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce Wednesday called the proposed Agency for Consumer Advocacy "a government-by-lawyers bill" that would let loose an "unaccountable creature" on the federal bureaucracy. The American Bar Assn. supported the creation of the agency, arguing it would ensure more representation for consumers in the federal government. The measure, which has administration support, would set up a new agency to represent consumer interests before various federal proceedings. It would be empowered to challenge agency rulings in court. The bill last year cleared the House and Senate but never won final congressional approval because of President Ford's threat to veto it.

EACH FRIDAY NIGHT, the Sidney Miller family observes the Sabbath in their Elk Grove Village home. As Reform Jews, Sue and Sidney observe all the holidays and traditions in an effort to instill Jewish religious values in their teenage sons. Sue, who is "hooked" on working with people, serves as a program supervisor at the Jewish Community Center in Rogers Park.

Sue Miller helps Soviet refugees learn to live as Jews in America

by ELEANOR RIVES
(Second of two parts)

"Certainly we have women in leadership roles in the Jewish religion," said Rabbi Hillel Gamoran of Beth Tikvah Congregation in Hoffman Estates.

"There's Sherry Hansen, principal of the Woodfield Congregation Sunday School. There's Sue Miller — Sue was our Hebrew School principal. Now she's working with Soviet-Jewish political refugees at a Jewish Community Center in Rogers Park."

So we traveled to Rogers Park. It was a wet, miserable night. Nevertheless 25 persons, most of whom spoke little English, had found their way to the drop-in center to hear three panel members discuss Social Security and other social welfare programs in the United States.

THROUGH IT ALL, Sue Miller beamed and explained and introduced and encouraged and kept things moving, even when the interpreter's Russian explanations were three times as lengthy as the original English.

There was no doubt that these newcomers desired sincerely to learn to live in their new communities, to understand the U.S. and its laws, to learn the language, to be self-supporting and to fit comfortably into the role of being a Jew in America.

Sue Miller is Mrs. Sidney Miller, mother of three teenagers, and resident of Elk Grove Village. She works full time as adult and young adult program supervisor at the Rogers Park center.

When Sue was a youngster in Cleveland, she loved going to Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver's temple. She loved Sunday School. An impressionable teenager, she became active in Young Zionist groups, fighting in her own small way to help Israel attain statehood.

"THIS WAS THE decade from 1940 to 1950 — the war years, the holocaust in Europe, the formation of the State of Israel," she said. "I was convinced of the importance of Jews continuing as a people. After six million were slaughtered, I wanted desperately to save the remnants of the Jewish people, to make sure they survived both in Israel and the United States."

Sue earned her bachelor's degree in psychology and sociology at Case Western Reserve. To this she later added 35 hours in Judaica studies, which qualified her to be a certified religious school teacher under the Board of Jewish Education.

IN CLEVELAND, she worked for seven years with people of all ages, children through adults, at the Jewish Community Centers. She also taught Sunday School. When she came to Chicago in 1954, she became youth director at Glencoe's North Shore Congregation Israel and the Jewish Community Centers of Chicago.

In 1959, Sue and her family moved to Elk Grove Village. Since then she has served five years on the housing commission, she has been a teacher at Beth Tikvah's religious school, then became its principal and continued for five years. Four years ago she went to work full time for the Rogers Park center.

"On the one hand, I have helped my people by means of Jewish education; on the other, through informal education and cultural experiences and group services at the centers, carrying on Judaism in a less formal sense," she said.

THE MILLERS are Reform Jews. Their congregation, Beth Tikvah, is affiliated with the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the parent body of the reform movement. More liberal in their approach, reform congregations allow involvement of women. But congregations differ, according to Sue, for each has the right to determine its own policies, within limits.

"Colleges for rabbis and schools for cantors have opened their doors to women," she said. "So far in this country, there are two women rabbis and at least one female cantor. At Beth Tikvah, women are called up to the bima (pulpit). They may give the prayers, they have even given sermons. Once or twice, the entire service was conducted totally by women."

SUE TAKES PAINS to instill religious values in her own family, observing all the holidays and traditions, raising her sons to be Reform Jews too. "It is my belief, and the belief of Judaism in general, that God does not plan your life. You make your own decisions and plans. By your deeds and actions, by living to the best of your ability, you fulfill your religious life," she said.

She hopes to continue in different ways to help plan programs with which Jewish people can identify, and to support Jewish causes here and in Israel. "Of course, my responsibilities to my family come first," she said.

Her greatest goal? Her answer came quickly. "Some day to visit Israel."

Consumer study shows parents more hopeful

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

Parents raising children under 13 these days are more optimistic about the country and their families than they were two years ago, a major study released this week in New York shows.

Among them is a new breed of parent — more self-centered, permissive, less authoritarian. But 57 per cent of the parents, traditionalists, are otherwise.

Exceptions to the optimistic feelings: many single parents, most minority families and those with incomes under $10,000.

The signs of less pessimism among the child-raisers:

- Two years ago only 18 per cent of the families felt that things were going well in the nation. Today, 60 per cent feel that way.

- In 1975, some 37 per cent of the parents said their standard of living was worse than during the previous year and 14 per cent then said their standard had improved. Now, the figures are reversed. Thirty-two per cent report improved living standards and 17 per cent live at a standard poorer than a year or two ago.

Single and minority parents are having the hardest time, according to the study, "Raising Children in a Changing Society," commissioned by the Consumer Center of General Mills.

The study, conducted by Yankelovich, Skelly and White, Inc., concentrated on a probability sample representing 23 million families with children under 13.

The aim: to learn how parents are coping with child-raising in a period of rapid social change.

Some things learned about the children really didn't require a survey. Most, for example, hate it when they're told to do chores or ordered to turn off the television, the report showed.

A major finding was that American families come in two types: traditional and new breed. The two kinds don't see or behave the same on many points but both, surprisingly, believe in teaching their children these values:

- Duty before pleasure.
- My country right or wrong.
- Hard work pays off.
- People in authority know best.
- Sex is wrong without marriage.

The new breed's "not important values" include marriage as an institution, religion, saving money, patriotism, success. The traditionalists give a high priority to such items.

New breed parents are self-oriented and not ready to sacrifice for their children. Traditionalists are child-oriented and ready to sacrifice.

Traditionalists also want their children to be outstanding, respect authority. Not permissive. They believe boys and girls should be raised differently. They view having children as a very important value, say old-fashioned upbringing is best.

New breed parents, by contrast, don't push their kids; have a laissez-faire attitude (children free to make own decisions); question authority; are permissive with children; believe boys and girls should be raised alike; believe their children have no future obligation to them; see having children as an option, not a social responsibility.

New breed parents tend to be better educated and more affluent than the others in the survey.

"They represent the 'haves' rather than the 'have nots'."

Traditionalists aren't as inflexible as those of a generation or two ago. For example, they do not believe that parents should stay together just for the sake of the children. And they say parents are entitled to lives of their own, even if it means spending less time with the children.

The new breed and traditionalist parents may be surprised to learn their children agree on some things. These are the things, according to the survey.

- They like their mother because she is a good cook and homemaker; their dad because he spends time with them and is the main provider.

- They do not believe parents should separate even if they are unhappy together.

They do not agree that parents should go on vacation without their children.

- They believe it is the mother's job to cook, clean. Not dad's.

- They think it's okay for parents to spank their children.

"Yet," the report noted, "there are some significant signs that the new breed parents may be raising a new breed of children." They said the children of new breed parents are:

- More willing (58 per cent) to see parents separate if they are not happy than are children of traditionalists (47 per cent).

- More relaxed and well aware that their parents do not put the same emphasis on superiority in studies, sports, popularity and behavior as the parents of some of their peers.

- More liberal in the acceptance of differences and in their readiness to play with children of other races.

There were these other highlights of the study:

- Majority of families approach the future with confidence but 36 per cent are concerned about the job they're doing raising children. Most worried are working mothers, single parents, and mothers and fathers with low incomes.

- Among children between the ages of 10-and-12 interviewed many knew other children in trouble with police, who tried marijuana or other drugs, who had taken something that didn't belong to them or who had run away.

- Only 28 per cent of the parents indicated they were satisfied with the standards of today's society. Both new breed and traditionalist parents complained about illegal drugs, street crime and violence "All around them and on television." They worry about their kids being exposed to major social problems and temptations on a large scale and at early ages.

- Nearly three out of four parents

Come warm days, time to hunt wicker

Come the first warm days, the barbeque grills are dragged out of hiding (yes, you should have cleaned that grill last fall!) and people start thinking of outdoor living, porches and fixing the screens.

To some antique collectors, summer means looking to the wicker furniture, repainting it if necessary, and perhaps making new covers for the chair seats. Wicker furniture, so "Great Gatsby," so light, summery and cool looking, can be used in almost any room of the house.

The term wicker means not just one particular material but is used as a catch-all for all woven types. An old-fashioned name is "basket furniture," or rattan, reed, willow and China sea grass. All these differ slightly but may be called wicker in the shops. It has become quite expensive.

In Richmond, Ill., I noticed that several shops recently featured wicker in their display windows, and some of the pieces were very ornate and curlicue, combining several types of reeding and weaving. One window contained an entire room display consisting of davenport with upholstered cushions, a two-seated settee, most unusual and pretty, several rockers, one with a magazine holder built in at the side, some planters and even a lamp.

ANOTHER STORE featured a desk and matching chair, and I was really "taken" with that set. Luckily, the stores were closed the day I went, which was a holiday, or I might have gone home $250 poorer and worried my banker, who is also my husband.

Grace Carolyn

Collecting

But the desk was in excellent condition, never having been painted, as so many pieces have been. It was in the original brown natural color. I probably would have painted it if it were mine. It seems, however, that the "never painted" pieces bring more, for they are usually in better condition and have had less wear.

Condition is very important in wicker furniture, for it is a rather fragile material. Most was made for indoor use, such as enclosed porches or "sun rooms" and possibly it took less wear than other furniture, for much of it survives in pretty good shape. And most of the old wicker is at least 50 years old.

In addition to the natural materials of grass reeds, rattan, willow and other plant fibers, there was a lower priced substitute made of twists of paper which were then treated so as to make them tough and resistant. This type furniture was advertised as fiber reed or fiber rush. Such pieces may be difficult to distinguish from the other types if they have been painted with many coats.

Some wicker, such as porch swings, was obviously intended for outdoor or at least covered porch use, and I think that is the reason few of these pieces are found in good condition. A porch swing, described as "excellent" recently sold at auction for $300, where a rocker, rather plain, of the type shown in the picture, might bring about $65.

SO MANY INTERESTING pieces were made, including daybeds, children's chairs, vases, tables, floor and table lamps, baby carriages, etageres, flower and plant stands, tea carts, desks, that it is possible to "do" a room in any part of the house. I have seen the good pieces from an old worn quilt used for upholstering the chair seats, the pattern in blue and white on white painted wicker, with a charming effect. When painting wicker, it is easier to give it an undercoat with a flat paint then spray or brush paint with the semi-gloss or glossy enamel finish of your choice. With today's emphasis on outdoor (or screened in) living, wicker is a natural, for it "goes" with plants and greenery so beautifully.

You may even be lucky enough, as a friend was this past fall, to find an entire nine-piece porch set, davenport, settee, two rockers, one straight chair, desk, matching chair, lamp and planter, in the original natural color, like the day it was made, for $300. I wish I had a warehouse full!

Tetracyclines O.K. for teenager's acne

I am 15 years old and I have very oily skin. I've been to a dermatologist and he gave me soap and a tube of cream. He also gave me a pill to take once a day. The chemical in the pill was tetracycline. I used it for a few months and it worked terrific. Then my father read in a newspaper that this chemical could have some bad effects on young people. It never had any on me.

My dermatologist said it was O.K., but he did cut down the dosage from 500 to 250 milligrams. My father says better safe than sorry but will be guided by an explanation from you.

Your dermatologist was doing the right thing. Tetracyclines are used to eliminate small bacteria that live just inside the skin pore. These bacteria act on the sebum, the oily secretion your skin glands form, to break the fat down to fatty acids. The fatty acids are irritating to your skin and cause the inflammation that damages your skin.

Regular use of tetracyclines in younger people may damage the development of normal teeth. The tooth development phase is over by 12 years of age and this danger no longer exists. Since the acne problem usually begins after this age, during adolescence, it is perfectly safe to use tetracyclines for this purpose and this has been done for many years now with good success and few if any difficulties.

I would have sent you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to help you, but you didn't include your address on your letterhead. Let me remind readers who want a copy of my reply to please put their address on their letterhead. Others who want The Health Letter on acne can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

How old is too old for vitamin C pills? I bought two expensive bottles of natural vitamin C and my husband won't touch them since you said they could poison us. If we cannot eat citrus, is it necessary to eat vitamin C tablets to get enough vitamin C?

Regular vitamin C tablets stored in a refrigerator lose about half their potency in a year's time. The vitamin C may be converted to oxalic acid which has been implicated in triggering diabetes or associated with urinary tract infections and kidney stones. Otherwise old vitamin C will not poison you.

Obviously harmful effects from old vitamin C tablets are more likely to occur in the person who insists on swallowing large amounts. The Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance is only 60 milligrams. That will meet the needs of most healthy people — particularly if they don't smoke.

I would suggest keeping vitamin tablets in the refrigerator and keeping vitamin C no longer than six months. There is no inherent advantage of natural vitamin C over synthetic vitamin C. Chemically they are identical or they both wouldn't be vitamin C. The only real advantage is to the company which is marketing natural vitamin C at a fancy price. An all purpose daily vitamin pill will be adequate.

If you can't eat citrus fruits, you may not be able to eat tomatoes either — some people classify them as citrus fruits too. But you can eat three-and-a-half ounces (cooked weight) of any of the following foods to get your RDA for vitamin C: broccoli, Brussels sprouts, collards, mustard, spinach and turnip greens or cauliflower (raw weight).

Chlorine bleach might wipe out counter burn

Dear Dorothy: How would I go about removing a small cigaret burn from a laminated plastic counter top? Actually, it's more of a stain than a burn. — Nancy L. Gueda

There's only one thing recommended for a light scorching on laminated plastic — rubbing a little chlorine bleach on it with one's finger, leaving it on momentarily, then rinsing it right off. If that doesn't do the job, nothing will as the surface is probably charred. Some people have tried rubbing light burns with 4-F pumice and water, rubbing back and forth only a few times so as not to destroy the finish. You'll have to decide whether a light burn looks better than no finish at all. While there are any number of ways to get rid of stains, there usually is nothing one can do with a burn except replace a panel or, if it's in the right spot, have a cutting board built in.

Dear Dorothy: With so many people drinking cocoa with the commercial cocoa mixes, I keep wondering if it can be made at home with much less expenditure. Yes? — Jan Dreier

Yes. Use four cups of the powdered nonfat dry milk with one-half cup cocoa, one-half teaspoon salt and one cup sugar. Keep it in a covered container. For one serving, use one-third cup of mix to one cup of hot water.

Dear Dorothy: My husband attached a stair tread to the seat of our little girl's swing. Not only does it protect her from splinters, but helps keep her from slipping off. — Joyce Grissom

Dear Dorothy: When you're about to apply an iron-on patch to something, be sure to put foil under the hole so the patch won't stick to the board. — Frances Mueller

Bread dough craft worth copying

I was fortunate last Christmas in finding a variety of the beautifully decorated and detailed "bread-dough" tree ornaments from Peru.

This very old and traditional Latin American craft has been used recently in this country to make small flower arrangements. Although our own artisans have achieved a great deal of proficiency, I'm always amazed at the amount of beautiful detail in the South American work.

The illustrated pieces are intended as Christmas ornaments, but are so pretty that I've devised a way of enjoying them all year. They can be glued to burlap or fabric-covered Masonite board and framed.

I've enjoyed trying to duplicate these beauties — and perhaps you'd like to try your hand at this more detailed form of bread-dough art.

To begin, you will need a good recipe for Latin American "bread dough," or "migajon de pan."

THE ILLUSTRATED ornaments have a base of tan dough, which leads me to believe they were constructed from a dough made of whole wheat bread.

I like to make plenty of dough and usually begin with about eight slices of bread with crusts removed.

Let bread stand exposed to the air for a few hours, and then crumble it into a bowl. For each slice of bread, add one tablespoon of medium-thin white craft glue and two drops of lemon juice.

Cover your hands with cold cream

Judy Harper

Traditional crafts

and begin to knead the "dough" until it no longer sticks to your hands. You probably will need to add cold cream to your hands a few more times.

Make a separate batch of white bread dough and color small portions of it by kneading food coloring into separate lumps of dough. The Peruvian migajon ornaments use bright orange, yellow, pinks, greens and purple.

ROLL OUT WHOLE wheat dough between layers of plastic wrap. Remove the wrap and cut basic shapes, like bells or stars, with cookie cutters. Or simply model the shapes you want, such as clowns and angels.

To decorate them, make tiny tear drops, roses, calla lilies, bows, sunflowers, etc., from the white bread dough, and attach to the ornaments with a drop of white glue.

The illustrated bell has a ribbon on top made from a strip of well-flattened migajon.

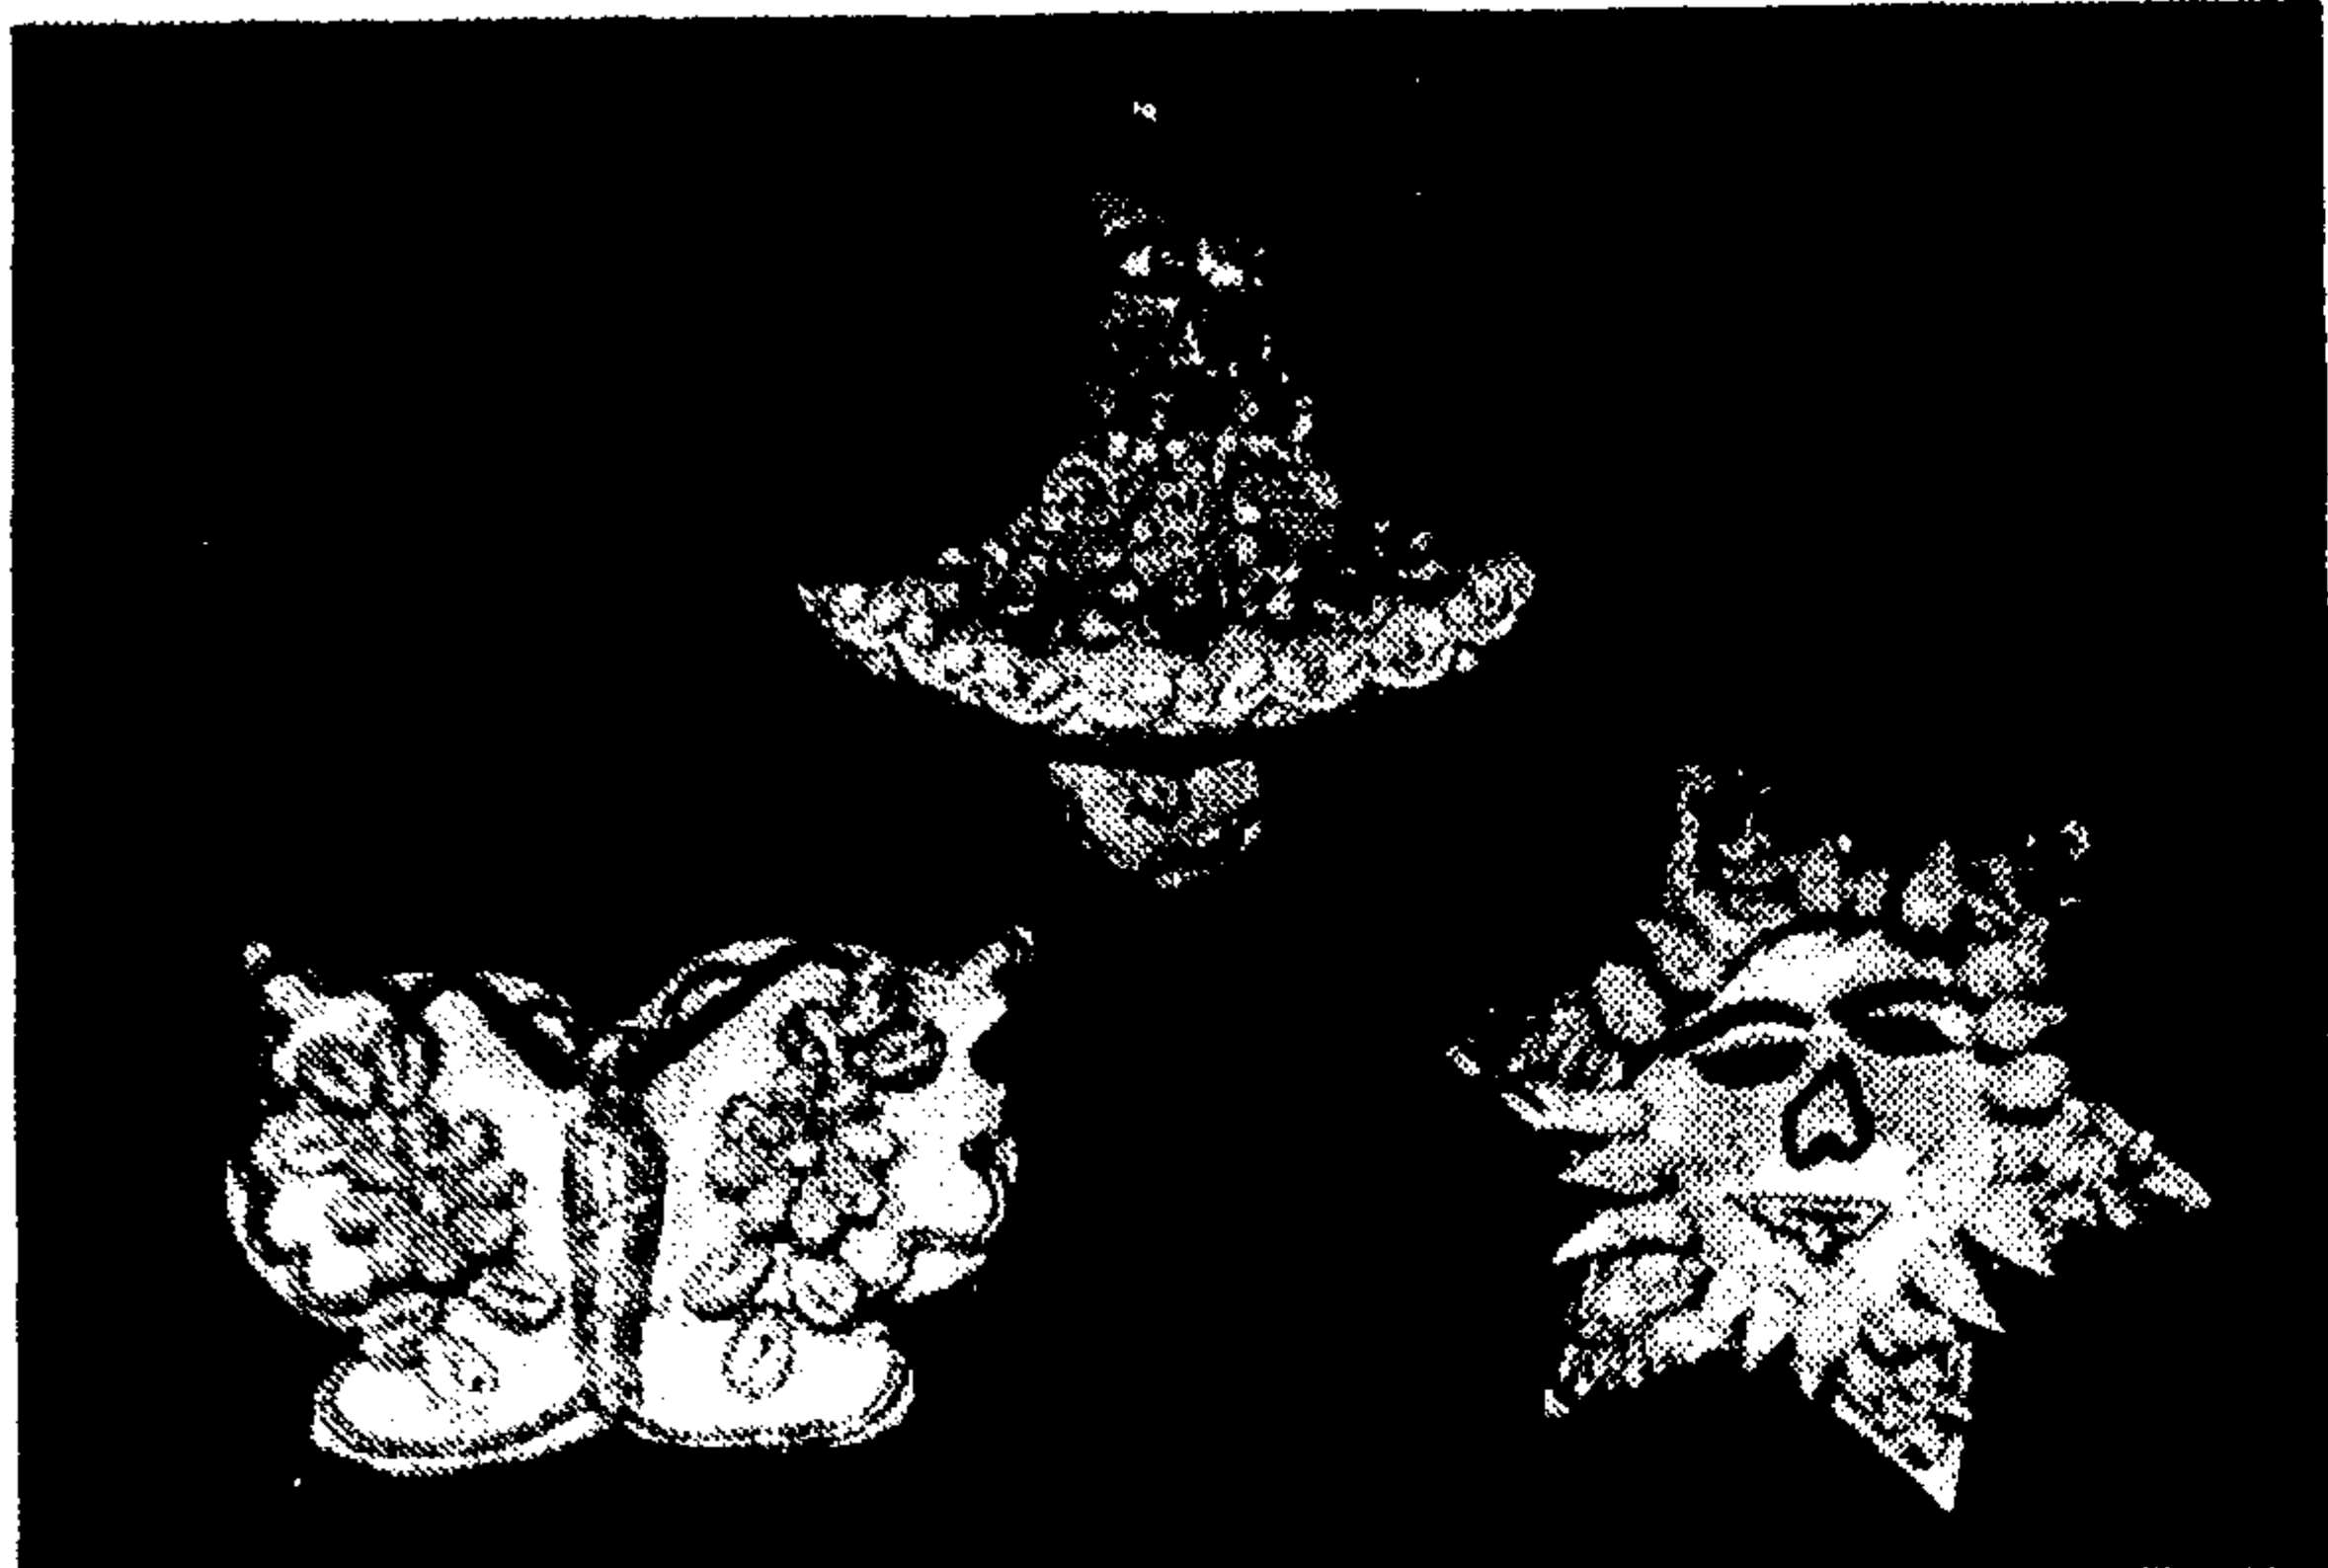

The butterfly's body is glued on top of the wing section, and has wings decorated with flowers made from fat teardrop shapes.

One of my favorite ornaments is a Santa figure about two and one-half inches tall, complete with tiny beard and mustache, a red bulb nose and a flower at the belt buckle.

Use your own fertile imagination! When finished, let the piece dry for several days, and then seal it with your favorite acrylic craft glaze.

Glue the decorations to boards as desired, and hang them for admiration and enjoyment!

Parents more optimistic

feel children learn good things from television. One out of four feels television has been a bad influence. As a group, however, parents view violence on television among their top concerns. Time children spend in front of television and what they watch are among major sources of friction and argument on the home front. Both parents and children said so.

• Advertising was described as an industry "not living up to its responsibilities to parents and children." One out of four parents mentions the "gimmies" — children always asking for things they see advertised — as a major personal concern and a nagging problem in child-raising.

• Parents have fears and doubts but most are reluctant to seek outside advice in time of great stress — when children run away from home, are in trouble with police or use drugs. Parents would find it easiest to get help from teachers, child psychologists or the clergy. They would be reluctant to get help from juvenile authorities, family agencies, social workers or health clinics.

• Two of three parents have problems talking with their children on drugs, death, sex, drinking, crime and rape, family problems, money.

CANCER DETECTION HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication "76 Cancer Facts and Figures.")

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood pressure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 issue of FORTUNE "if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postonable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holler monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

Give yourself the best protection available today against cancer and heart disease by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Illinois (Near Woodfield Mall.) ## CBS founder, chief Paley to retire

The changing of the guard at CBS was made official Wednesday. William S. Paley, the 75-year-old founder and chief executive of CBS Inc., announced his retirement during an annual shareholders meeting in Los Angeles.

The announcement was as predictable as Paley's recommended choice of successor. Paley has asked that the CBS board of directors at a May 11 meeting appoint John D. Backe, 44, a financial and marketing expert who has served as CBS president since October, as the new chief executive.

Paley, however, plans to retain his position as chairman and is expected to maintain a pretty firm grip on the CBS multi-faceted company that he has guided out of infancy since 1928.

THE FACT THAT Paley has given birth to and developed CBS for nearly 50 years is unprecedented in the radio and television industry.

It is all the more reason why Paley is unlikely to leave his tight ship at a time when it's slowly sinking.

The changing of the guard, that some thought would be prompted only by Paley's death, comes at a very crucial time for CBS. The network has been the in prime-time ratings for the past 20 years with virtually no challenge from ABC or NBC. CBS, however, lost its comfortable first place to ABC this past season, an upset that perhaps was brought on during an air of complacency at CBS.

CBS officials have said that they are in a fortunate situation in terms of coping with the negative backlash of this sudden fall from ratings grace. CBS reportedly receives half of its annual sales from non-broadcast operations such as records, consumer items and publishing services.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL Wednesday reported CBS profits rose 33 per cent to $164 million last year and the broadcast group's pretax income, most of which comes from television, rose 25 per cent in 1976.

Losing its first place ratings has been more a blow to the ego for CBS than a financial devastation. But, that can change quickly.

The network must prove to advertisers with big money that it can nurture high ratings. CBS demonstrated within the last two weeks that it plans to do just that. The week ending April 10, CBS displaced ABC in the number one spot for that week's top ten television programs with its special "Something for Joey." CBS did it again last week with part two of its special, "The Amazing Howard Hughes."

When Robert J. Wussler, network president, was in Chicago last month, he talked about CBS hustling to produce top-notch specials, movies, novels and series for the new television season that begins in the fall.

Backe, if voted in as chief executive, and there's no reason to believe he won't be, will have to ensure this comeback this fall if profit margins based on advertising dollars are to remain high.

CBS OFFICIALS seem to feel that Backe, sitting at the right hand of Paley, will do well. He has been referred to as top manager: material who has kept a low profile to avoid the big problems and eventual dismissal that Arthur R. Taylor met when he was CBS president from 1972 to 1976.

Backe is believed to have a more personal approach and genuine grassroots interest compared with Paley's Ivory tower image.

He first came to CBS in 1973 as corporate vice president and president of the company's publishing group. His reorganization of the group resulted in an eightfold increase in earnings. He recently was noted among those in the business world for having smoothly directed $50 million acquisition of Fawcett Publications Inc.

"SINATRA AND FRIENDS"

Backe is expected to help foster every special interest and working aspect of CBS as compared with Paley, who has made the broadcasting branch of the company his baby from the start.

Paley was the son of a wealthy Philadelphia cigar manufacturer when he became interested in the new medium of radio. He began his venture by sponsoring the radio musical show, "The La Palina Hour," named after the family's brand of cigars. The $50 in sponsorship each week resulted in a dramatic increase in cigar sales.

PALEY BOUGHT INTO the chain of 16 radio stations in 1928 that eventually became the Columbia Broadcasting System and he was named president at the age of 26.

CBS called itself the world's largest network in 1935. It had 97 stations then and now has more than 260 radio affiliates, five owned television stations and 210 television affiliates.

In the golden days of Paley's CBS, Edward R. Murrow made his World War II broadcasts from abroad, Jack Benny and Red Skelton got their starts, and shows like "I Love Lucy" and "Gunsmoke" began their enduring runs.

Paley made sure the company spread into many different areas — among them publishing, records, musical instruments and toys.

The hand that has guided CBS this far will no doubt be around to help the developing network along even after Paley officially has stepped down from the Ivory tower he has built for himself.

HIGHLIGHTS:

Keeping home records may help cut your taxes

Without good records, far too many homeowners end up paying more taxes each year than are required by the federal government, said Robert Poltzer, general manager of Gladstone, Realtors, Elk Grove Village.

"Because so many people find record keeping a bothersome chore," Poltzer said, "They simply don't keep the kinds of records that permit them to take full advantage of the tax laws' allowable deductions. Without accurate records, they pay extra taxes much too often."

Poltzer said the most frequent deductions available to homeowners are payments for mortgage interest and local property tax payments. For a homeowners family of four earning $25,000 a year, these deductions can reduce its 1976 tax bill by about 14 percent and save the family approximately $550 on its federal income tax bill, he said.

AS IMPORTANT, the homeowner's deductions for mortgage interest and local property tax payments should make it possible to itemize many other expense items for even greater tax savings, he added.

"Interest and property tax deductions don't create much of a problem, because most of the record keeping job is handled by the mortgage company and the local government," Poltzer said.

Oversights generally occur when the home is sold, he said. At this time, the seller must report the home's capital gain. Deductible items include the seller's original purchase price, legal and brokerage fees related to the purchase and sale and most maintenance and improvement expenses incurred while the seller owned the home. The key to reducing capital gains is an accurate record in support of all deductibles, he said.

Frequent sellers of homes have learned the value of keeping accurate records to reduce their tax bills, he said.

"Other homeowners, though, who may sell a home only once or twice in a lifetime, often are unable to document deductible expenses made 5, 10 or 15 years ago," he said.

VIRTUALLY ANY expense incurred that increases the value of a home and that is passed along to a new owner can be deducted from the selling price reported at tax time, he said. Shutters, drapes, carpets, air conditioning systems, dishwashers, remodeled bathrooms and automatic garage door openers are all examples of items that may be deducted if supported by records, he said.

Both the product and its installation cost are deductible, but an owner cannot deduct the cost of his own labor for do-it-yourself home improvement projects, he said. Heating fuel is not deductible but a new furnace would be. If the house was repainted to make it more marketable, this could be deducted as an expense. Most items can be deducted at the actual cost, he said.

TO MAKE certain accurate records are maintained over the years of home ownership Poltzer makes the following suggestions:

Create a yearly file of possible deductible items.

File receipts of any item which might be deductible when the house is sold. Each receipt should include the purchase date, a brief description of the product or service and where it was bought and used.

While preparing the annual tax form, review these receipts. If any of these items were purchased on installment contracts carrying interest payments, the interest payments can be deducted that year.

Prepare a summary sheet for each year's home expenses, transferring the information on each receipt. For added protection, keep the receipts themselves in a separate spot in case of fire, theft or loss of the summary sheet.

At the time of sale, it's a good idea to review the possible deductions with an accountant or lawyer, he said. Some of the "possibly deductible" items may not be allowed, but your records will support any deductions that are allowable, he said.

be able to identify the child's need for special attention," he said.

Fernstrom advocates moving during the school year. "This allows the child to go directly from one social setting into another," he said. "He's the new kid in town, so his classmates and the teacher pay attention to him."

Subject matter in the elementary grades is flexible enough to allow school transfer with a minimum of academic problems, he said, while admitting the high school curricula, generally more structured, might cause some transitional academic problems.

"But these difficulties would also be there in September," he said.

"The uncertain academic drawbacks of a relocation during the school year should be weighed against the social problems a summer move is almost certain to cause," Fernstrom said.

Moving children to a new location during summer months may cause more problems than anticipated, said Robert Fernstrom Jr., president of Fernstrom Moving System, Chicago.

"One of the unfortunate myths about relocation is that school age children should not be moved until summer," he said. "Many families have undergone considerable inconvenience just to avoid a school-year move when, in reality, a summertime move may cause more problems than it solves."

Fernstrom's reasoning is that "since school is a primary source for making new friends, a summer move places the child in an unfamiliar atmosphere at a time when his chances for meeting others are at a minimum."

As a result the child enters school in September as a stranger, he said. "Making matters worse, the teacher, facing a new class in those first days of chaos, will not

Big homes: they go fast and cost plenty

by JOE FRANZ

The have names like Ivy Hill, Scarsdale, Stonegate, Shagbark Lake, Spinnaker Cove, Inverness and Creekside.

They are those exclusive neighborhoods in the Northwest suburbs where the price of admission is a large income and sizable mortgage payment.

If a person can afford to spend up to $100,000 or more for a home, he too can live in one of these areas.

AND DESPITE THE high price tag, real estate brokers report that buyers will pay premium prices for these homes and that they seldom are on the market for any extended period of time.

"A person, for instance, will pay X amount of dollars for the Scarsdale, Sherwood or Stonegate subdivisions in Arlington Heights just because of their reputation," said Richard D. Fulk, part owner of Century 21-Peters and Fulk, Realtors, Arlington Heights.

Robert E. Griffith, manager of Quinlan and Tyson's Buffalo Grove office, said many homes in the Northwest suburbs are advertised by neighborhood.

"I'm reluctant to call it snob appeal because I think the reputation of a certain area is deserved," he said. "The only reason people will pay more is because they appreciate what's over there."

"SOMEONE WHO doesn't appreciate it won't pay extra for the same house in a certain area because they think they are paying too much," Griffith said.

Fulk said there are a number of factors that determine the desirability of a particular home, among them location, lot size, the builder's reputation and the architectural style.

"For instance, an English Tudor in Scarsdale or Stonegate would be very popular," he said. "If I had it listed I would get 25 to 30 phone calls in a week just because of the architectural style."

Griffith said areas that are lined with large trees also bring premium prices.

"THERE ARE SOME people who come around here and are frustrated by the lack of trees and character in some of the areas," he said. "Trees are very important to a lot of people and they're willing to pay more for an area with tree-lined streets."

Albert Gundelach, owner of Gundelach and Associates, Arlington Heights, a real estate appraisal and consulting firm, said homes in the posh areas of the Northwest suburbs sell faster than in other less exclusive neighborhoods.

"I would say the average selling time in the exclusive areas is about two to three weeks," he said. "In the more stagnant areas it takes an average of about four to six weeks."

Fulk said that while homes in the exclusive areas generally do sell quicker, the time on the market is determined by several factors.

"IT ALL DEPENDS on the condition of the exterior and interior of the house and the location within a particular subdivision," he said. "The decorating also would be a factor."

Gundelach said the bigger, more expensive homes generally appreciate in value faster than those in other areas.

"For future advance and future price they probably are ahead," he said.

Griffith said that while a good salary is essential to living in one of the exclusive areas, the occupational makeup is varied. Among the occupations that can be found in some areas are lawyers, white collar workers, medical-related workers, executives and skilled tradesmen.

Although they come from diverse backgrounds, there's a lot of homogeneity among them, he said.

GUNDELACH SAID that persons who move into the exclusive areas usually stay there for a long time.

"They're real stable neighborhoods," he said. "People usually stay there until they die or get transferred."

Griffith said that while not everyone in the exclusive areas is saddled with a big monthly mortgage payment, he notes that mortgages of up to $65,000 are common.

He said, however, that some wealthy persons are able to purchase homes without a mortgage.

"Of course, when you get to a place like Inverness where you have extremely expensive homes, you might find some people with no mortgages," he said. "I once had a person who bought a home for $180,000 and paid cash."

The Sense of Saving

At First Federal Savings we've presented many reasons for saving over the years. But quite frankly, your reason for saving is yours alone . . . and it should be. Saving has its own built-in purpose. The "sense of saving" is keeping some of what you earn and having the money work for you through the safe accumulation of interest earnings at First Federal Savings. We've seen people with modest incomes become financially secure, through savings. In a sense, they are investing in themselves and that makes sense. It's what made our great country great. Come in. We have a savings plan for you.

Housing starts at highest point in nearly 4 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by unprecedented demand for new homes, the housing industry started construction on 2.1 million units in March, the highest monthly total in nearly four years, the Commerce Dept. said this week.

In addition to the 17 per cent increase from February in all categories of housing starts, Commerce said construction began on more than 1.5 million new, single-family homes last month, the most since the government began keeping such records in 1959.

"This is more than we hoped for," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Assn. of Home Builders. "1977 is going to be the best year for single-family housing construction in history," he said.

HE ATTRIBUTED THE performance to one major reason — "People are buying, so more homes are needed to keep up with demand."

The construction industry was one of the hardest hit by severe winter weather in January and early February.

Housing starts declined by nearly 27 per cent in January to 1.384 million units. But the February starts snapped back sharply and rose to a revised 1.815 million units.

The March total of 2.127 million units started was the highest since May 1973 when construction began on 2.266 million units.

In the single-family category, the 1.525 million units started last month topped the previous mark of 1.431 million in January of this year and January 1973.

Commerce also said permits issued for starting housing construction — an indicator of future activity — rose to 1.708 million, the second highest monthly total ever. In August 1973, permits issued set the record at 1.809 million.

Close check of homes encouraged

House hunting can be an exciting adventure, but don't let it turn into a misadventure. After carefully analyzing your housing needs and realistically determining what you can afford, shop carefully with a checklist to meet your goals.

Statistics show that about two-thirds of all homes sold in the United States each year are existing homes; the rest are new homes. Therefore, the odds are great that your dream home will turn out to be a previously-owned home.

Say you have found a house that meets your primary needs. It's priced right, it's in a good neighborhood and it's close to shopping, schools and transportation. What's your next move? It's a "checklist inspection" of the property.

BEFORE MAKING any commitments, inspect the property to make certain that it is the bargain it appears to be. Include the following items on your inspection checklist.

Termite infestation and wood rot. Wood rot is sometimes an indication that termites may be present. Although termites and other wood-destroying pests are usually associated with the South and Southwest, they pose a danger to homeowners in just about every state of the nation. You may wish to hire the services of a professional exterminator to determine if termites are present.

Structural sag. Do the walls appear square? If not, either plan on spending a lot of money or look elsewhere for another house.

Wiring and Plumbing. Repairs could be expensive. Ask local government officials to check to see if wiring and plumbing meet local codes.

Water heater. Make certain that it is in good repair. Find out when it was installed. Capacity may be inadequate in some older homes. As a rule of thumb, a gas water heater should have a capacity of at least 30 gallons; an electric water heater, at least 50 gallons.

Heating system. Make certain that it is in good general repair. Look for signs of rust. This is an item which should be inspected annually by a professional. When was it last inspected and serviced? Does the furnace have a recent inspection sticker?

Insulation. If inadequate, expect high heating bills. Attics should have a minimum of six inches of insulation; walls, three inches.

Roof. What kind of roofing materials were used? When was the roof installed? Look for signs of water penetration in the attic.

Basement. Look for signs of water penetration. A good time to check is several hours after a rain.

If you feel uncertain about your own skills in detecting problems, Realtors advise you to hire the services of an independent appraiser such as a member of American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers. An independent appraiser has no stake in the sale of the home and will be able to give you an independent judgment on the state of the property.

Mortgage or cash—debate goes on

The argument is endless: Outright cash for a house, or as long a mortgage as one can comfortably afford?

Almost invariably the mortgage route is the way to go, although there are exceptions — many retirees, for instance, for whom the comfort of having a home, free and clear, offsets all other considerations.

But what about the short-term buyer: One who buys and sells a home within three or four years?

Dear Mr. Campbell: As I read it you have touted the advantages of the maximum home mortgage to persons in my situation. Well, one of us is wrong, and I don't think it is me.

I bought a house three years ago for $58,000 and have lived in it, and I am now selling it for the same price. The attached table shows the cost of the transaction with either a cash sale or a $40,000 mortgage. By paying cash I lost the use of the $40,000 for three years, or the interest I could have earned ($6,000 at 5 per cent.).

In spite of this — and the interest deduction due to the mortgage which I compute at about $210 a year — this does little to offset the interest cost and I figure that, over three years, I had a total savings of $5,930 by paying cash.

Am I crazy, or is everybody else? Are you still going to advise your

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

readers to get a mortgage if they can pay cash?

Since the average length of time a person owns a home is only a few years, it seems to me that you should tell them to pay cash. — Mr. A.W.B. (Lansdale, Pa.)

A. It may seem to you that I should, but I won't. I'm not quarreling with your computations, which seem well thought out, but you've thrown a couple of distortions into it all.

In the first place, it is extremely unusual in these days of spiraling house prices for you to be selling a home, three years after you bought it, at the same price you paid for it — the vast majority of houses have been appreciating in value at the rate of about 8 per cent, compounded, a year.

In the second place you have completely ignored the inflationary factor which, charitably, we can compute at about 5 per cent a year over the past three years.

Taking these factors into account, you have lost about $8,200 on the deal through inflation and if you now replace this $58,000 house with a comparable one (which has experienced an 8 per cent a year appreciation), it will cost you about $73,000 today for a total net loss of about $23,000.

Granted, buying the house with a $40,000 mortgage wouldn't eliminate the loss, entirely (assuming the same set of facts), but it would have given you $40,000 to invest in something that would have offset it in large measure.

Your assumption of investing this at 5 per cent, incidentally, isn't realistic. That happens to be the current passbook savings rate, but the three crucial years in question were marked by near-record-high interest rates and you should have been able to average a return of about 7 per cent.

No, I'm sorry, but you haven't changed my mind.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I would appreciate it very much if you would be kind enough to let me know whether rental agents of apartment complexes have a legal right to charge their tenants a realty tax to be added to the monthly rent. This comes to quite a bite and they call this a "real estate tax increase" at the end of the term of the lease.

I know that there's been an increase in sewer rent, electricity, water, etc., but why should we who are only renting have to pay a percentage of their real estate tax? — Mrs. R.R. (Philadelphia, Pa.)

A. I'm sorry, but from the landlord's viewpoint real estate taxes are just as much a part of the cost of doing business as are his water, electricity and gas bills. From my experience, it's a little bit unusual to find the landlord breaking down his rent increase so specifically, but that doesn't make it unjustifiable.

I know that it's small comfort, but he can't slap an increase like this on you until the lease is up for renewal.

Dear Mr. Campbell: Can I get out of paying the real estate broker a commission if, after listing my house with him, I sell it myself? — Mrs. G.H. (Oakland, Calif.)

A. Nope, a deal is a deal. You should have made the selling effort yourself before you listed it with him.

Dear Mr. Campbell: What do you think of a man who, after we'd signed the papers selling us his house, removed two citrus trees from the backyard before we moved in? Can we do anything? — Mr. P.L. (Phoenix, Ariz.)

A. You can get a lawyer to tell him to put them back — they were a part of the deal, unless specifically excluded.

Play it safe—get promises in writing

It is of the utmost importance in a real estate transaction that all promises made are included in a written agreement. When these promises are not included in a written agreement, the people involved are almost certain to be heading for trouble.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My wife and I are thrilled with the house we found. They are asking $40,000 for it, and we have $8,500 in the bank. We were told we could get a $31,500 mortgage.

Our real estate broker has asked us to sign an agreement of sale which has nothing in it about a mortgage. He insists we'll have no problem getting a mortgage. He says the owner has already agreed to the price, so why do anything to cause trouble?

Something bothers me about his attitude. What do you think? — WANT TO BE PROTECTED.

The owner may be desirous of having an agreement without a mortgage clause, but remember, you need a $31,500 mortgage. Certainly, the agent doesn't want to cause any trouble, but what about the problems you may encounter if you can't get a mortgage?

Stick to your guns!

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I went down to the basement last week and found it filled with water. The plumber came and I ended up spending $550 for a new sewer line from the house to the street.

The plumber said that it was from cars parking on the sidewalk. I live in a row house in town, and cars have parked on my sidewalk for 10 years. Nothing like this ever happened before. Why should it be a problem now, and what should I do about it in the future? — WHAT'S UP?

This is another victim of the cold winter. Usually the ground is resilient and can withstand heavy shocks. This winter all the ground was frozen solid. When the cars parked over your sewer er line, the line had no place to go and therefore cracked.

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

We may not have this problem again. However, it is not a good idea to allow cars to park on your sidewalk. This type of breakage is always possible.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Two weeks ago it was winter. Today it is like spring. I decided this is the perfect time to start cleaning up and get a start on all of my outdoor work.

I hooked up the garden hose and turned on the water in the basement. Water started spraying out of the walls and everything got soaked. Since I turned off the water last fall, I can't understand what went wrong.

Can you explain what the problem is? — ALL WET.

Turning the water off to an outdoor spigot is not enough. It is also necessary to drain out the water from the line. This is done by opening the little bleeding valve on the side of the shut-off.

Usually this is not necessary because most of the outdoor spigots are frost free. This means that they set far enough into the wall to avoid any freezing. However, with a winter as cold as the one we had, it was possible for anything to freeze.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am 60 years old and have owned a property from which I received rental income for the past 30 years.

Recently this property became vacant and I was surprised to see that it has become very deteriorated. I have several parties who wish to rent the property, but they want me to make what I consider to be major renovations. For example, they want the ceilings dropped, new lighting, walls painted and other such repairs.

I am happy to do some work to bring the building up to modern standards. However, my doctor has ordered me to be reasonably inactive, and I am not physically able to super-wise so much repair work.

What can you suggest? — GETTING OLD.

The answer is to find a tenant who is willing to make the repairs himself. It will probably be worth it to you to allow a generous rent concession while the tenant is making the repairs. The more work that must be done, the more free rental you may have to give him.

Make sure your lease protects you with a guarantee that the tenant agrees to make certain repairs if he is given a number of months for no rent.

Building, labor costs go up 8.9% in last 12 months

The cost of construction materials and labor across the nation increased an average of 8.9 per cent during a twelve-month period, slightly above the 7.9 per cent rise registered a year earlier, it was reported this week by the Dodge Building Cost Services Dept. of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

The information released by Dodge Building Cost Services, for the 12-month period ended March 1977, is based on a semi-annual survey of building trades unions, contractors and materials suppliers in 163 cities in the continental United States.

During the latest 12-month period, cost increases were highest in the region covering the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain States, up 11.3 per cent. The smallest cost increase, 7.7 per cent, was posted by Southeastern and South Central States.

On the move

Lorraine Regula

Century 21 Arlington Realty announced that LORRAINE REGULA joined the sales staff and will be handling residential sales from the North Arlington Heights office.

Mrs. Regula has resided in Arlington Heights for 20 years with her husband Frank and two children. She attained the G.R.I. designation for completing a concentrated course of study at the Realtors Institute.

She has been selling real estate in the Northwest suburban area for the past five years. She serves as president of the Northwest Women's Club, former secretary of the Northwest Home Owners Assn. and presently active with the Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary and the St. James Church in Arlington Heights.

Edward Joyce

EDWARD JOYCE has been appointed sales manager of Hallmark Realtors of Arlington Heights. Joyce brings 12 years of real estate experience to his new position during which time he achieved the $2 Million Sales Club of MAP Multiple Listing Service. Joyce attended DePaul University and is a GRI designate. He resides in Arlington Heights.

Bev Brungaber

BEVERLY BRUNGRABER, long-time resident of Wheeling, joined the Century 21 Towne Square Realty office in Wheeling.

A mother of three, Mrs. Brungaber recently completed the Century 21 sales academy courses which qualify her for full-time real estate counseling.

LET'S TALK IT OVER
JERRY BOUSCHARD

Maybe you've been thinking about how nice it would be to move to a new location. Maybe you need a larger or smaller house or maybe you'd prefer living in a different neighborhood. If you're "moving up" to a more expensive property, you should determine whether or not you can afford the kind of house you'd like to have.

Circumstances alter cases but there's a rule of thumb that can serve as a guide: Monthly payments should not be greater than one-fourth of the family's monthly income. Consider the chances of a job transfer or job layoffs which would make large payments a real burden.

Before you move, let us help by pointing out the pros and cons. We have a Guarantee Sales Plan, that would remove your risk, if you wish to purchase a larger home. Our experience can save you trouble, so be sure to "Talk It Over" with us.

In the news

Linda Orris

Gary Rosenblum

APLEGATE REALTY, INC., announced the salesperson of the month for January and February at the firm's Buffalo Grove office.

Linda Orris, broker associate, was the office's sales leader in January. She was a member of the Million Dollar Club in 1975 and 1976 and topped all her previous sales records since joining AppleGate six months ago. Ms. Orris lived in Wheeling for four years and currently resides in Deerfield where she is active in the Inverrary Homeowners Association. She is also a member of the Lake County Board of Realtors.

During February, Gary Rosenblum was the top salesperson for the Lake County office. He earned his master's degree at Northeastern Illinois University and taught social science in secondary schools. He had no previous experience in real estate when he joined AppleGate about a year ago.

Rosenblum, his wife Marsha, and their two children live in Buffalo Grove where he is a member of the executive board of the Strathmore Grove Homeowners Association. He is vice president of Achum B'nai B'rith Lodge, a member of Congregation Beth Judea and the Lake County Board of Realtors.

Delays add to home costs: builder

Today it often takes three times as long or even longer to get permission to build a house as it does to construct the building itself. As aggravating as the delay is, the cost is even more bothersome, adding up to about $1,000 more per house in the case of a typical Chicago area builder, said William E. Griffin St., executive vice president of The Hoffman Group Inc.

"About 15 years ago, it took 60 to 90 days from the time we'd acquire property until we received our permit to build. A house normally required about 90 days to construct," Griffin said. "Today, we can build a house in that same amount of time, but it can easily take a year and quite frequently longer to receive all the required approvals, and even then, we can get turned down. All of this translates into increased costs of doing business which reflects itself in the price of a house."

The delay is caused by the increased number of governmental bodies a builder must deal with. To begin with, said Griffin, each village has its own requirements, and these can affect the progress of a builder's application.

"I'M NOT TALKING about building codes, but about the number of village boards, committees, subcommittees, and other federal, state, and county governmental agencies which must pass on a builder's proposal," Griffin said. "This wasn't always the case. It used to be that a builder would deal primarily with the zoning board of appeals, the school board, and then the village board."

"Today, depending on the village, the builder must get the approval of the plan commission, the village planner, the village engineer, the park district, the school boards, the police department, the fire department, and others, all of whom want to make sure that the building plan conforms to their requirements."

But dealing with villages is just part of the story. There are county, state, and even federal bodies that may get into the act. If the builder is planning a development in Cook County, he must get a sewer permit from the Metropolitan Sanitary District, which will rule on his over-all drainage plans. The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency also is involved, and if the builder's plans involve the funding or spending of federal money, then the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission has its say. On top of this, if the development is to be financed with Federal Housing Administration or Veterans Administration assistance, an environmental impact statement must be filed with the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, Griffin said.

GRIFFITH SAID he has answers to the problem.

• A closer examination of all new requirements imposed on building and a re-examination of existing ones to determine the impact they are having on housing prices.

"We have to balance the interests of the slow-growth and environmental interests against the interests of people who want and need homes," he said. "At the same time, municipalities that impose tough procedures and codes on builders should ask themselves whether they are in effect denying the sons and daughters of their present residents the privilege of owning a home in the community when they are adults."

• Better coordination of clearance procedures. Griffin believes that many clearances could proceed concurrently rather than depend on the one ahead to be settled.

"Why is it necessary for one agency to rule on a plan before another agency looks at it?" Griffin asked. "It would improve planning and speed the approval process if plans could be reviewed by two or more agencies simultaneously."

If improvements could be made, the winner will be the homeseeker who will get his home faster and at a lower price, Griffin said.

Steps urged to cut risks to inner city lending units

Andrew F. Brimmer, former Federal Reserve Board governor, this week recommended a series of steps to reduce the extra risk of inner city mortgage lending.

Noting that "increased inner city lending will involve increased risks," Brimmer said that if lending institutions are to play a larger role in urban home financing, "new procedures to reduce lender costs and to spread risks will be necessary." He made the remarks in a study prepared for the U. S. League of Savings Associations.

Among other proposals, Brimmer said a shared risk mortgage insurance program drafted by the U. S. League "could make lending in central cities more attractive" for lenders by assigning to a new federal insurance plan most but not all of the risk of loss attached to inner city conventional mortgages.

BRIMMER ALSO suggested counseling of prospective borrowers, adjusting interest rates and downpayment requirements from loan to loan to reflect the lender's risk more accurately, assigning higher-risk loans to specialized agents or offices which serve one or more savings and loan associations, using more home sale contracts where buyers cannot afford a mortgage downpayment and encouraging state lawmakers to simplify unnecessarily complex legal procedures required for real estate transactions and foreclosures in some states.

"The risks of inner city lending are indeed greater than the risks of suburban lending," said Brimmer, who served as assistant secretary of commerce under President Lyndon B. Johnson before Johnson appointed him to the Federal Reserve Board.

"If lenders expand significantly the volume of funds supplied in older sections of urban areas, they should expect a sizable rise in the incidence of defaults . . . followed by an increase in the number of foreclosures and liquidations.

"This chain of events can be quite costly," he said.

BRIMMER SAID one study of inner city lending experience also demonstrated that the risk of mortgage delinquency on older properties tends to be higher than on new houses.

"Delinquency rates varied directly with the age of the mortgaged property," in that Pittsburgh study, Brimmer said, noting that, although documented in only one city, this finding "is not an optimistic one with respect to a program of expanded urban lending."

He said the same study showed, however, that "the percentage of blacks in a neighborhood is not statistically significant in explaining delinquency rates."

BRIMMER SAID THAT because of the extra cost of processing delinquent and defaulted loans, foreclosures and liquidations of mortgaged property, lenders who promote and expand inner city mortgage programs would be taking a greater risk than those who do not.

He said that the risks involved in inner city lending are sometimes ignored or given too little weight by those who urge savings and loan associations to commit more of their funds to older urban areas.

"The probability of loss (in connection with loans in older neighborhoods) is likely to be higher than many advocates of expanded inner city lending may realize," Brimmer said.

The higher risks and greater costs involved in urban lending can be reduced so that private lenders can assume a larger role, he said. But he cautioned that the task cannot be accomplished by savings and loan associations or other lenders acting alone.

"SOME BELIEVE THAT a greater availability of funds in areas threatened with decay is a necessary condition for halting decline," Brimmer said. "Yet it is beyond the power of single lenders to turn most situations around. An individual (lender) who commits his funds to a sector is unlikely to save the situation; instead, he will simply increase his losses and costs."

For expanded lending programs in inner cities to succeed without jeopardizing the solvency of savings and

Steps urged to cut lenders' risks

loan associations, cooperative action to cut costs and reduce risk will be needed, he said.

For example, more pooling of loans by savings institutions through service corporations would both spread the risk of losses and reduce the cost of the expertise needed to deal with marginal loans, he said.

In fact, he suggested, savings and loan associations might consider establishing service corporations which are "expected to lose money through taking over unprofitable operations from their parent institutions." Such cooperative groups should be widely diversified, even involving ties among lenders in different cities, so that risks are spread out as much as possible, he said.

BRIMMER SAID lenders who embark on more inner city mortgage activity should be given the ability to process loans and foreclosures at lower costs than are now involved. This will entail revision of state laws in those areas where loan costs are kept high by intricate legal requirements in connection with mortgages.

"Costs of closing (a mortgage loan) and those related to default and foreclosure in many areas are barely supportable even on the assumption that only a small percentage of loans go bad," he said. "It would seem logical for lenders to insist that legal procedures be improved and their costs reduced as a quid pro quo for increased marginal lending," Brimmer said.

Alternatively, in cases where the risk is expected to be higher than normal, lenders could avoid high legal and default costs by turning to the use of home sale contracts or long-term escrows with independent agents instead of conventional mortgages.

BRIMMER SAID intensified counseling of borrowers would help lenders reduce risks and also help consumers secure and retain adequate housing. He pointed to the Neighborhood Housing Services program as an example of successful counseling. In one city, 96 per cent of loans processed through a neighborhood housing center have been amortizing without default, even though the loans would have been considered too risky to make under normal circumstances, he said.

The Neighborhood Housing Services program is coordinated by the Urban Reinvestment Task Force, a combined effort of the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Comptroller of the Currency.

Savings and loan associations actively participate in NHS, which has programs operating in 30 cities throughout the nation.

In addition to helping inner city residents manage their financial affairs so that they are able to make mortgage payments, counseling helps borrowers by screening out applicants whose credit histories might be acceptable but who "lack the emotional maturity for responsible home ownership," Brimmer said.

HE SAID one of the fundamental ways of making inner city loans more economically feasible for savings and loan associations is to permit them to charge interest rates and require downpayment levels which correspond to the risk expected from each mortgage.

He noted, however, that many state mortgage interest ceiling laws leave such a small margin above prevailing mortgage rates for sound loans that "the room for adequate compensation (to cover the higher risk of a marginal inner city loan) would appear to fall short of the risk involved."

This problem could be resolved if states raised or eliminated their mortgage interest ceilings, Brimmer said, adding:

"Clearly, a greater effort is required to induce states to eliminate usury laws. Good reasons already exist for this action. The need to expand lending in high risk urban areas — which can only occur if more headroom is made available — further strengthens the case."

MORTGAGE INTEREST ceilings exist in 32 states.

Brimmer said requirements of higher down payments, resulting in lower loan-to-value ratios, also would help reduce the risks of inner city mortgages, because the owners would have a larger equity to protect.

But the risks involved in mortgages on some inner city properties are so high that this technique alone would not be practical, he said.

"The level (of equity) required to reduce risks to normal in some areas is probably so high that demand for sufficiently high downpayments would keep the amount of loans close to zero or at extremely low levels," Brimmer said.

Surface preparation key to painting over varnish

Herman Baum

The house doctor

Dear House Doctor: We live in an old, two-story house and have a problem. The white paint on the woodwork in all nine rooms is showing thousands of cracks which are magnified by the dark stained woodwork beneath. We have tried repainting with several different paints but the results are the same. The floors are covered with wall-to-wall carpet which makes the use of a paint remover seem complicated. M.J.C.

A. Someone, probably a former occupant of the house, made a real blunder. Surely no professional painter would do such a thing.

It seems a good guess that this woodwork was originally painted with high-gloss varnish stain which produced the dark color that shows through the cracks. Neither paint nor varnish will properly adhere to this surface without special treatment.

First, let's explain what should have been done. The gloss must be removed from the surface to provide "tooth" to which the fresh paint or enamel will adhere. No treatment for accomplishing this is better than sanding. If you do it by hand, use the special type sandpaper that is applied with water. It cuts faster than a dry paper. If considerable surface is to be refinished, it will pay you to buy an electric vibrating type or orbital sander to speed the work.

Another possibility is to use a special product available at paint stores. It is applied to the surface and then painted over within a few minutes. This material is intended to momentarily soften the surface of the varnish so that it bonds with the new finish. We have found that it works well on some varnished surfaces, but not on all.

In your home, the preferred procedure is to remove all of the paint and varnish down to bare wood and then start over. A professional painter would burn the paint off, but I cannot recommend this method to the homeowner because of the danger involved.

Paint will not cover those small cracks, so they must be filled with spackling compound. Buy the ready mixed type which is superior to the powder. Press it into the cracks with a putty knife and sandpaper the surface when dry. Wipe away the dust and you are ready for painting.

If the white finish now on the woodwork is a gloss enamel, follow the first procedure in addition to filling the cracks.

OUTPATIENTS' CLINIC

Mrs. G.W.C. — Insulating batts are best for your purpose for insulating the attic. Place these between the floor joists with the vapor barrier side down. This barrier prevents moisture forming in the batts.

S.M. — A company that makes mirrors can polish out the scratches in the glass table top, but you will probably find it less costly to buy new glass.

P.L.S. — Rent a wallpaper steamer for removing the flocked paper from the walls. The rental company will explain its operation.

Dear House Doctor: We had our house painted by a professional painter. We now see black stains appearing on one side that is protected by trees. Please explain. Mrs. T.W.C.

A. Mildew forms on the shaded side of the house and shows as these dark stains. There is no permanent preventive, but a chemical can be added to the paint to prolong the time before it appears.

You can wash these stains off by using a mixture of three quarts water, one quart laundry bleach, three ounces trisodium-phosphate and one ounce laundry detergent. Wear rubber gloves when using this.

We have a bulletin that explains the treatment of mildew on many surfaces. A copy is available by sending 20 cents in coin (no stamps or checks please) and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The House Doctor in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Ask for Bulletin No. D-4. We must have the stamped return envelope to fill your order.

Dear House Doctor: We must rebuild the chimney and fireplace in our 200-year-old home. We understand that fireplaces are very inefficient. Considering the cost of fuel, what do you suggest? J.A.C.

A. It would be difficult to name anything less efficient than a fireplace, but they do have a charm on cold winter days. I suggest you consider installing a Franklin stove. It provides greater efficiency and still retains some of the appeal of a fireplace.

Dear House Doctor: The finish on the bathtub in our home is in very bad condition. I have seen advertisements in the paper about reglazing. We are on a pension and cannot afford to spend much. R.J.G.

A. I have had no personal experience with the re-glazing process, but I have never received a complaint from a reader that the work was unsatisfactory. You can expect to pay about $150 for the work, but this is less than half the cost of a new tub surrounded by tiled walls.

Dear House Doctor: Over the Christmas holidays a guest placed a cigarette on a brand new $250 coffee table, causing a big circular burn. Is there any way to repair this? J.M.C.

A. Someone should ask the Surgeon General to change the wording on cigarette packages to read, "Cigarette smoking may be dangerous to your health and furniture."

After scraping away any burned wood, the area can be patched with a product called lacquer stick. This is melted against a hot knife blade and smoothed into place. Colors to match all wood finishes are available.

Considering the cost of the table, though, it would be better to have a furniture refinisher make the repair.

Before you dig, give Bell a jingle

Pick up the phone before you pick up that shovel — the telephone cable you uproot may be your own, warns Illinois Bell.

Whether you're excavating for a building foundation or transplanting a tree, your digging can interrupt vital telephone service to hospitals, fire and police departments. Illinois Bell advises contractors and homeowners to check the location of buried cables before breaking ground.

Illinois Bell has more than 39 million miles of wire in underground cable. It is practically immune to wind, snow, sleet and gnawing animals. But power shovels, drills, pile drivers and trenching tools — even garden spades — can do plenty of harm.

CARELESS DIGGERS damaged nearly 2,900 Illinois Bell cables last year, disrupting phone service to thousands of customers and causing $678,000 in damage. The damaged cables included 692 located in suburban Cook County. Business firms lost sales from interrupted communications and emergency phone arrangements had to be made for vital public services.

In some cases, diggers received bills from the telephone company for damage they caused to telephone cables.

In Cook County communities, a call to Illinois Bell's repair service bureau — 611 — will help avoid damage. There is no charge for this service.

Backyard gardeners should be especially careful to avoid nicking the buried phone cables and service wires that have replaced poles and aerial wires in many newer neighborhoods. The service wire from a phone cable terminal to the house usually runs about 18 inches underground.

If a cable is near a digging area, Illinois Bell will send out an employee to mark its location. Telephone company engineers meet with builders and contractors who are planning major jobs such as highways and housing developments. Whenever you're putting around in the subsoil, Illinois Bell asks that you not touch that shovel until you're certain it won't cut a telephone wire.

On the move

Margaret Kioeff

MARGARET KIOEFF joined the staff of Realty World-Falkanger Realty as a sales associate. Mrs. Kioeff has been associated with the firm's appraisal department for the last year.

Mrs. Kioeff has been active in the civic affairs of Mount Prospect, where she resides with her husband Don and sons Don and Dave. She has served on the board of the League of Women Voters, as PTA president of the local elementary school and as a volunteer teacher's aide.

Mrs. Kioeff enjoys community involvement as well as bridge, sewing and home decorating projects.

Realty World-Falkanger Realty announced the addition of LINDA CARLSON to the sales staff. Mrs. Carlson attended Harper College and comes to Realty World with a two-year background in consumer finance. She resides with her husband Richard in Arlington Heights.

Disasters keep Red Cross busy

More than 41,000 families suffered losses from floods and tornadoes recently in Appalachia and the Southeast, and the American Red Cross has set up 85 disaster shelters to provide emergency assistance to these persons.

Although survey efforts were hampered by high water and bad weather, reports indicated that relief operations will be extensive and expensive, because nearly 27,000 homes were destroyed or damaged.

More than 180 Red Cross disaster specialists were assigned to a five-state area to supplement efforts of local Red Cross volunteers in providing food, clothing and shelter. Churches, schools and armories were pressed into service as mass shelters to care for the thousands forced from their homes, and Red Cross nurses provided health care at these locations.

MOST OF THE affected states received a presidential declaration as disaster areas, which means victims will be eligible for federal loans and other assistance. This does not diminish the scope of Red Cross services, however, because most Red Cross aid goes to cover immediate concerns — when the need is greatest.

As of April 11, the Red Cross had already spent or committed more than $1 million for these basic emergency needs.

According to Michael S. Reeves, chairman of disaster services for Red Cross in Chicago, "Red Cross disaster relief funds are dangerously low, both locally and nationally. Last year's major disasters, including a typhoon in Guam and the Teton Dam break in Idaho, exhausted our national reserve funds for disaster assistance."

"We desperately need financial support from the American people to continue the Red Cross role of disaster relief," Reeves said.

Interested persons may send a check to Red Cross Disaster Fund, 43 E. Ohio St., Chicago 60611. All Red Cross aid to disaster victims is free.

Win at bridge

Lawbreaker plays safe

The student was flabbergasted. It seems that the Professor had won the heart lead, led a trump to dummy's ace and finessed successfully against East's queen at trick three.

"You've told me time and time again that it is correct to play to drop the queen when you have nine cards in a suit. I know your finesse worked, but why did you take it?"

"For the simple reason that I didn't care how the finesse came out. I was going to be sure of my contract if it lost or if it won."

The professor was right as always. If the finesse had lost, the defense would win that trick, ope heart and the ace of diamonds. Eventually the Professor would have ruffed his last two diamonds with dummy's last two trumps and made his game. After the finesse succeeded the Professor still made only four because he had to lose a low diamond at the finish.

If the Professor had played out his ace and king of spades, East would have been left with the good queen. He would cash it when he got in with the ace of diamonds and the Professor would have wound up one trick short.

Ask Andy

Four-part cow stomach does the work

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Angela Horner, 13, of Ashford, Wash., for her question:

HOW DOES THE COW'S STOMACH WORK?

In the Mediterranean area many people drink goat's milk while in large sections of Asia mare's milk is used extensively. Egyptians and Arabs drink camel milk. Eskimos and Laplanders drink the milk of reindeer. Here in North America, cow's milk is an important item found on almost every menu.

There's a popular question that asks: How can a brown cow eat green grass and produce white milk? The answer is actually rather simple because the cow has a four-part stomach that helps to turn grass and hay into nourishing milk.

Domestic milk cows have rather small heads but large jaws and teeth which are used for chewing grass and hay. There are no teeth at the end of the upper jaw but instead this part of the jaw is covered with a tough membrane like a pad. The incisor teeth at the end of the lower jaw press against this pad so that the cow pulls off, rather than cuts off, the hay and grass it eats while grazing.

When a cow is standing or lying under a tree and is munching, it is said to be chewing its cud. Food that was swallowed when the cow was grazing is forced back into its mouth in small balls or "cuds." After chewing the cud, the cow swallows the food again and it passes to the next chamber of the stomach. The process is repeated a number of times.

This rechewing of food by the cow is known as rumination and it takes place only when the cow is resting, not while it is grazing.

Cattle have been useful to man for many hundred years. It is said that they descended from the prehistoric ox which is closely related to the buffalo, bison and yak. When Columbus came to America on his second trip from Spain in 1493, he brought with him the continent's first cattle.

Farmers have improved cattle since the middle of the 18th Century by selective and scientific breeding of the cow. The milk-giving features were stressed so that today's dairy cow is truly a master in the art of producing milk.

Louis Pasteur, the French scientist, discovered harmful bacteria in milk could be eliminated by heating the milk to a certain temperature and then, after a short time, cooling it rapidly. Now most milk is given this treatment — it's called pasteurization — and it is then quickly sealed into clean bottles or cartons so new germs cannot get in.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Debbie Lehman, 9, of Milwaukee, Wis., for her question:

WHAT IS OZONE?

Ozone is a form of oxygen and can be produced by passing an electrical discharge through oxygen. Lightning is a natural means of producing ozone. It is also found in the upper atmosphere, being produced when ultraviolet sunlight hits oxygen.

The ozone produced in the atmosphere is occasionally wafted down into the earth's lower atmosphere by convection currents. Only minute quantities are in the air that man breathes, however, and in these small amounts the gas can give an invigorating touch to the air.

Ozone is different from ordinary oxygen because the molecule has three atoms of oxygen instead of two. It is chemically active because the extra atom of oxygen is loosely held and combines readily with substances.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Getting ready to move? These tips may help you

If May 1 is moving day for you — as it will be for thousands of others — there is a lot you should be doing now besides scrounging around for cartons to pack your belongings. How well you plan and organize the move will determine where you will land on a continuum between casual and chaos.

Here are some tips to make moving easier for apartment dwellers from William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the management division of Baird & Warner Inc.

- Check with the building manager to see when the apartment is available. "If it's free early and the manager agrees you can use the extra time for some preliminary house cleaning, moving a few items that you won't entrust to others, and planning furniture arrangements," Sally said. "But be sure your new apartment is vacant before your moving day," he warns. "The present occupants may be having moving problems and the result can be mass confusion."

- Contact a professional mover immediately, if you are using one. They are usually booked weeks in advance. May 1 may be booked solid. Suburban lease terminations are generally more staggered and may be less of a problem. Some apartment complexes also have a moving coordinator on the management staff, who should be notified. You may need to work out an alternate moving day. It's a good idea to keep the moving company and managers or moving coordinator at your new and old building fully informed of your moving plans.

- If you do your own moving, pin your friends down as early as possible and pick a time that will enable you to get maximum manpower — or you may find your "crew" out fishing, Sally said. He said that in peak periods equipment agencies that rent trucks, trailers, and haulers often are booked solid.

"Advance arrangements also are necessary if you need a special car attachment for a trailer," he said.

- Whether you employ movers or not, there are moving conditions you must consider. Be aware of the elevator situation and the proper building entrance to use. Many buildings have time restrictions on elevators used for furniture and ask that only certain entrances be used.

"Most elevator buildings have freight elevators or special padding for passenger elevators," Sally said. "It is important to schedule these well in advance of your move. Be sure to allow enough time to complete your move."

Continued Sally: "Find out who at your new apartment building is responsible for the special elevator keys or padding and where they will be on moving day. Sometimes the building engineer is off on weekends or he may be at another building when your furniture arrives." Waiting time for movers is very expensive, he added.

- Prepare a checklist of things to change. "Notify the post office, utilities, and phone company a month or so before the move to assure service at the new address," Sally said.

"Don't forget delivery services, such as newspapers, milk, laundry, etc. Fill out the change-of-address forms in your magazines, record clubs, business bulletins, etc. and mail. Change-of-address cards are available free at any post office. Don't forget your voter registration notification."

You may also wish to develop a "pick up" list to remind you to check the local dry cleaners, shirt laundry, film processing studio, fur storage firm, etc. Add to this list all the items you have loaned to others or have borrowed.

- You should have measured all doors and access ways at the new apartments before you signed the new lease to make sure your furniture will fit. "Now, using these measurements, it might be wise to draw up a floor plan of your new apartment to simplify furniture placement," Sally said.

- Practice "priority packing" procedures. If you pack your own things, you should number and identify the contents of individual boxes.

"This will save time," Sally added, "when you unpack in your new apartment. 'K' boxes go to the kitchen; 'BR' bedroom and so on. Boxes should be numbered in the order to be opened at the new place. Be sure to write your name on each to avoid confusion."

- Light bulbs? Yes, bring along any extra light bulbs. Occasionally the former tenant in your new apartment will be a bulb-snatcher and will leave you in the dark. Check with your new manager on the policy toward bulb replacement.

"Also, be sure to check the location of your new fuse box," Sally said. "Most newer buildings will have circuit breaker boxes, and this fuse replacement is eliminated. You should know what to do if the lights go out."

- Don't overload your wiring. If you add wiring and outlet notations to your scaled-down floor plans, you could vary your lamp and appliance placement in advance and avoid overloading any particular room circuit.

- Clean up your old apartment. Said Sally: "Just as you wouldn't like to move in on someone else's mess, think of the person who's moving into your old apartment. Leave a clean apartment behind you or it may cost you part of your security deposit."

- Check on carton disposal. Before you unpack, check with your apartment manager on the best way to dispose of your old packing cartons.

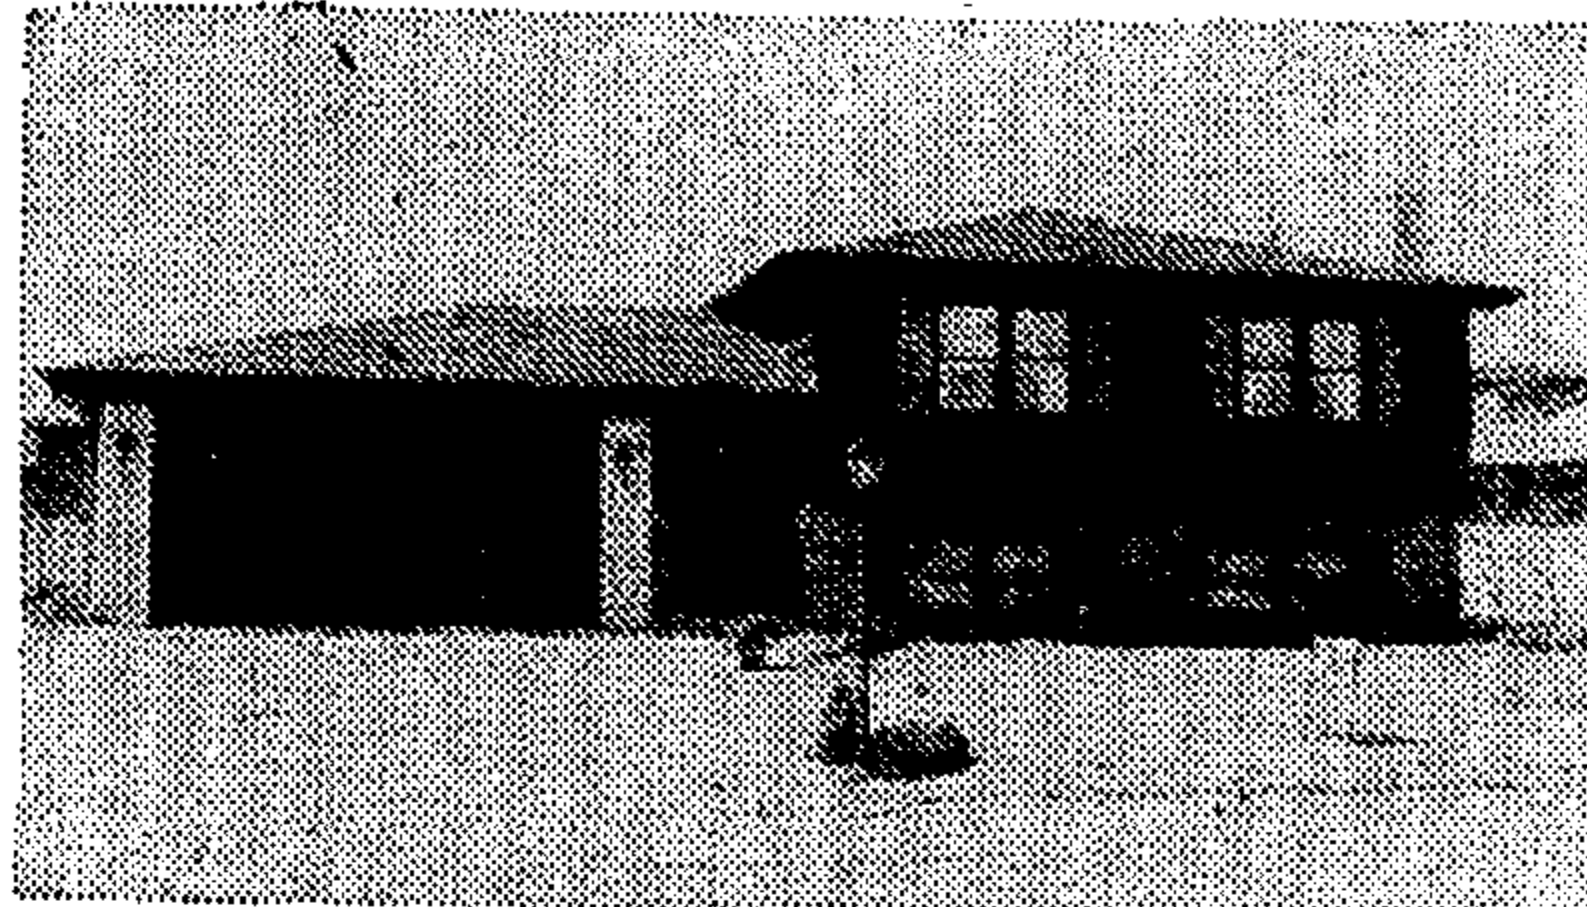

"Most apartment managements have special packing carton disposal rules that differ from the ordinary disposal of garbage," Sally said. "Check with the manager or building engineer and start off your tenancy on the best foot."

- Organize all segments throughout your moving activity on a series of checklists.

"It may take a little extra time at first," Sally said, "but saves more time in the long run by eliminating duplication of effort."

Soderholm's bat boosts White Sox past Angels

From Herald Wire Services

ANAHEIM — Eric Soderholm keyed the Chicago White Sox against the California Angels and Nolan Ryan Wednesday night.

The White Sox beat the Angels, 3-2. Chris Knapp, on the mound for Chicago, walked a man an inning through the first six frames and had yielded four hits but was able to pretty well control the potent heart of the Angel lineup . . . Bobby Bonds, Don Baylor and Joe Rudi.

Ryan issued his sixth walk in the top of the seventh.

Through five innings the Sox maintained a 2-1 lead as Angel ace Ryan and Chicago's Knapp remained locked in a shaky pitcher's duel.

SODERHOLM HIT safely in each of his first three appearances at the plate and figured in the scoring on each occasion. His second-inning single to right drove home Jim Spencer, who had walked, to put the White Sox on the board.

In the fourth inning Soderholm led off with a base hit, advanced on Chet Lemon's single and a walk to Tim Lincecum and was forced home when Ralph Garr drew a bases loaded walk off Ryan.

Soderholm stroked his second homer of the season with two outs and the bases empty in the fifth.

A miscue on Soderholm off the bat of Bruce Bochte to open the fourth led to an Angel score. Dan Briggs then reached on an infield hit, Andy Etchebarren walked to load the bases and Jerry Remy unloaded a sacrifice fly to left.

can League Wednesday, Oakland dropped Milwaukee, 4-2, the Yankees beat Toronto, 7-5, Detroit tipped Boston, 3-2, Baltimore tamed Cleveland, 7-2 and Minnesota shaded Kansas City, 3-2.

The drought is finally over — for both Don Gullett and the New York Yankees.

Gullett got eighth-inning relief help from Sparky Lyle in breaking the Yankees' five-game losing streak with a 7-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays to gain his first American League triumph.

Gullett, now 1-2, yielded nine hits, walked four and struck out three and was supported by the highest run and hit output this season by the Yankees, who unleashed a 14-hit assault on three Blue Jay pitchers after Billy Martin pulled his batting order out of a hat.

Willie Randolph hit a solo homer and Reggie Jackson and Mickey Rivers each drove in two New York runs.

RICH MCKINNEY, a non-roster player who earned a spot on the A's at the last moment, snapped a 2-2 tie with his third homer of the season in the sixth to lift Oakland past the AL East-leading Brewers.

Mike Torrez went the distance to gain his third triumph in as many decisions and bring Oakland up to 8-4, while Jerry Augustine took his first loss after two victories and Milwaukee fell to 7-3.

RUSTY STAUB and rookie Steve Kemp slugged solo home runs to support the combined eight-hit pitching of three Detroit pitchers as the Tigers snapped a three-game losing streak.

Staub belted his in the third inning to give the Tigers a 2-1 lead while Kemp blasted his solo shot 390 feet into the bullpen. Vern Riffe gained his second victory against one loss with eighth inning relief help from Steve Foucault and John Miller.

Doug DeCinces and rookie Eddie Murray each slugged a two-run homer to spark the Orioles behind the pitching of rookie Scott McGregor. The Orioles knocked out $2.3 million ex-teenmate Wayne Garland for their fifth straight victory.

SOLO HOME runs by Larry Hise, Dan Ford and Craig Kusick plus a club record-tying five double plays carried the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Kusick lofted his second homer of the season over the left field wall with two out in the eighth inning against Mark Littell to break a 2-2 tie. It was the first hit in five games this year off the ace Kansas City reliever and dropped his record to 1-1.

Hise and Ford hit back-to-back homers in the third off Royals' starter Paul Splittorff. However, Kansas City closed to 2-1 in the bottom of the inning on a single by Hal McRae, a groundout and an error by shortstop Roy Smalley on Amos Otis' grounder.

'Twiggy'

Charles Oscar Hartenstein is alive and well

The image and memories of the time are about as faded now as the leather of his travel bag.

Ten years ago Charles Oscar Hartenstein was the darling ace of the Cubs bullpen. He was an integral part of a team on its way up, a team that had begun to catch the fancy of a town starving for a winner. His teammates called him "Twiggy," because of his slender build and the name stuck.

A lot has happened to Twiggy since then and some might even say his career has been all downhill. But after six years in the minors, Chuck Hartenstein, now 35 years old, has a new lease on life with a new team, the Toronto Blue Jays.

"NAW, HARDLY anybody calls me Twiggy anymore," said Hartenstein, fresh from the shower after going five strong innings against the White Sox. "Most of the people who knew me back then have died — of old age."

The quick dry wit is still there, but the hair is a little thinner and he's a few pounds heavier. The engaging smile and down home country friendliness is still there too, even after six years of beating the bushes in the minor leagues, trying to prove he could still pitch in the big leagues.

Hartenstein only really had the one big year, the 1967 season when he was 9-5 with a 3.08 earned run average and 10 saves for the Cubs. The next year was split between the Cubs and Triple A ball in Tacoma.

After that, 1969 and 1970 were spent with Pittsburgh where he was 5-4 in relief in 1969, appearing in 56 games. But in 1970 he saw action in only 17

MUSTANG METTLE. Rolling Meadows tennis player Mustangs travel to Elk Grove today and play in the Dave Boha is all business during a match. The Mustangs Addison Trail Invitational Saturday.

READY TO ROLL. Steve Stiert, veteran Rolling Meadows hurler is slated to pitch today when the Mustangs visit Fremd for a makeup contest. The senior righty will be seeking his third straight over-all win of the young season.

Rain makes it unofficial for Phillies' crafty Carlton

by ART MUGALIAN

When Abner Doubleday invented the rain-check he must have been thinking about Chicago in April.

Wrigley Field, drenched in 77-degree sunshine at game time Wednesday, was barely an hour later deluged by a downpour of near-Biblical proportions, flooding the visitors' dugout and sending a sparse crowd of fans scurrying for cover.

It also washed away any ideas that Philadelphia lefthander Steve Carlton might have had concerning sneaking out of town with a tainted 2-1 victory. The veteran hurler, a 20-game winner last season for the third time, needed just three more Cub outs to make the game kosher when the rains came. He didn't get them.

THE UMPIRES WAITED one hour, and 23 minutes before calling the game, although at one point during the delay the rain stopped long enough for the ground crew to remove the protective tarp from the field for a few encouraging moments.

Carlton, 1-1 this season, allowed two hits in four innings of work. Two walks in the third inning and single by Ivan DeJesus produced the only run off the crafty southpaw. But a double by Jerry Morales in the fourth was wasted when Steve Ontiveros' sinking liner was converted into a snazzy double play by rightfielder Jay Johnstone.

"We were fixing to take the lead in the fifth," quipped Cub cleanup hitter Bobby Murcer. "Carlton wasn't pitching the way I remembered him. He was throwing a lot more breaking balls today."

CUB MANAGER Herman Franks, however, went out of his way to draw the umpires' attention to the falling rain as the bottom of the fifth was about to begin. First batter Steve Swisher was still in the dugout when Carlton was ready to pitch.

"Heck, if I had my choice I'd have wanted to play nine," Franks said with a straight face after the rainout was official and he couldn't be held at his word.

Cub starter Rick Reuschel, 1-1, didn't seem too sharp, allowing two hits and two walks in the first and serving up a home-run pitch to Tim McCarver in the second. He gave up a line single to Greg Luzinski and two long drives to the warning track in the third before settling down.

Jose Cardenal was back in the Cub lineup Wednesday, but conspicuous by his absence was first baseman Bill Buckner, still on the bench with his sore ankle.

"He wanted a few more days off," said Franks.

A LOSS WOULD have dropped the Cubs into the Eastern Division cellar but now the game will have to be replayed in its entirety the next time the Phils come to town — would you believe mid-August?

games and the next year was traded to St. Louis.

HE PITCHED only 13 innings for the Cards in 1970 and was sent packing to Boston for the 1971 campaign. But again, he pitched only 17 innings for all season and was released.

That started his six-year climb back to the majors, a climb that probably would have fallen if it had not been for expansion and Toronto manager Roy Hartsfield, who managed Hartenstein in Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League and brought him to the Blue Jays last November.

"I don't know what kept me going, stubbornness and determination, I guess. And I needed just two more months up here to qualify for a pension," he said. "I'm the stubborn SOB you'll ever see."

Hartenstein pitched six years in the PCL, two with Tucson, two with Phoenix, then two more with Hawaii. During the past two seasons he's won a total of 17 and lost seven, with an ERA of around 3.00 and 12 saves. Both years, Hawaii won PCL titles.

IT'S BEEN A financial struggle. Hartenstein's wife, Joyce, teaches school back in Austin, Tex. to help pay the bills and he sells real estate in the winter.

Byline report

Bob Gallas

"I have three at home," he'll tell you. "One teaching, two others still learning," referring to his wife and two sons, Chris, 14 and Greg, 9.

Despite his success in Triple A, Hartenstein hadn't impressed anybody enough to make them want to take a chance on a 35-year-old relief pitcher who had been unconditionally released by his last major team six years ago.

But Hartsfield, who had managed at Hawaii and had picked up Hartenstein two years earlier, was named manager of the Blue Jays last year after 15 seasons in the minors. Hartsfield thought enough of Hartenstein's ability to bring him to Toronto. But the sentiment stopped right there.

CHARLIE MADE this club on his own, not on the past two years," said Hartsfield, who twice salvaged Hartenstein from total oblivion.

"I'd seen him pitching for Phoenix. They released him for a lot of reasons but because of his age more than anything else. We picked him up at Hawaii and used him in short relief," Hartsfield said.

"Charlie's a very intelligent person. He makes the most of his ability. He does not beat himself. The other guy has to go out and beat HIM. He also has uncanny control of the pitches he has."

"Unfortunately in this game, if you get an unconditional release, there's a stigma attached. People won't give you a chance, even though you fit their needs."

HARTENSTEIN'S season last year accurately portrays the frustrations of his past six years. He started the season owned by the Hawaii club, then the Pacific Coast league when the team filed for bankruptcy, then the Hawaii club again, then the San Diego Padres, who paid off the debts of the Hawaii club and was given Hartenstein as "payment," since he was a club asset. The Padres eventually sold him to the Blue Jays.

So far, things have gone well this year for Hartenstein. He pitched 7 2/3 innings of relief during the three-game series against the White Sox and gave up only one run. His memories of last season, including the missed paychecks when the Hawaii team went bust, are fading fast. His gratitude to Hartsfield is not.

"Yea, if it hadn't been for him, I probably wouldn't be here."

"I never could impress anybody."

Joe McConnell new Bears' radio voice

Radio sports announcer Joe McConnell of Indianapolis will handle the radio broadcasts of Bears' football games next season over station WBBM.

The Bears will name McConnell at a news conference Wednesday to replace veteran Jack Brickhouse.

McConnell, 38, works for WIBC radio in Indianapolis and handled the broadcasts of the Indiana Pacers of the National Basketball Association. Prior to that he did the play-by-play of the football games of the Minnesota Vikings for six years and was an announcer for the Phoenix Suns for two years.

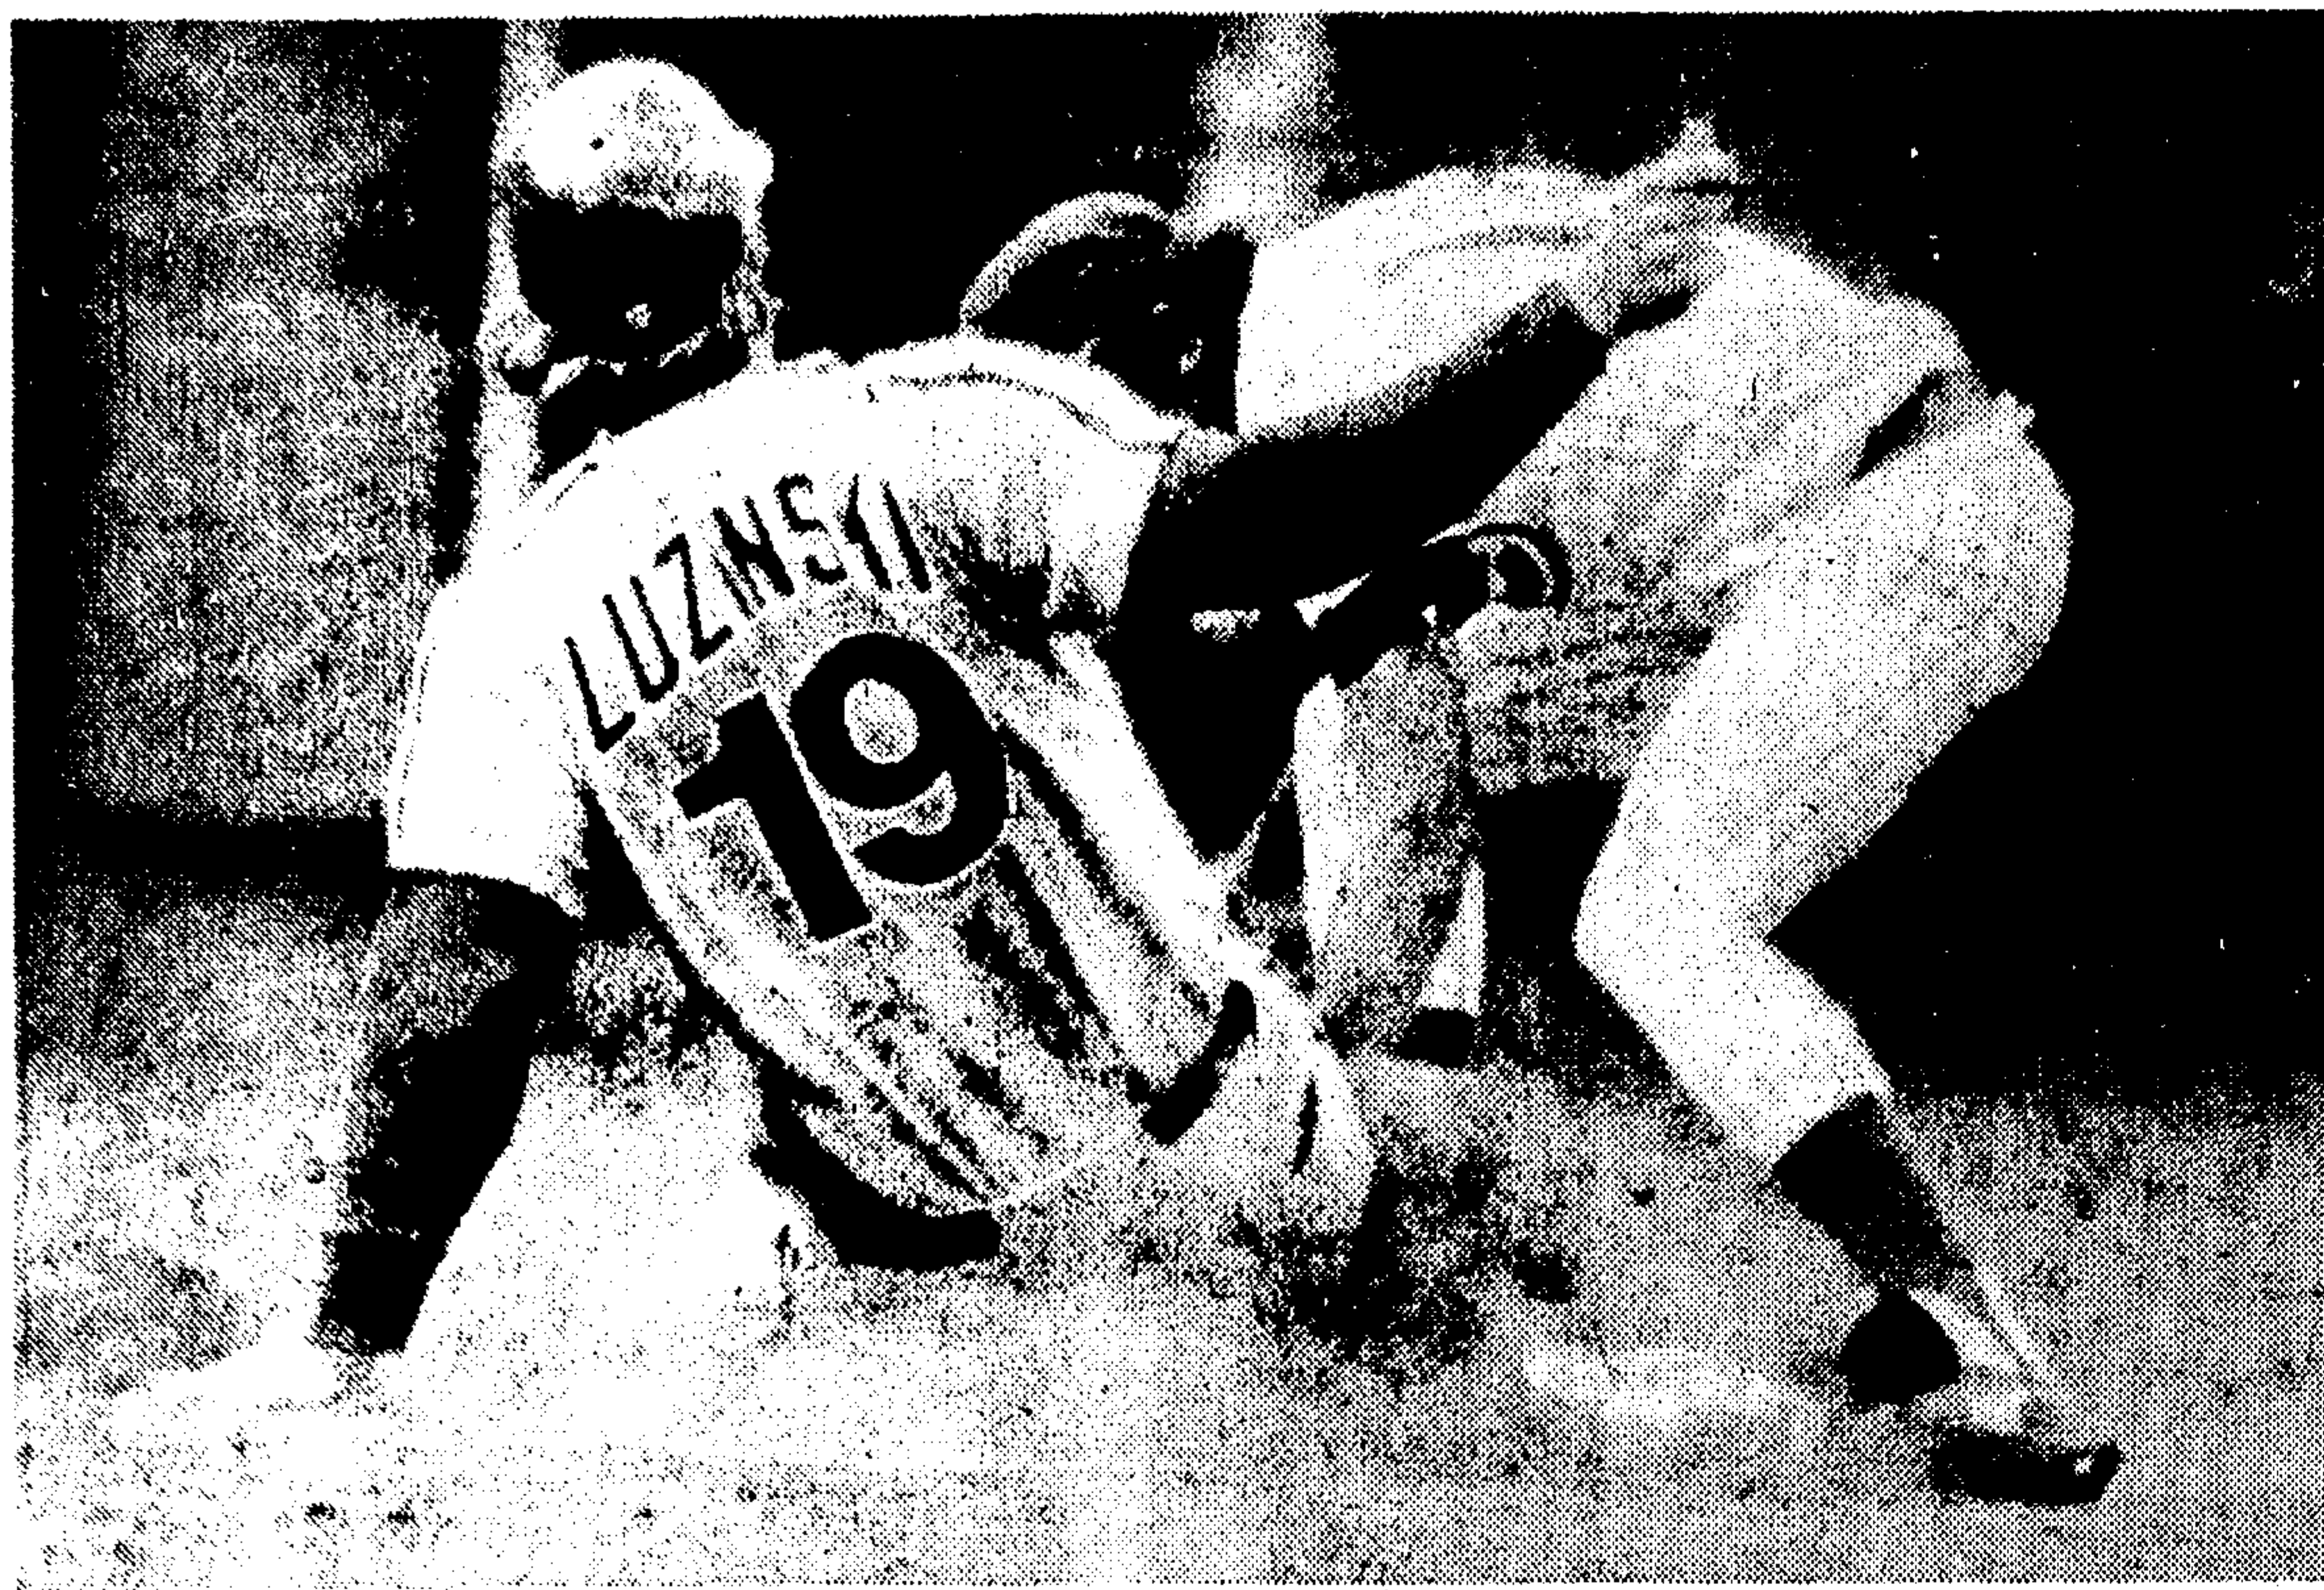

WBBM, a CBS network-owned station, was awarded radio rights to the Bears in February, ending a 24-year relationship between the Chicago team and station WGN.

Brickhouse, a WGN executive, and Chicago Sun-Times columnist Irv Kupcinet had broadcast the Bears games for many years.

SPIT BALL. Chicago Cub pitcher and Arlington Heights resident Rick Reuschel loads one up, but it's during a bunt attempt and not while he was on the mound. There was enough moisture Wednesday without anyone throwing spitballs as rain postponed the game between the Cubs and Philadelphia with the Phillies leading, 2-1, after 4 1/2 innings of play.

MANNY THANKS. Greg Luzinski, of Prospect Heights, slides into the waiting tag of Cub Manny Trillo during unsuccessful steal attempt. The game was washed out in the bottom of the fifth with the Philadelphia Phillies leading the Cubs, 2-1.

Girls softball action features full card today

by BOB GALLAS

League play in Mid-Suburban League girls softball gets into high gear with a full card of crossover games today, weather permitting.

Rolling Meadows visits Palatine, Hoffman Estates hosts Buffalo Grove, Conant ventures to Arlington, Elk Grove is at Fremd, Schaumburg at Hersey and Forest View at Wheeling. All games start at 4:30 p.m.

Defending champs are Fremd in the South and Hoffman Estates in the North, but most coaches agree that those two schools will be pressured in their attempts to repeat.

"I'm sure Forest View will be tough," said Hoffman coach Donna Korda, whose 15-1 team of last year has been virtually wiped out by graduation, move-outs and injury. "Pitching will be the key to our success. We have some young pitchers who are close and how they develop will make the difference," said Ms. Korda, who has only three returning letter winners to work with.

Forest View, with an early 6-0 record, will start only one senior but has plenty of depth. Led by senior pitcher Nancy Lachus, who's already 3-0, coach Al Beard's Falcons are looking to improve their 5-1 conference records and second place finishes the last two years in a row.

The South should be the stronger of the two divisions this season with Conant and Prospect also in the race for the division title.

In the North, things are a little more up for grabs. Hersey was given a chance early in the season, along with Fremd and possibly Buffalo Grove, for a division title. But Arlington knocked off Hersey in the Forest View tourney and Arlington coach Mary Whelpton thinks her team will also be in the running. The Cards are 3-1 on the young season with its only loss coming in a 7-4 decision against Forest View in the title game of that tourney.

A full round of crossover contests are also scheduled for Saturday before division play starts Tuesday.

Red-hot Dodgers homer Reds into defeat, 3-1

Home runs by Dave Lopes and Ron Cey plus the seven-hit pitching of ace Don Sutton powered Los Angeles to a 3-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday, extending the Dodgers' winning streak to seven games.

Lopes' homer, his first of the season, led off the first inning for Los Angeles. The Dodgers maintained the lead until the fifth when Ken Griffey slammed an RBI double with Cesar Geronimo aboard.

Los Angeles came right back, however, when Cey connected off starter and loser Fred Worman (0-1) to give the Dodgers the 3-1 victory.

IN OTHER National League action, Ted Simmons ripped a three-run homer off loser Jon Matlack in the sixth to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-2 victory over the New York Mets. Eric Rasmussen picked up his first victory of the year after two losses.

Gary Carter set an Expo record with three home runs in one game, but his heroics were not enough to stop the Pittsburgh Pirates from defeating Montreal, 8-6.

Carter hit solo blasts in the second and fifth and added a two-run shot in eighth to give him four RBI's for the day. Jim Rooker gained his second victory against one loss.

In night action, Atlanta shut out San Diego 2-0 and San Francisco blanked Houston 1-0.

JEFF BURROUGHS hit his fifth homer of the year and Andy Messersmith, with late-inning relief from Rick Camp — who worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth inning — led the Braves over the Padres.

Ed Halicki, Randy Moffitt and Gary Lavelle combined on a four-hitter and former Astro Rob Andrews singled home the game's only run in the eighth to give the Giants a victory over Houston. It was the Astros' fifth straight loss.

Maine East plans summer recreational cage class

Maine East High School will again hold a summer recreational basketball class for students in the sixth, seventh or eighth grades.

The course will be held in the Maine East fieldhouse and on the outdoor courts beginning Tuesday, June 21 and continuing through Friday, July 8.

The program will be from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. four days a week for the three-week period.

Fundamentals will be stressed with games and scrimmages being provided after the first week. A swim in the Maine East pool will cap each session.

The cost for all boys is $24.00. This will help defray the cost of the program and provide special equipment for all participants.

Applications can be obtained by writing Mr. Paul McClelland, Maine Township High School East, Dempster Street and Potter Road, Park Ridge, Ill. 60068, or by dropping by the athletic department of the school.

Any student who fits the age requirements is welcome regardless of the school he or she is presently attending or will be attending in the fall.

Any student who is only able to attend for one week will be allowed to participate at a cost of $8.00 per week.

Milwaukee man rolls a record in ABC tourney

RENO, Nev. — Lou Veit of Milwaukee may not wind up among the winners at this year's American Bowling Congress tourney, but he has earned a spot in the record book.

He turned in a sensational 804 series in team competition Tuesday night when he threw 20 consecutive strikes during a 263-296-245 series. That was history of the 74 ABC tourneys, top-during a 263-296-245 series. That was the best series in competition in the history of the 74 ABC tourneys, topping the previous mark of 792 set by Jack Winters of Philadelphia in doubles in 1962. Winters and two others also shared the old mark of 17 consecutive strikes.

Veit just missed a perfect 300 in game number two, coming up light on his 12th ball. The 185 average bowler freely admitted he was so nervous that he even had difficulty getting his fingers in the ball.

'He must be the biggest person in the whole world'

It may sound funny, but after four years of following his basketball career, one of the fondest memories I will retain of Brian Allsmiller occurred during the last five seconds of his final high school game.

That was the sectional championship battle at Waukegan, and at the time the verdict was settled. Buffalo Grove was out of the running for state honors even as those final moments ticked away.

A loose ball floated toward the crowd behind the Buffalo Grove net. Brian leaped high off his feet to save it, falling into the stands where the New Trier West cheerleaders were congregated.

And he disappeared from sight . . . for what seemed like an eternity.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS not immediately evident, Allsmiller had been saved from crashing into the hardwood, inadvertently, by one of the Cowboy cheerleaders.

And if the sight of a 6-8 flying Bison aimed in her direction hadn't shocked the poor girl into unconsciousness, the sheer force of 200 dive-bombing pounds surely knocked her into that state.

Down in the dressing room a short time later Jack Allsmiller — Brian's father — was on the verge of strapping his son into a straight jacket to prevent him from going back out into the crowd to check on the condition of the cheerleader. "She's going to be OK," the father explained, "She's sitting up and talking now . . . just wait until the crowd thins out and you can go up and see for yourself."

The whole incident said something important to me. First there was Brian making a desperation leap for the ball . . . an almost instinctive move by a kid who lives and loves the game and has always been willing to put just as much into it as he's been fortunate enough to take out.

AT THE SAME time, Brian has never allowed his basketball prowess to interfere with his humility off the court. And the youngster's concern for others was amply demonstrated on this evening by his wish to find out about the injured cheerleader rather than to sulk about a season gone forever.

Byline report

Keith Reinhard

Jack Allsmiller disappeared momentarily while Brian paced the locker room floor. "All right, go on up. I can see you're not ever going to take a shower and get dressed until you see how she is for yourself," the elder Allsmiller said as he came back downstairs.

After his son had gone to the gym he grinned and reiterated that the cheerleader was fine. "She told me that sure was the hard way to meet a tall, good-looking basketball player, though."

The remark broke up some of the gray in an otherwise gloomy dressing room and it reminded one sportswriter of something else Jack Allsmiller had said when the playoffs began:

"They have to play every game as well as they possibly can. And if they lose, well, it's not the end of the world. They've got to remember that no matter how successful they are, it's still just a game."

IT WAS refreshing to see someone so close to something still capable of putting it in its proper perspective. Someone had asked Brian's father once what it was like to have a super star for a son.

The reply? "Don't let him fool you. Off the court he's just an overgrown typical teenager. Too lazy sometimes. Too smart other times. And at all times ready to eat you out of house and home."

Mrs. Allsmiller offered even further insight: "Would you believe Brian was a regular Dennis the Menace-type when he was younger?"

Further conversation brought out the fact that Mom once came up with a plan to rid young Brian of his devilish ways. She told him she would call a certain law officer who would cart him off for a couple of weeks of detention and rehabilitation.

En route to the telephone, however, Mom became the victim of one perfect downfield tackle. It was that athletic ability already showing through at a very tender young age.

MR. ALLSMILLER noted how Brian made the transition from dribbling to dribbling. First there was a little hoop placed on the refrigerator, then a bigger one over the door and finally the traditional basket on the garage.

"The second basket was murder. There was a bell underneath that chimed everytime he made a shot. I don't think that tone will ever escape me."

Ding, ding, ding, ding. Silence may have been golden, but the sound signaled potential talent and it has been nurtured and encouraged ever since.

The Allsmillers have a daughter, Alison, who's also a talented athlete but Mom has drawn the line.

"If I had to go through all this recruiting business again with her, I think I'd really become a basket case."

Not really. While it's obvious that Brian has been groomed for stardom through excellent coaching over the years, his bearing on and off the court is the result of parents equipping him with an exceptionally well-balanced outlook on life.

FOR THAT reason, college, the next step in his career, will be a successful venture even if the big redhead never ties on another gym shoe.

There is another story about Brian. It was at the very beginning of his senior season, when, racked with leg pains of a still undiagnosed nature at that time, Brian helped his team win a game in the Niles West Thanksgiving tournament. He had come home afterwards and literally tumbled down the stairs in agony.

That game too was against New Trier West. And on that occasion as well, he had come back out of the locker room — not of his own design but with a smile that very well concealed his discomfort — to pose for pictures and be interviewed for cracking Ron Kozlicki's area scoring record.

I had gone to that game with my seven-year-old daughter and introduced her to Brian. In total awe she gaped upwards at the skyscraper while he grinned and said hello.

Tiffany Reinhard has been a Brian Allsmiller fan ever since. She remarked at the time: "He must be the biggest person in the whole world."

That may not be far from the truth.

Brian and Alison . . . a Dennis The Menace-type.

Father and son . . . overgrown, but typical.

Award-winning American recipes

The food that Americans enjoy when dining out is among the world's best, according to a panel of internationally renowned chefs.

The United States team of chefs, sponsored by a grant from Kraft Foodservice, recently tied with France for the overall third place award in the International Culinary Competition in Frankfurt, Germany.

Two of the U.S. dishes winning the highest acclaim were Chicken 'N Shrimps Creole and Baby Salmon in Crust "Heritage." These winning recipes can be as impressive on your table as they were in international competition.

CHICKEN 'N SHRIMPS CREOLE

- |   |                                    |
|---|------------------------------------|
| 1 green pepper, cut into julienne strips                            | 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin          |
| 1 red pepper, cut into julienne strips                              | 1/4 teaspoon thyme                 |
| 1/2 cup chopped onion   | 1/4 teaspoon allspice              |
| 1/4 cup oil   | 1/8 teaspoon Tabasco sauce         |
| 2 8 ounce chicken breasts, boned, skinned, cut into 1/2-inch strips | 1/2 cup brown sauce*               |
| 12 raw shrimp, cleaned  | 1 tomato, cut into julienne strips |
| 2 garlic cloves, minced   | 2 tablespoons chili sauce          |
| 1/2 teaspoon chili powder   | Saffron Rice Ring                  |

Saute vegetables quickly in hot oil to maintain firm texture; remove from skillet with a slotted spoon and keep warm. Saute chicken; remove from skillet. Saute shrimp; remove from skillet. Saute garlic and spices; add brown sauce, tomato and chili sauce. Add sauteed vegetables, chicken and shrimp. Spoon into Saffron Rice Ring. Garnish with sauteed okra, if desired.

SAFFRON RICE RING

- |   |                      |
|---|----------------------|
| 1/2 cup chopped scallions or green onions | 1 cup rice           |
| 1/3 cup chopped onion                     | 2 cups chicken broth |
| 2 tablespoons butter                      | Salt and pepper      |
| 1/4 teaspoon saffron                      |                      |

Saute scallions and onion in butter. Add saffron; saute for one minute. Add rice; mix well. Stir in chicken broth; bring to a boil. Cover; bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove rice from oven; season with salt and pepper. For each serving, shape 1 cup rice mixture into ring. Serves 3.

*Note: To prepare a simple brown sauce, melt 1 tablespoon butter; blend in 1 tablespoon flour. Stir over low heat until browned. Add 1 cup beef broth; bring to a boil. Simmer 45 minutes. Approximately 1/2 cup.

BABY SALMON IN CRUST "HERITAGE"

- |  |                                |
|--|--------------------------------|
| 2 chopped shallots   | 2 tablespoons bread crumbs     |
| 1/3 cup chopped onion  | 1 tablespoon dry white wine    |
| 1 cup diced mushrooms  | 1/4 cup lemon juice            |
| 1/4 cup chopped leeks or scallions                                 | 1 tablespoon fresh dill weed   |
| 1/2 garlic clove, minced   | Salt and pepper                |
| 1 teaspoon chopped parsley   | 4 4 ounce baby salmon fillets* |
| 1 tablespoon butter  | 3/4 pound puff paste           |
| Salt and pepper  | 1 egg                          |
| 1 6 ounce package (1 cup) frozen crabmeat, thawed, drained, flaked | 1 teaspoon water               |

For duxelle (mushroom seasoning), saute shallots, onion, mushrooms, leeks, garlic and parsley in butter. Season with salt and pepper. Add crabmeat, bread crumbs and wine; mix lightly. Cool duxelle well before using.

Marinate salmon in combined lemon juice and seasonings. Spread marinated salmon with 3 to 4 tablespoons duxelle. Wrap in thinly-rolled puff paste; cut into shape of a fish. Brush with combined egg and water; bake at 375 degrees 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Serves 4.

*Note: Trout fillets or boned, skinned salmon steaks may be substituted for the salmon fillets.

CORINNE McCONAGHE of Mount Prospect likes to prepare interesting but easy dishes such as these Stuffed Beef Rolls.

Interesting meals convenient, too

Gourmet cooking once held fascination for Corinne McConaghe of Mount Prospect, but now she finds that interesting menus using convenient short cuts are more practical.

Although cooking is her favorite hobby, a young baby and 9-year-old son are of primary importance, and she also has an interest in pottery and ceramics.

"Not only is time a consideration," Corinne said, "but while friends enjoyed my gourmet dishes, they weren't about to make them. Most often they ask for the recipes of less-complicated dishes."

As a nuclear medicine technologist before her marriage, Corinne took advantage of weekends to cook. Her current role as a housewife allows her more time in the kitchen to experiment, and as she always has had success with recipes, she has the confidence to try everything from Middle Eastern to Mexican fare.

ATMOSPHERE IS as important to Corinne as her menu. She emphasizes that a pretty table and fresh flowers are conducive to a good appetite. She also stresses the importance of using fresh ingredients in all recipes.

Some of her favorites come from parish cookbooks featuring tried and true recipes of homemakers. Such is her Stuffed Beef Rolls, which she changed to suit her taste.

"It is easy and economical for the family, yet will adapt itself nicely to formal dinners," Corinne said.

She wraps pieces of round steak

Byline report

Lois Seiler

around a filling of pork sausage mixed with onion and seasoned bread crumbs. After browning, the beef rolls are simmered in bouillon and beer.

"The alcohol burns off, so you'd never know there was beer in this dish, but it makes a beautiful gravy with a unique flavor," Corinne explained. The beef rolls have a subtle, spicy taste from the sausage and bread crumbs, and are elegant over cooked noodles.

AS AN APPETIZER preceding this entree, Corinne suggest deep fried shrimp balls, an unusual combination of chopped canned shrimp and water chestnuts mixed in a sherry-flavored pancake batter and deep fried. Served piping hot, they are light-textured and may be dipped in cocktail sauce or eaten plain. "They aren't too expensive either," Corinne said, "as the batter goes far and makes 2 1/2 dozen."

This good cook recommends a fresh green vegetable, such as broccoli or asparagus, as an accompaniment for the beef rolls and noodles, along with hot rolls and a molded gelatin salad.

Tuna salad features home-grown vegetables

Now that spring is here the move to the outdoors, especially weekend yard cleanup chores, is on us in earnest. It also is the time when those who have been winter-bound like to go visiting, antiquing or just strolling.

Thoughts of an "anti-inflation" garden have many poring over seed catalogues for last minute orders. It's a time to enjoy a quick lunch break, and what is better than a garden tuna vinaigrette salad that is a blend of tuna, crisp-tender cooked carrots and fresh raw zucchini.

Serve with homemade bread or rolls or oven-crisp slices of French bread and iced tea, milk or fruit juice.

GARDEN TUNA VINAIGRETTE

4 cups sliced pared carrots
1/2 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard

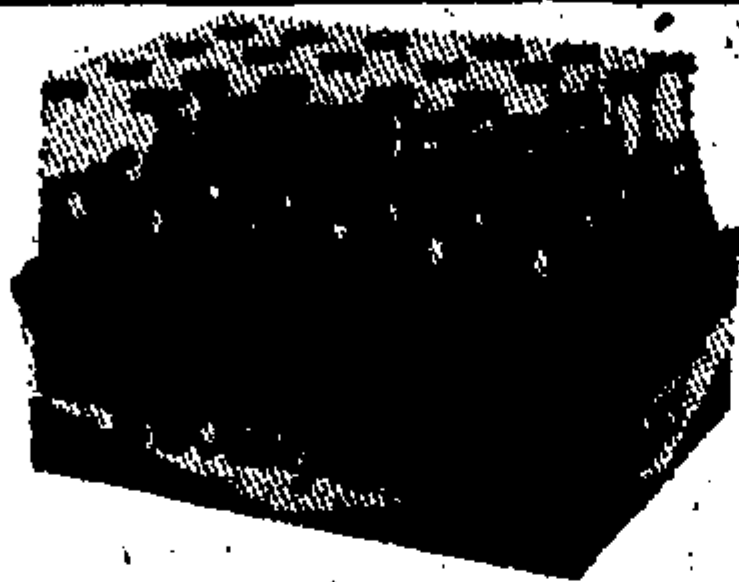

1/2 teaspoon dried leaf basil
5 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1/2 cup salad oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
2 zucchini, sliced (do not pare)

Place carrots in medium saucepan, add water. Cover and cook over medium heat 15 minutes or until crisp and tender. Drain and set aside. In large bowl combine salt, sugar, pepper, mustard and basil. Stir in vinegar, oil, lemon juice, garlic, parsley and onion. Add tuna, cooked carrots and zucchini. Cover and chill several hours. Serve with thinly sliced French bread. Serves 4 to 6.

Interesting meals use shortcuts

from refrigerator crescent dough shaped into bows and coated with a mixture of butter, Parmesan cheese and parsley. These appealing rolls can be made ahead and baked before serving.

Very popular is Corinne's Burgundy Bing Cherry Mold, which is so rich and pretty it may be served as a dessert. The tart, burgundy-flavored gelatin is complemented by a sweet and creamy topping, which may be used as a frosting or served on the side. Corinne's husband, Wally, loves this mold, and judging from the requests she has for the recipe, so does everyone who samples it.

"It's so rewarding to have guests compliment you," Corinne said. "While working with clay, sewing and upholstering is satisfying, I like the instant gratification that comes from being able to share my culinary efforts with others." Her recipes are certain to bring plaudits to anyone who gives them a try.

DEEP FRIED SHRIMP BALLS

2 cans (4½ ounces each) shrimp, drained and chopped
1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts, drained and finely chopped
2 tablespoons sherry
1 cup dry pancake mix
1 egg
¼ cup milk
Seafood cocktail sauce
Toss together shrimp, water chestnuts and sherry. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Drop by rounded teaspoonsful into hot vegetable oil heated to 375 degrees and deep fry until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper and serve piping hot. Yield: 2½ dozen appetizers.

STUFFED BEEF ROLLS

12 ounces bulk pork sausage
2 tablespoons chopped onion

¼ cup seasoned bread crumbs
2 pounds thinly sliced round steak, cut in 8 pieces
6 small round white onions
¼ cup flour
2 cans beer
2 beef bouillon cubes
1 pound fresh button mushrooms (optional)

Combine onion, sausage and bread crumbs and blend well. Pound meat slices; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Divide sausage evenly and spread on one side of meat slices. Roll up jelly roll style, tie with string or secure with toothpicks. Brown rolls in butter in Dutch oven or heavy iron skillet. Add whole onions and brown.

Mix flour and ½ cup beer. Pour over meat. Add remaining beer and beef bouillon cubes and stir to blend. Cover and simmer over low heat for 1½ to 2 hours. Add mushrooms and cook about 5 minutes. Serve over noodles. Serves 4.

PARMESAN BOWS

1 package (8 ounces) refrigerator crescent rolls
3 tablespoons melted butter
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
Roll each biscuit with your hands into a thin pencil shape about 8 inches long. Tie into a bow.

Combine butter, cheese, and parsley and brush each biscuit. Bake according to package directions. These can be made ahead, refrigerated and baked before serving. Yield: 8 rolls.

BURGUNDY BING CHERRY MOLD

2 small packages black cherry gelatin
1 large can pitted bing cherries
1 cup cherry juice
2/3 cup hearty Burgundy wine
2 cups boiling water
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cherry juice and wine. Mix well. Add cherries immediately. Turn into a 1½-quart mold and place in refrigerator until set.

Make the following topping the night before:
½ pint whipping cream
1 small package cream cheese
16 large marshmallows, cut into small pieces
Place cream and cheese in a bowl. Add cut marshmallows and let stand in covered bowl overnight.
Just before serving, beat ingredients and frost mold as you would a cake, or serve this mixture in a bowl on the side (or in the center) of gelatin mold.

We're sorry -- again!

We did it again. When Sugar 'n Spice first ran a recipe for All-Bran Dinner Rolls on April 7, we had no idea of what we were getting into. A typographical error caused the ¾ cup of sugar to be listed twice. And after receiving several calls from confused cooks, we ran a correction. Or so we thought.

Unfortunately, the correction called for 3 cups of sugar, not ¾ cup as is really required. So we apologize again and correct our own correction. The real recipe (we hope) is as follows:

ALL-BRAN DINNER ROLLS
1 cake yeast (0.6 ounce)
1 cup lukewarm water
1 cup lard or vegetable shortening

¾ cup sugar
1½ teaspoon salt
1 cup All-Bran cereal
1 cup hot water
2 eggs, well-beaten
6 cups flour
Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water.

Pour hot water over lard, sugar, salt and All-Bran. When cool, add yeast mixture, eggs and flour and beat well. Cover and let rise about 2 hours.

Pinch off about 1 rounded tablespoon of dough at a time and place in buttered muffin tins. Let rise again. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. (Yield: approximately 42 rolls. Dough will keep in refrigerator up to 2 weeks.)

Fresh foods to delight appetites

Now that spring has sprung, grocery stores and farm stands will soon be bursting with a variety of fresh fruits and vegetables. And the green thumbs of the family will soon be pleased to present their home-grown produce on the dinner table. Although these tasty tidbits are best served raw, a little cooking never hurts, either.

FRESH VEGETABLE BAKE

6 carrots, cut in strips
3 small zucchini, cut in ¼-inch diagonal slices
1 cup cherry tomatoes
1 cup herb-seasoned croutons
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1½ cups milk
¼ cup margarine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
Cook carrots in boiling salted water about 5 minutes or until tender crisp; drain. In 1-quart shallow baking dish toss vegetables and croutons. In saucepan stir together cornstarch and milk until smooth; add margarine, salt and pepper. Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring constantly, and boil 1 minute; pour over vegetables. Sprinkle with basil. Bake in 350-degree oven 25 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Serves 6.

COOKIE CRUST FRUIT PIE

Cookie Crust Pastry:
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1½ cups apple juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ cup lemon juice
6 cups assorted sliced or cut up fresh fruit such as apples, pears, strawberries, grapes, bananas, orange sections
In saucepan mix sugar and cornstarch. Gradually stir in apple juice until smooth. Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring constantly, and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in lemon juice and rind. Cool completely. Gently fold in fruit. Turn into baked pastry shell; chill 4 hours or until set.
Cookie Crust Pastry: Stir ¼ cup margarine to soften; mix in ¼ cup sugar and 1 egg yolk. With pastry blender gradually mix in 1 cup flour until crumbs form. Press firmly into bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake in 400 degree oven about 10 minutes or until edge is browned. Cool.

Leg of lamb gives 3 meals

When you buy a fresh leg of lamb, it can be divided into three sections by the butcher so you actually have cuts for three meals. From the sirloin section, the butcher cuts two or three sirloin steaks, and then cuts off the shank to give you enough meat for a lamb stew for two. If you wish, these cuts may be frozen for later use. The remaining meat is a nice-sized roast.

Lemon, olive oil and garlic are favorites of the Greeks, who, of all the lamb-consuming people in the world, seem to enjoy lamb fixed the most ways. You, too, might like to taste lamb at its best by borrowing classic seasonings from the Greeks.

The lamb steaks are perfect for broiling. Top with herb butter, if you wish, or marinate and then broil.

GREEK STYLE LEG OF LAMB

- 1 leg of lamb (with sirloin chops and shank removed)
- 2 cloves garlic
- ¼ cup olive oil
- ¼ cup fresh lemon juice
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- 3 teaspoons oregano leaves
- Lemon wedges
- Fresh mint, if desired

Place lamb on rack in shallow roasting pan. Cut 5 slits at intervals into top of roast. Slice 1 clove garlic lengthwise into 5 pieces and insert 1 piece into each slit.

Mince remaining clove garlic; combine with oil, lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and 2 teaspoons oregano in small saucepan. Heat and stir until blended. Brush lamb with some of oil mixture. Mix remaining 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and 1 teaspoon oregano; sprinkle over lamb.

Roast in 325-degree oven about 25 minutes per pound, or until meat thermometer registers 140 degrees for medium-rare doneness. Baste meat occasionally with oil mixture. Remove lamb to heated platter and remove garlic. Garnish with lemon and mint. Serves 4.

LAMB STEW

- 1 tablespoon cooking oil
- 1 large lamb shank
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 2 tablespoons sherry
- Water
- 4 small carrots, pared and halved lengthwise
- 8 small white onions, peeled
- 4 small potatoes, peeled and halved
- Flour

Heat oil in heavy saucepan with cover. Brown lamb shank well on all sides; drain off fat. Add salt, pepper, paprika, sherry and 3 cups water. Cover and simmer about 1 hour, or until lamb is almost tender. Add vegetables and more water if needed; then cover and simmer about 1 hour longer.

Remove lamb to heated dish. Arrange vegetables around lamb and keep warm. Skim off fat and measure pan juices. Use 1½ tablespoons flour per cup of pan juices. Blend flour with enough cold water to make a smooth paste in saucepan; then gradually stir pan juices into paste. Simmer, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened, about 1 minutes. Pour gravy over meat and vegetables.

Apricot cream dessert a delicious refreshment

As a festive company dessert, this Apricot Cream Bavarian, is sure to make a hit with your friends.

This dessert has an airy, creamy texture with a subtle apricot flavor and a touch of almond. It's a refreshing dessert that will help to spark your menu.

Garnish with whipped cream and sliced almonds and serve with cookies.

APRICOT CREAM BAVARIAN

- 1 (17-ounce) can apricot halves
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- Dash salt

- 2 eggs, separated
- ¼ cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon almond extract
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- Sliced almonds, optional

Drain apricots, reserving 1/3 cup liquid. Sprinkle gelatin over liquid to soften. Puree apricots in blender or force through a sieve; combine in a large saucepan with ¼ cup sugar, salt, egg yolks, milk and softened gelatin.

Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar and gelatin are dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in almond extract. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds when dropped from spoon.

Reserve ½ cup whipped cream for garnish. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add remaining sugar while beating until stiff. Fold with cream into apricot mixture.

Spoon into 6 (2/3 cup) molds or a 4 cup mold. Chill 4 hours, or until set. Unmold onto serving plates. Garnish with reserved whipped cream and sliced almonds, if desired. Serves 6.

Make a substitute for baking powder

When you are in the midst of preparing a recipe that calls for baking powder and find you are out of it, substitute one-half teaspoon baking soda and one-half teaspoon cream of tartar for each required teaspoon of baking powder.

'Skinny dip' product for calorie counters

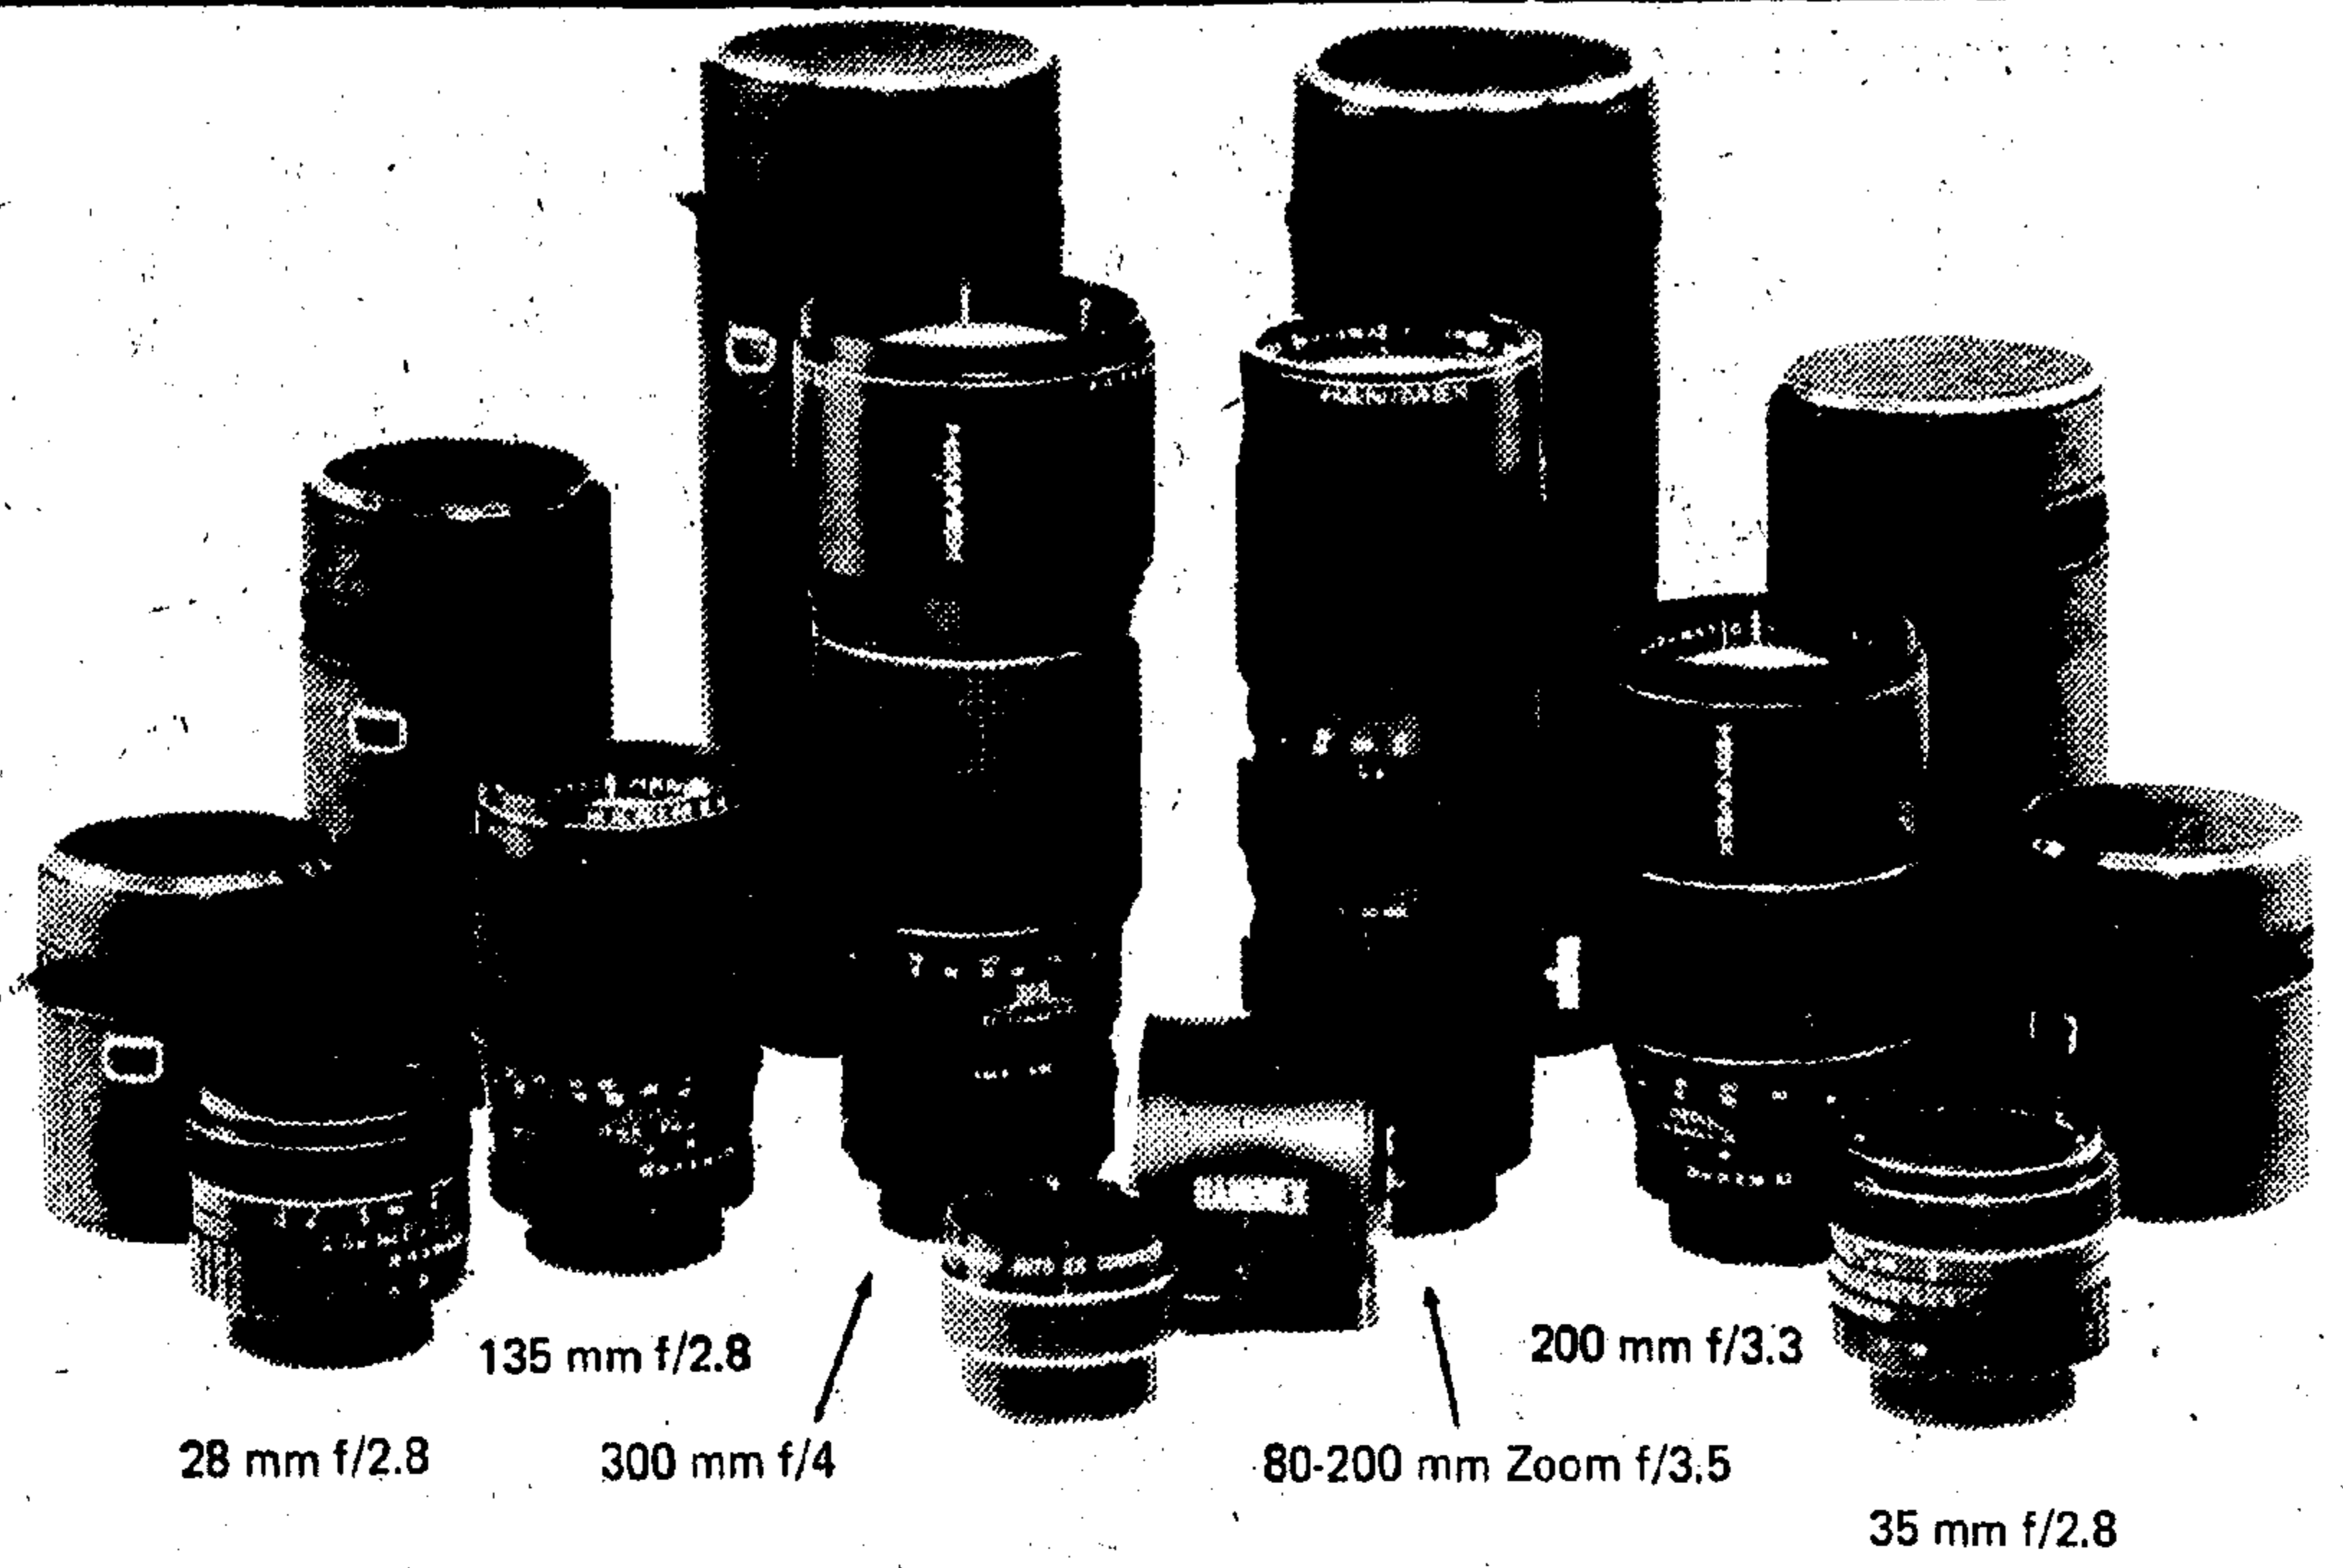

Roquefort skinny dip is a 21-calorie-per-tablespoon multi-purpose recipe for weight-conscious people from "Jane Butler's Freezer Cookbook."

Combine two to three tablespoons of skim milk in an electric blender container with one teaspoon each of worcestershire sauce and lemon juice, one cup of diet cottage cheese, three ounces of Roquefort cheese, crumbled, and one-fourth teaspoon of paprika. Process until smooth.

Serve with fresh vegetable dippers, or on hamburgers, baked potatoes or other cooked vegetables. Makes one and a half cups. Freeze in small quantities for convenience. Seal tightly and label. Thaw in refrigerator overnight. Maximum recommended freezer storage: one month. (UPI)

Chef Ronaldo provides the show along with the food

Chef serves up a show along with his omelets

by VALERIE BERG

You're finally getting around to planning that party you've intended to give for the last two years. And, like any hostess, you go through the mail-biting routine: whom to invite? Whom to place where at the table? And what to serve?

Chicken is cheap. Beef is boring. And you're not nimble enough to whip up a fancy soufflé or two. Chances are you haven't even considered omelets.

Well, Chef Ronaldo has news for you. Omelets are not only "in" for fancy dinners, but "they're fun to do and relatively easy to do," he says.

The "Omelet King," as the Wheeling-based chef-turned-caterer is nicknamed, makes his living flipping those fluffy egg delicacies. And though North Shore customers have discovered the dinner omelet, he says, "in the Northwest suburbs most people are skeptical."

"They envision two scrambled eggs on a platter," he explains. "They can't comprehend that they are filling enough for a man, but they are."

BESIDES FILLING the ravenous, omelets fill the bill from breakfast to midnight snack and everything in between. And not only are they the meal, but the entertainment as well. Chef Ronaldo puts on an ambidextrous act guaranteed to amaze the novice cook who finds cracking eggs a challenge.

"One reason omelets are sensational is that they are not only versatile, but because we cook them in front of people. In a mass production situation, you kind of build up a rhythm," he says as he cracks two eggs at a time into omelet pans, cooks them over a gas burner and flips them into the air before adding the crowning touch: a filling of mushrooms, cheese and ratatouille.

A graduate of the Culinary Institute of America and a veteran of the kitchens of such prestigious establishments as The Bakery and the Lake Shore Country Club, Chef Ronaldo has seen some changes in the party-food business in the past few years.

"In the 60s, people had a lot of money to burn, but having parties is an expensive proposition now," he says. Nowadays, he says, big parties usually are limited to special events such as weddings, confirmations and bar mitzvahs.

GATSBY THEME parties were popular in the last few years, he recalls. Parties on racketball courts, garden parties under tents, boat parties and a luau in Barrington, complete with

Gov't publications for menu-planners

If you're the menu planner in the family, you've got a lot of things to consider before you actually prepare the meal — things like how to stretch the food dollar without short-changing the family on nutrition.

Nutrition labeling on packages and cans makes your job easier, and a Food and Drug Administration pamphlet called "Read the Label — Set a Better Table" explains what is included on these labels. Understanding this information can help you find less costly but nutritional substitutes for more expensive foods.

And to help you pick the bargains, the U.S. Department of Agriculture offers "Your Money's Worth in Foods." This pamphlet includes serving yields per pound of various foods, cost-per-serving charts and other tips on cutting grocery bills.

Both publications are available for free from the Consumer Information Center. To obtain copies, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 638E (for "Read the Label — Set a Better Table") or Dept. 637E (for "Your Money's Worth in Foods"), Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

The more than 200 Federal consumer publications available are listed in the "Consumer Information" catalog published by the General Services Administration. The catalog is free and can be obtained from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Freezing safer than home canning

by JEANNE LESEM

If the recent record-setting outbreak of botulism poisoning in Pontiac, Mich., makes you reluctant to start or continue home canning this year, consider an alternative: home freezing.

Although freezing usually costs more than canning when you count escalating electricity rates for storage, home frozen food avoids the risk of botulism. And it almost invariably retains flavor, color and nutritional content better than canned.

Some costs can be offset by reusing freezer containers or recycling those from commercial food products. Well-rinsed milk cartons can be used for soups and sauces, or you can line cartons with food-grade plastic bags before filling them. Tin boxes are good for storing cookies or other delicate foods that crumble or mash easily.

THESE ARE typical tips from an excellent new freezer guide, "Jan Buttel's Freezer Cookbook" (Coward, McCann, and Geddehagan $8.95).

Among other things, it discusses the best and worst locations for freezers (kitchen and garage, in that order); nutrient losses and how to avoid them; advantages and disadvantages of various freezer wraps; why certain products do not freeze well (Meringue, milk sauces may curdle); maximum storage times for ingredients and finished or partly finished recipes; homemade dinners for one; low-calorie foods; what cheeses freeze well, and how they should be handled.

The author, a former home economist with public utility companies and major home appliance manufacturers, now is corporate vice president for consumer affairs with a major American travel company.

HER 200 RECIPES include many ethnic: Tex-Mex specialties such as homemade tamales and chile con queso, Greek cheese pastries, Swiss fondue, beef bourguignon, shoyu chicken, Armenian lamb stew. There are recipes for furred and feathered game and directions for handling game safely between the kill and the freezer.

One vegetable guide includes directions for freezing green chile peppers, a safe alternative to the improperly home canned ones that caused the Michigan outbreak of botulism poisoning. It also includes unusual vegetable varieties: Chayote (a summer squash), celery root, dasheen (taro), fresh ginger root, Jicama (a crisp, white root vegetable popular in California and the Southwest), Chinese snow peas and fresh water chestnuts or unused portions of canned ones.

In a special microwave oven chapter, a chart for blanching vegetables includes amounts to be processed at one time, the size casseroles needed and the amount of water and time.

Omelets provide both show, dinner

roast pig, have been a few of Chef Ronaldo's memorable catering experiences. Another was the recent Grand Opening open house at the Bank of Palatine, where 500 guests consumed 65 dozen eggs worth of omelets.

For those planning a catered affair, Chef Ronaldo has some suggestions. First, decide the budget for the party, then make out the guest list. After calculating these figures contact the caterer and find out what he or she can give you for the allotted money.

And for smaller at-home parties, you can always make your own omelets. If your nerves get as scrambled as the eggs, remember that even good chefs, unused to working in front of people, can miff their act. As Chef Ronaldo confides, "I make a lot of mistakes, but I'm smart enough to cover them up."

CHEF RONALDO'S OMELETS

Use 3 eggs per omelet (or egg beaters, if you are cholesterol-conscious) and add a pinch of salt, white pepper and nutmeg. (Do not add water, milk or cream.)

Melt drawn butter in an 8-inch pan over a medium flame; make sure the pan stays over the flame until the butter starts to smoke. (Drawn butter is melted butter with the sediment removed. To get it, melt butter over low heat, remove from heat and let stand a few minutes, allowing the milk solids to settle to the bottom. Skim the fat from the top and strain the clear yellow liquid into a container.)

Pour the omelet mixture into the pan and keep spreading the uncooked portion with a fork until cooked. (Chef Ronaldo uses his "secret weapon," a French fork, for this.) Flip once and place desired fillings in center of omelet, then fold halfway over. The pan must be kept hot, but do not allow the omelet to stick. ("If you do, you're doomed," he says.)

Fillings include mushrooms; Cheddar, Swiss or Gruyere cheese; ratatouille, a mixture of green pepper, onions, zucchini, tomato and eggplant; preserves; plain zucchini; and for the really adventurous gourmet, sour cream and caviar. For accompaniments, try crepes, fruit salad, asparagus, hot buttered bread and pastries. Champagne adds a nice touch.

Infant nutrition info available

In connection with the nationwide Food Day activities being held today, the Citizens for Infant and Maternal Nutrition, a Chicago organization, is offering a mid-day film, "Bottle Babies," and talks by local speakers, including Marian Tompson, president of La Leche League International, at Roosevelt University.

The group is attempting to educate mothers about breast feeding and other nutritional practices. Some studies have indicated that mother's milk offers several benefits, including immunological factors that protect the infant from a variety of infections, a reduction in the chance of infantile allergies and obesity, and essential trace minerals.

More information on breastfeeding can be obtained from the Citizens for Maternal and Infant Nutrition, 8th Day Center for Justice, 22 E. Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill. 60605, 427-4351, or from La Leche League International, 9616 Minneapolis Ave., Franklin Park, Ill. 60131, 445-7730.

New frozen dessert appliance available

A new frozen dessert appliance uses ice cubes and table salt instead of cracked ice and rock salt to make everything from ice cream and sherbet to frozen yogurt and mousses.

It resembles a blender, with an 84-watt motor in the base and a cream container and outer shell on top. It measures nine inches in diameter and 13 inches high.

The device has half-gallon capacity and an automatic shut-off and ready light.

The amount of salt mixed with the ice determines the smoothness of a dessert and the length of time needed to freeze it. The contents of a 26-ounce box of table salt is recommended for most recipes that take about 30 minutes to freeze. (UPI)

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2,488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
  - Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
  - Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
  - Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
  - Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.
- The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups.

The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

Polyester pinch possible

by LYNN ASINOF

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wear the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

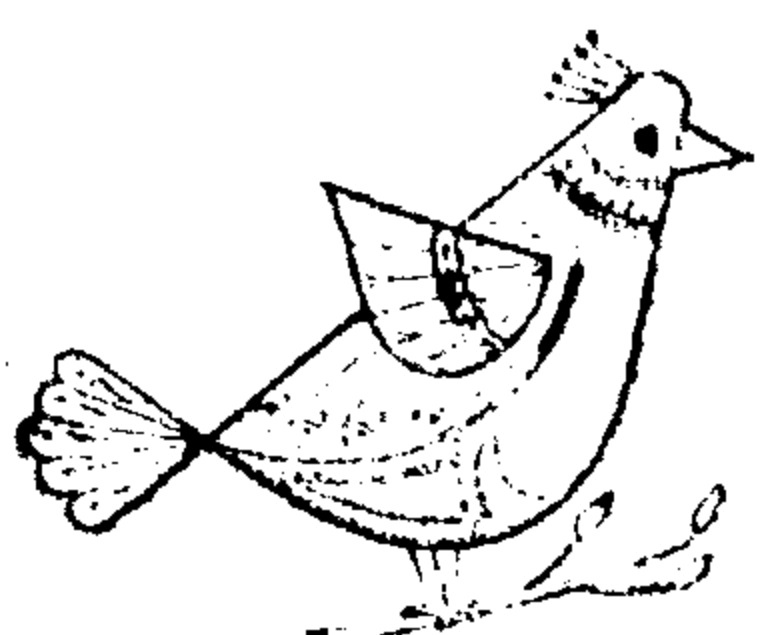

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Lattof said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

Lights off but woman still burns

by DEBBE JONAK

The streetlight at Rusty Drive and Estes Street was turned off quietly last week, after burning 24 hours a day for four months.

Another, at River and Riverview roads, was turned off the week before.

They now burn only at night, as they should — but correcting the problem took numerous calls to Des Plaines City Hall from citizen watchdog Kathy Jourdan, 2546 Rusty Dr.

HOWEVER, she could have made thousands of calls, and the lights would not have been fixed any sooner, according to Commonwealth Edison representative Gordon Baer.

Edison is responsible for maintenance of Des Plaines streetlights. City public works officials said they reported the problem to Baer in January and again in February.

Baer said the delay in repair was caused by a shortage of the devices needed to fix the streetlights.

"Those lights are operated by a photo-electric cell," he said, explaining the streetlights are turned off and on by that light-sensitive cell.

"SOMETIMES IT can get dirty or it can go bad," Baer said.

In this case, the cells in the streetlights went bad and needed replacement, but Edison was fresh out.

"We had run out and reordered," Baer said. "But it took a long time to get them."

The city will not pay for the electricity burned by the streetlights during the day, he said. Edison charges the city a flat rate, which is not affected by how long the lights are left on.

WHILE THE LIGHTS were on, they each consumed about 500 kilowatt hours in energy. That equals the amount of electricity used by an average household in one month.

"It's not very much at all," Baer said.

However, Mrs. Jourdan remains

Landslide victory makes him mayor

Herbie the cop takes over citywide beat

by SCOTT FOSDICK

For 23 years Des Plaines have called him "Herbie the friendly cop." But the morning after Tuesday's landslide victory over six opponents, Herbert H. Volberding was ready to take on a new moniker.

"Mayor-elect's office," he answered the phone at campaign headquarters, adding after a pause, "This is the mayor-elect!"

How did he do it?

How could anyone fashion a 48 per cent victory over six other candidates, including an incumbent mayor who had received endorsements from most current and former city officials and from local newspapers?

"I DIDN'T DO IT. My volunteers did it. The only thing I provided was the product. They sold it," Volberding said.

Where did he get so many loyal supporters?

"They were pounding at my door. They were true believers in city government that would represent the will of the people," he said.

Although Volberding is leaving behind his career as a Des Plaines police detective, it is the friends he made as the "friendly cop" who worked hardest on his campaign.

"I have laid the groundwork, unknowingly, for the past several decades," he said.

THE NEW MAYOR, eight aldermen, the city clerk and the treasurer will all be sworn-in May 2 at the city council meeting. By that time, Volberding said he will have resigned from the police department and discontinued his real estate business in Des Plaines.

Volberding won Tuesday with 7,374 votes out of 15,158 votes cast. He was trailed by Acting Mayor Charles J. Bolek, who received 5,612 votes, or 36 per cent.

Volberding won all wards but the 7th and 8th. He beat Bolek by one vote, 174 to 173, in Bolek's home fifth precinct in the third ward. He swept his own home precinct — ward two, precinct five — with 347 votes to Bolek's 85.

"I expected to get 51 per cent," Volberding said Tuesday, but was obviously pleased with his 48 per cent victory.

"This has something to say for the lack of endorsements from former officials and newspapers. My mandate came from the people," he said.

Volberding anticipated having no trouble working with the city's aldermen, the majority of which endorsed Bolek.

"I'M HOLDING absolutely no hard feelings because of their errors in judgment," he said.

Volberding said he is not planning sudden changes in city government.

"Any changes made will be given thorough consideration and thought. There will be no snap decisions, made. They will be made with the entire community in mind," he said.

Now that Herbie-the-cop is mayor-elect, his old boss, Police Chief Arthur Hintz, will work for him. Volberding said he will have no trouble reversal in roles.

"Art and I have been friends for decades, and we will continue to be friends. He will continue to be chief of police as long as he desires," Volberding said.

Women come into their own in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

• Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

• Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

• Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

• Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

• Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

Crane, Mikva reactions differ on energy plan

The area's two U.S. congressmen predictably lined up on opposing sides Wednesday in the post mortem on President Carter's complex energy message, both agreeing though that legislative approval will be hard to get.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, took issue with nearly every phase of the energy plan, while U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, indicated the plan may be enough to solve the problem. Both sit on the tax writing U.S. House Ways and Means Committee, which will handle much of the energy proposal.

"Why trust the government to run the entire energy industry when it is the government that created the problem," Crane said after Carter's address to the joint session of Congress.

CRANE INDICATED step one in solving the energy problem is full government deregulation of natural gas and oil. He applauded the President's call for a 1 billion gallon oil reserve and the need for conservation of all types of natural resources.

Mikva rated Carter's proposal as "tough measures" which if passed through Congress in not heavily watered down versions could meet the nation's energy needs.

Additional Congressional reaction broke down generally along party lines, but some Democrats raised concerns about elements of the proposal.

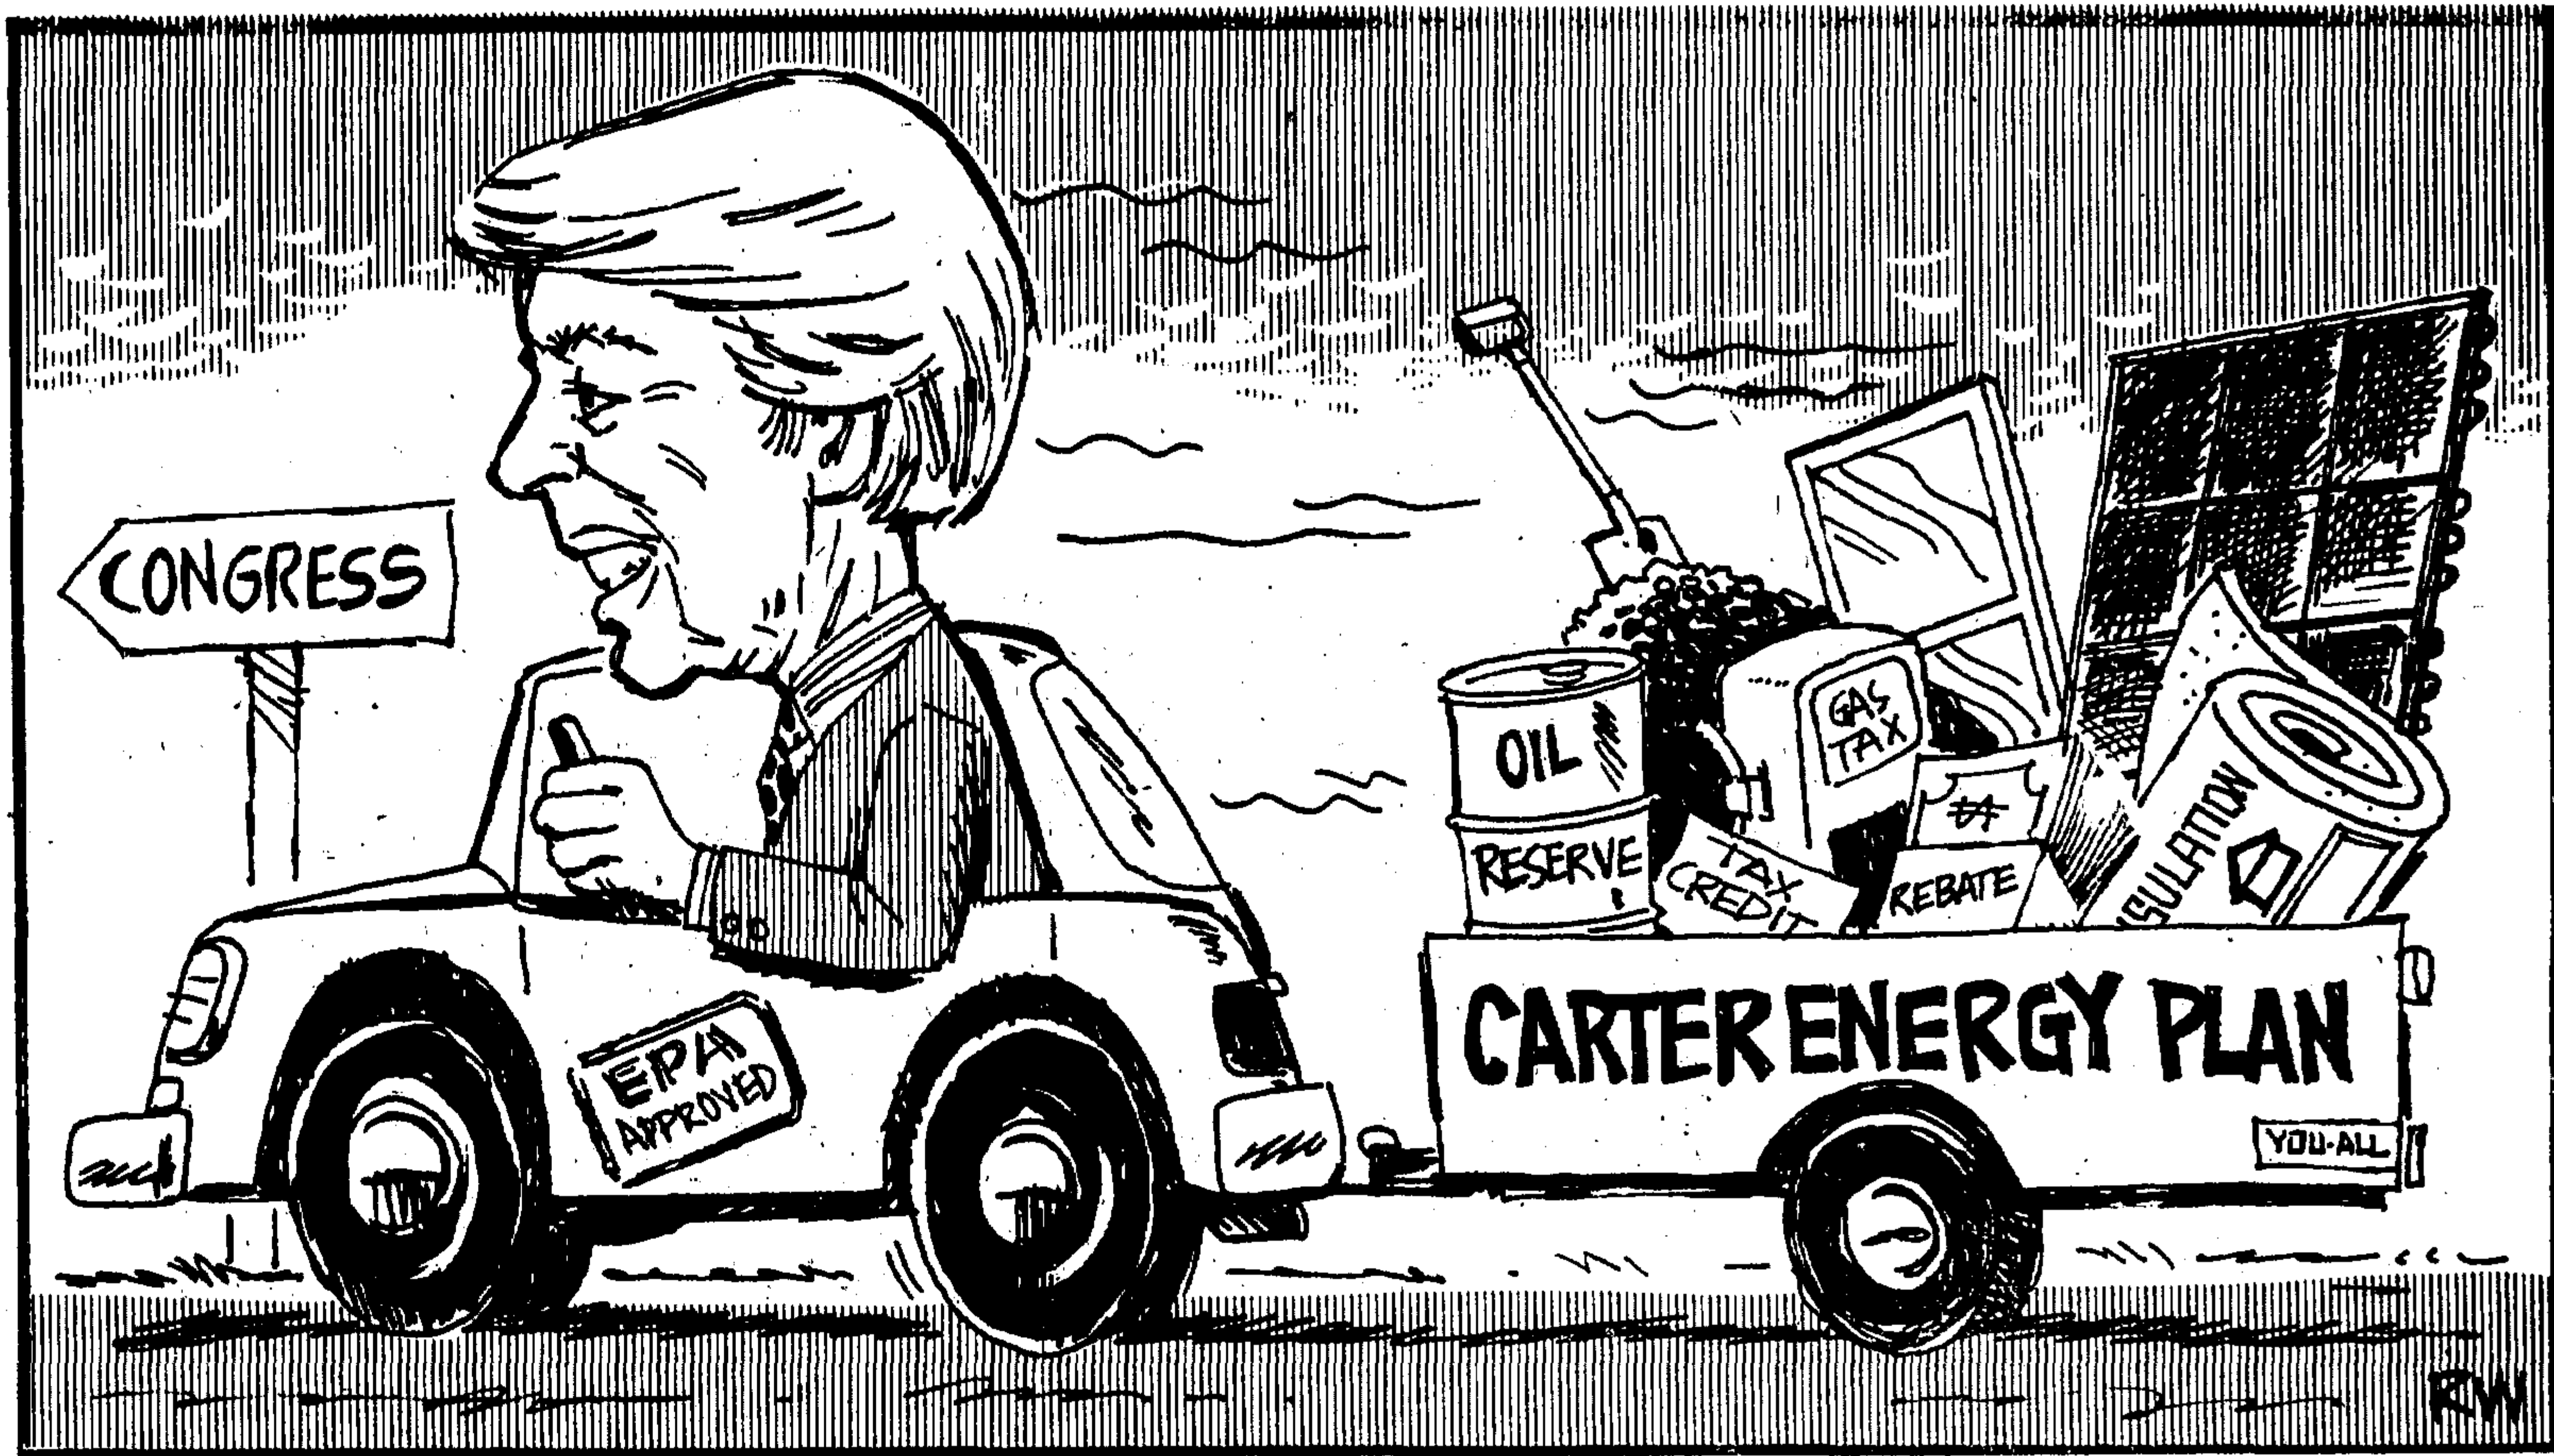

U.S. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said "parts of the plan will no doubt be revised in the interest of workability and equity."

U.S. REP. JOHN MURPHY, D-N.Y., said proposals such as the gasoline tax, tax credits and rebates "deserve a thorough hearing before the Congress."

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who represents a coal rich southern Illinois district, said "I am willing to vote a heavy tax on big gas guzzling cars, but I am not willing to vote a tax on people who face a real struggle to pay their present gasoline bills."

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., said "asking America, the richest nation on earth, now to start acting like a poor nation is absolutely contrary to the character of our people."

Rep. David Treen, R-La., said the proposal "will receive a nonpartisan evaluation by those of us on the Republican side of the aisle," and he said he hopes "parochial interests will be submerged by national interests."

velop new sources of fuel, such as deregulation of petroleum prices.

"The problem with (Carter's plan) is that it will not encourage development of a new supply," Johnston said.

Other energy plans detailed drew favorable reaction. Lana Beaty, co-owner of Beaty's Insulation, Elk Grove Village, Wednesday said she agrees with Carter's proposal to offer tax rebates for homeowners who insulate.

"Proper insulation does save energy, and help cut down the heating bill," she said. "And I think this proposal will encourage more people to insulate their homes properly."

Mrs. Beaty said she has received about 10 calls since Monday from homeowners who are interested in home insulation as a result of Carter's recent energy television talk.

ALTHOUGH Northern Illinois Gas Co. spokesman Bob Kearby said the utility favors conservation proposals along reasonable lines, he said conservation is not the total picture. Total price deregulation is the best way to encourage development of fuel supply, Kearby said.

The President's call for increased research of coal development and the installation of pollution controls on coal-burning plants are goals already adopted by industry, said an Inland Steel Co. spokesman in Chicago.

Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman Bill Harrah said Carter's proposal to cancel "bargain rates" for large energy customers doesn't make sense because the present price system is based on cost of service.

gress at the Capitol Wednesday night. Carter's 35-minute speech was received diffidently, interrupted only eight times by thin applause. The first burst came on page five of his 8-page address. By the end, only Democrats were clapping.

Champ takes on ABC in fight for big stakes

• Muhammad Ali has a new fight on his hands, but this time, in court. The champ wants ABC to pay the $181,000 in legal fees it cost to defend himself successfully last year against a $20 million slander suit brought by fight referee Tony Perez. ABC filed a lawsuit this week opposing Ali's contention he is entitled to the payment as a "performer covered by the network code."

• The judge in a guardianship hearing for Groucho Marx moved his court to the comedian's home Wednesday night to determine whether Marx felt his old age was being smoothed or endangered by his female companion, Erin Fleming. Miss Fleming and Marx' son, Arthur, are battling to be named conservators and guardians for the comedian. Judge Edward Rafferty went to Marx' home in Santa Monica to hear first hand from the 86-year-old Marx, his opinion of how he was being treated.

girl. Polanski, 43, and his attorney, Douglas Dalton, appeared in a Santa Monica, Calif., superior court Wednesday. Polanski, husband of slain actress Sharon Tate and director of such films as "Rosemary's Baby" and "Chinatown," faces a possible sentence of 50 years in prison on the six felony charges if convicted.

Force energy cutbacks: Carter

through the new energy taxes would be returned to consumers through income tax rebates.

Carter called for steps starting this fall to make energy waste cost more and to reward those who save energy.

"We prefer to reach these goals through voluntary cooperation, with a minimum of coercion," he said.

"But I must say to you that voluntary compliance will not be enough — the problem is too large, and time is too short. In a few cases, penalties and restrictions to reduce waste are essential."

AS ONE OF THOSE penalties, Carter asked for a new excise tax to add between $52 and $449 to the sticker price of 1978 model cars — due in the showrooms this fall — if their fuel consumption is too high.

The gas-guzzler tax would climb each year to a maximum $2,488 for cars that get less than 13 miles per gallon in 1985.

Carter also called, however, for a rebate to lower the price of cars that get good gas mileage. Rebates would range from $47 to $473 for models that come out this fall, and would climb to a maximum $493 in 1988.

In the first year, the tax penalties would apply to cars getting 18 miles per gallon or less, while those getting 19 mpg or better would merit rebates. Each year the dividing line would increase by one mile per gallon.

CARTER DESCRIBED his gasoline tax proposal, based on national fuel consumption trends and going as high as 50 cents a gallon by 1988, as a "stand-by" measure.

The President's plan also included a standby gasoline rationing system for use if there is another oil embargo or if a serious world oil supply shortage should occur before the mid-1980s.

In addition, Carter would tax domestic oil in three stages so as to force the price up to the world price of more than $13 per barrel — a move that would add an additional 7 cents a gallon to all fuel prices including gasoline and heating oil. This tax would be returned to consumers in rebates averaging $25 a year by 1979.

The President chose to raise oil prices to the "replacement level" through taxes, rather than through outright decontrol, so the money would go to the public rather than to the oil companies.

THE GASOLINE TAX — the most visible pocketbook penalty for consumers — was the most controversial element of the comprehensive package.

The President asked for authority to raise the federal tax on gasoline, now set at four cents a gallon, by a nickel in 1979 if motorists burn as much as 1 per cent more fuel next year than this year.

There would be another five-cent increase in 1980 if consumption again increased by as much as 1 per cent.

After that, the tax would get tougher: From 1981 through 1987 the tax would go up by five-cent increments in every year that consumption did not drop by 2 per cent. The maximum tax would be 50 cents a gallon.

Carter placed his prime emphasis on conservation and on switching away from oil and natural gas, the fuels that now supply 75 per cent of America's energy needs.

HE CALLED FOR income tax credits totaling as much as $410 to homeowners who install such conservation features as storm windows or insulation, saying it should take effect immediately and remain in effect through Dec. 31, 1984.

"If homeowners prefer," Carter said, "they may take advantage of a weatherization service which all regulated utility companies will be required to offer."

In addition, he called for tax credits starting at a maximum $2,002 and gradually decreasing through 1984 for anyone who buys solar heating equipment.

"WE MUST ALSO reform our utility rate structure," Carter said, calling for an end to "promotional" rates or discounts to high-volume users and the establishment of "peak load" pricing to make electricity cost less at night.

Said House Speaker Thomas O'Neill: "The tax bill, the dams, the economic package, they were all skirmishes. This is the battle."

Although the proposals got kindly reviews from a number of Carter partisans, industry, labor and consumer groups expressed displeasure with various points.

"Asking America, the richest nation on earth, now to start acting like a poor nation is absolutely contrary to the character of our people," Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., said.

Dist. 26 wrapup

Rosen reelected Dist. 26 president

Leora Rosen has been reelected president of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education.

Mrs. Rosen, who has served on the board since 1972, has been board president since September 1975. Patrick Fauceglia, a board member since December, was elected board secretary.

"I'm pleased to have the opportunity to continue in that capacity," Mrs. Rosen said. "I hope I can fulfill the leadership requirements that are part of the position."

Mrs. Rosen also appointed the following board committees:

• Budget and finance: chairman is Richard Foster; William Haase and Fauceglia are members.

• Policy: members are Joy Daskal and Fauceglia.

Foster also will serve as the district's representative to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization, which serves special education children from 10 area school districts including Dist. 26.

Mrs. Rosen also appointed residents and board members to serve on a committee to study the possibility of consolidation with other school districts, particularly Mount Prospect Dist. 57. Supt. John Fridlund has recommended consolidation as a way to maintain a balanced budget.

Citizen committee members are Mount Prospect residents Walter Cuneo, Michael Freeman and Idyl Nipper. Freeman was defeated April 9 in his bid for a board seat.

Other members will be Fridlund and board members Richard Carter and Sylvia Lurie. Mrs. Lurie will chair the committee. Mrs. Rosen said a representative from the Dist. 26 teachers' union also will serve on the panel.

Dist. 57, a district of comparable size and finances to the south of Dist. 26, formed a consolidation committee last fall. But Board of Education Pres. David Kluxdal said Dist. 57 has not begun discussion of a merger.

"We haven't given it much thought, but we're interested in doing the best we can for all the youngsters in Mount Prospect," Kluxdal said. "If that can be done with Dist. 26, I don't think as a board we'd throw it out."

On 5-0 vote

Stamm elected Dist. 59 chief

Richard Stamm is the new president of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education.

Stamm, who was elected to a two-year term on the board April 9, was elected board president Monday by a 5-0 vote.

Voting for Stamm were board members Judith Zanca, Emil Bahnmaier, Barbara Somogyi, Sharon Chavoen and Stamm.

Board members Paul Kucharski and Harold Harvey abstained.

Kucharski was nominated for the board presidency before Stamm by Harvey, but he only got his and Harvey's votes.

STAMM, 1414 S. Redwood, Mount Prospect, served on the Dist. 59 board from 1965-67 and on the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education from 1968-73.

Mrs. Chavoen, who was elected to a one-year board term April 9, was elected board secretary.

The board authorized she be paid

$150 for assuming the secretary's duties. Dist. 50 Board secretaries had been paid an annual $150 salary until two years ago when the secretary's salary was abolished.

Committee chairman appointments made were Harvey as chairman of the district's finance committee and Kucharski as chairman of the policy committee.

Harvey, Kucharski and Mrs. Chavoen volunteered to serve on the board's negotiating committee.

Mrs. Somogyi retained her position as the board's representative to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Assn.

Mrs. Zanca and Bahnmaier did not volunteer for committees, but they automatically will serve on the finance committee, which is a committee-of-the-whole.

Birchfield elected Dist. 62 president

Robert Birchfield has been elected president of the Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education.

Birchfield was elected to his second 3-year term on the board in April 1976. He replaces Stuart Kisten as board president who did not seek reelection.

Board members elected April 9 were seated at the meeting Monday. Incumbent Wallace Meyer and newcomers Mark Goldman and Richard Johnston were elected to three-year terms.

Temporary committee chairmen were appointed including Meyer as finance chairman, Ann Schillmoeller as building chairwoman, James Blue as faculty negotiations chairman and James Kosmond as policy chairman.

Plant conservatory open house Sunday

An open house at the Mount Prospect Park District Friendship Park Conservatory will be from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The conservatory is located at 395 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

Park District horticulturalist Doug Whalen, will conduct tours of the facility, which has been in operation for one year, and give demonstrations on repotting, taking cuttings and other planting techniques.

Plants will be given to residents attending the open house and a dried floral arrangement will be awarded as a door prize.

All outdoor foliage, bedding and house plants and flower gardens for the Mount Prospect Park District are grown at the conservatory. In addition, classes on house plant culture, vegetable gardening and floral design are offered at the facility.

Monday deadline on trip to arboretum

Monday is the deadline to register for the May 18 trip to the Morton Arboretum near Lisle sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District.

The tour will be conducted by park district horticulturalist Doug Whalen. Buses will leave the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St., at 9 a.m. and return at 3 p.m.

The $8 fee includes transportation, lunch and a bus tour of the arboretum. A minimum of 35 persons must register for the trip in order to reserve the tour date.

For registration information, call the park district office, 255-5380.

Dist. 59 festival slated Saturday

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 third annual festival of the arts will be from 2 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

Festival activities will include choral, instrumental, dance and drama performances by some 600 elementary and junior high school students.

Student art projects will be on display in the high school cafeteria throughout the festival.

Admission is free.

Olen 'shocked' at Kehe's victory

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, said Wednesday he was "shocked" by his loss to former Ald. Kenneth Kehe, but Kehe said he expected to win by an even larger margin.

Olen was the only incumbent alderman to lose in Tuesday's municipal election. Kehe beat Olen, 1,155 votes to 1,036.

Kehe returns to the council after a two-year absence. He first was elected in 1971, but lost to Ald. Robert Sullivan in 1975.

"I thought it would be by even more," Kehe said.

"I hate to be negative, but I think the people in the ward didn't like Olen's opposition to everything the city tried to do, such as downtown redevelopment and Superblock," Kehe said.

Olen agreed that his opposition to Superblock and the Herbert H. Behrel Parking Plaza hurt his bid for reelection.

"I'm sure that had something to do with it," Olen said. "It must have been something like that."

Olen said he doubts if he'll ever run again for alderman.

"It (his loss) came as a real big shock to me," he said. "It really hit me hard."

Parents fear worst

Hotrodders force tots indoors

by NANCY GOTLER

A handful of teen-age hot-rodders have forced some residents of W. Berkeley Drive in Arlington Heights to keep their children indoors and to fear retaliation if they press charges.

"I hate to say it, but one of our children isn't going to be with us by the end of the summer," one mother of seven predicted.

"I don't know who's going to get it and I hope I don't have to find out," she said. "I don't want to be the one to have to pick up a dead child from the street, carry it to its mother and say, 'Here, bury it.' But it's going to happen."

THE WOMAN and a half dozen of her neighbors in a two-block area along West Berkeley Drive between Mitchell and Ridge avenues refused to allow their names to be used because they fear reprisals from the teen-agers.

They say the racing, which includes motorcycles, cars and minibikes, starts by 3 p.m. almost every day and sometimes lasts until midnight.

"A neighbor and I recently pulled two 3-year-olds out of the path of speeding motorcycles," the woman said. "Some of the boys involved live in this neighborhood and I've talked to them and to their parents, but it doesn't do any good."

Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights police captain, said residents who can positively identify a reckless driver can press charges.

Although many residents said they have called police numerous times to complain, Buckholz said he was not aware of a severe problem in the area.

HOWEVER, after being contacted by The Herald about the situation, Buckholz assigned an officer to monitor the area with a radar speed detection device and said the neighborhood will be watched in the future.

Another mother of two pre-school children said she no longer allows them to play in front of the house in the late afternoons or evenings.

"Those kids ride motorcycles even on the sidewalks, and when I see them coming I pull my kids inside," she said. "It's so bad I hardly even let them play out in front any more."

"But there's nothing we can really do about it if we don't know who they are," she said. "When the police come the kids get away before they can be caught."

A third neighbor also feared a child could be hurt or killed.

"The way the kids drive those cars

LARRY ST. PIERRE, Arlington Heights policeman, Drive, in response to area residents who complain monitors the speed of motorists on W. Berkeley about speeding teen-agers.

I could see a kid running into the street and getting run over. As the weather gets better the problem will probably get worse."

SHE SAID SHE has clocked speeders going as fast as 60 miles per hour in the 25 mph zone.

Parents are especially concerned because they live one block from Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School, 2800 N. Highland Ave. Many students walk home just as the hot-rodding begins.

Still another woman, whose youngest child is 10, said, "It's dangerous because there are a lot of small children in the neighborhood. If something isn't done about it there's a good chance one of them will be hurt."

Maine North group to begin spring tour

Maine North High School's symphonic wind ensemble will begin its seventh annual spring concert tour Friday.

The 43-member ensemble will give its first concert at Dixon State Hospital Friday and then will travel to Independence, Iowa, for a concert Saturday at the Mental Health Institute.

The five-day tour also will include a performance at the University of Northern Iowa, Drake University, Iowa State University, Central College, Simpson College, all in Iowa, and Quincy College in Illinois.

irate, pointing out she is advised to turn off the much smaller lights in her house during these times of energy shortages. Yet the city and Edison shrug their shoulders at leaving a streetlight burning during the day for four months.

"I wish I could talk to (President) Carter when he talks about his energy program," she said.

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2,488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups. The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

Polyester pinch possible

by LYNN ASINOF

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wear the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

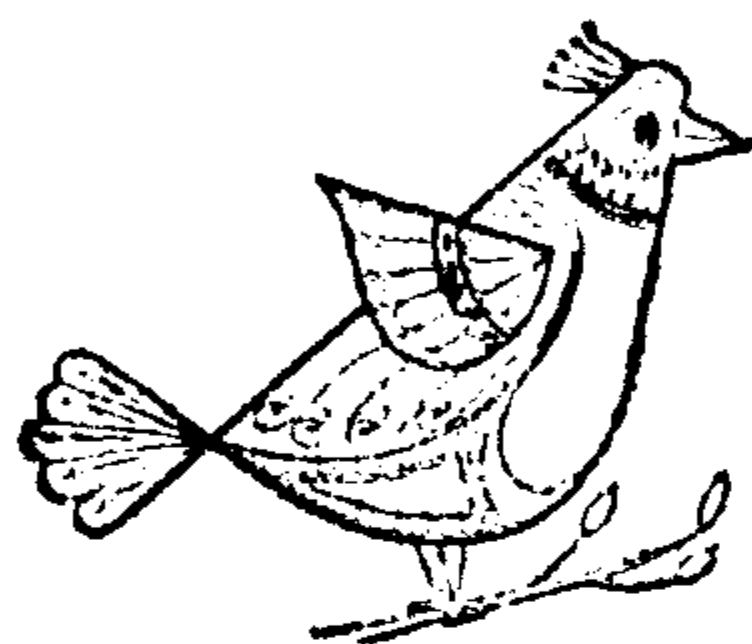

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Related story on Page 19

Lattof said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

Hein vows change in liquor unit

by LINDA PUNCH

The first item of business of the Wheeling Citizens Party will be to create an agency to replace the village president as liquor commissioner, Trustee William Hein said Wednesday.

Hein, who was elected village president in Tuesday's election, said he will form a citizens' committee to handle liquor licenses "as soon as we're in office." The newly elected village president and trustees will take office May 2.

Hein and his party swept every race in the village election, including four village board seats and the village clerk's office.

"THE FIRST MEETING we have, that will go into effect," Hein said.

Hein, whose parents own Hein's Pub and Liquor store, 141 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, in February said he would form a three- to five-member liquor-control board. Currently, the village president has control over issuance or revocation of liquor licenses.

Hein's opponents in the election have questioned his ability to serve as liquor commissioner because of his connection with the family-owned liquor store and tavern.

A spokesman for the Illinois Liquor Commission said there probably is no violation of state law unless Hein himself is a license applicant. He said Hein can form a committee to interview applications for liquor licenses, but that he "can't delegate the power to make the decision. That rests in his office."

The proposed commission will be made up of persons "with no official job with the village or any interest in any liquor establishment," Hein said. The commission could be funded with the $3,000 salary currently paid the village president for his duties as liquor commissioner, he said.

HEIN SAID HIS party has not discussed any plans to replace members of the village staff. The WCP staff has been critical of Village Atty. John

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

• Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

• Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

• Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

• Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

• Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

Vote losers vow to stay involved in village action

"I will be around. My concern for the village is not going to stop. I've always taken an independent standpoint and the loss doesn't affect that."

That's how Trustee William Rogers, an unsuccessful candidate for the village board on the Better Environment, Service and Trust slate, viewed his party's defeat in Tuesday's election.

The BEST slate lost every race to the Wheeling Citizens Party, headed by Trustee William Hein, the village president-elect.

Confusion, disappointment and a vow to stay involved was the theme of several of the defeated candidates. For a few, the loss of the election still was too close to make any decisions.

TRUSTEE OTIS Hedlund, BEST candidate for village president, said he is not sure "what our plans are going to be." Hedlund's term on the board expires in May.

"I'm going to take a rest for awhile. I don't know at this time what we might be doing," he said.

Rogers echoed Hedlund's confusion about future plans.

"To some degree it's hard to say. I don't know what's going to happen. Where do you go from here? We didn't discuss it because we thought we were going to win," he said.

Walter Stryzky, a BEST candidate for trustee, Tuesday night said he will continue to take part in village affairs.

"I'm going to stay involved. More so now, than ever," he said.

Hedlund said the BEST slate probably will meet next week to discuss plans for the future.

Dundee Road plan gets revisions in widening

Plans for improving sections of Dundee Road between Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 59 in Palatine Township have been revived with major changes by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

New plans call for widening a five-eighths mile stretch of Dundee Road between Hicks and Rand roads from two to four lanes at an estimated cost of $400,000.

The plans also call for widening and resurfacing the two lanes of a 3.2-mile stretch of Dundee Road between Ill. Rte. 59 and Ela Road. This project would include intersection improvements at Dundee and Barrington roads where left turn bays and new traffic signals are proposed. Estimated cost of the work is $1 million.

Construction on both road improvement projects would start in 1979 at the earliest, according to Edward Kramarz, program development section chief with the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

A FEDERAL GRANT to finance 70 per cent of both road projects is being sought by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and the remaining 30 per cent of the project cost would be paid for by the state, Kramarz said.

No public hearings have been scheduled for the two improvement projects.

Public hearings on the original plans for Dundee Road improvements were held in 1971. Plans at that time called for widening a 6.5-mile stretch of Dundee Road between Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 59 from two to four lanes separated by a 16-foot median, new traffic signals and improvements at several intersections. The cost of the project in 1971 was estimated at $7 million.

A lack of funds for new road construction was the main reason the Dundee Road improvement project was revised, Kramarz said.

"NO MONEY PLUS the general lack of acceptance by local communities, Barrington and Barrington Hills had both indicated it was not acceptable to add additional lanes and this coupled with the lack of funds was the reason the additional lanes were deferred," Kramarz said of the stretch of Dundee Road between Ill. Rte. 59 and Ela Road.

He said widening of that section of Dundee would not be reconsidered for 10 to 15 years after the resurfacing work is completed.

Money was also the reason that improvements along Dundee Road between Ela and Hicks roads were dropped completely, Kramarz said. He said there are no plans for improvements along this section of Dundee Road for at least five years.

Parents fear worst

Hotrodders force tots indoors

by NANCY GOTLER

A handful of teen-age hot-rodders have forced some residents of W. Berkeley Drive in Arlington Heights to keep their children indoors and to fear retaliation if they press charges.

"I hate to say it, but one of our children isn't going to be with us by the end of the summer," one mother of seven predicted.

"I don't know who's going to get it and I hope I don't have to find out,"

she said. "I don't want to be the one to have to pick up a dead child from the street, carry it to its mother and say, 'Here, bury it.' But it's going to happen."

THE WOMAN and a half dozen of her neighbors in a two-block area along West Berkeley Drive between Mitchell and Ridge avenues refused to allow their names to be used because they fear reprisals from the teenagers.

They say the racing, which includes motorcycles, cars and minibikes, starts by 3 p.m. almost every day and sometimes lasts until midnight.

"A neighbor and I recently pulled two 3-year-olds out of the path of speeding motorcycles," the woman said. "Some of the boys involved live in this neighborhood and I've talked to them and to their parents, but it doesn't do any good."

Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights police captain, said residents who can positively identify a reckless driver can press charges.

Although many residents said they have called police numerous times to complain, Buckholz said he was not aware of a severe problem in the area.

HOWEVER, after being contacted by The Herald about the situation, Buckholz assigned an officer to monitor the area with a radar speed detection device and said the neighborhood will be watched in the future.

Another mother of two preschool children said she no longer allows them to play in front of the house in the late afternoons or evenings.

"Those kids ride motorcycles even on the sidewalks, and when I see them coming I pull my kids inside," she said. "It's so bad I hardly even let them play out in front any more."

"But there's nothing we can really do about it if we don't know who they are," she said. "When the police come the kids get away before they can be caught."

A third neighbor also feared a child could be hurt or killed.

"The way the kids drive those cars I could see a kid running into the street and getting run over. As the weather gets better the problem will probably get worse."

SHE SAID SHE has clocked speeders going as fast as 60 miles per hour in the 25 mph zone.

Parents are especially concerned because they live one block from Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School, 2800 N. Highland Ave. Many students walk home just as the hot-rodding begins.

Still another woman, whose youngest child is 10, said, "It's dangerous because there are a lot of small children in the neighborhood. If something isn't done about it there's a good chance one of them will be hurt."

Tree a thorn in sidewalk plans

by PAT GERLACH

The 20-foot pine is one of the things Mary and Bob Stillwell like most about the house they bought last month.

It represents a touch of "back home" for the couple, a reminder of the thick pine forests and the cool lakes in their native Minnesota.

But Monday, as she was trying to choose just the right spot to display the antique typewriter of Great Grandmother Stillwell, Mary caught sight of a man in her front yard at 1811 Schaumburg Rd. He was pounding a green stake into the ground at the base of the huge tree.

SHE PULLED A raincoat over her slight frame, and went out to investigate.

She listened quietly as the man told her the pine stood in the way of progress and must be sacrificed to straighten a sidewalk on the south side of Schaumburg Road. The road is being widened to four lanes between Barrington and Roselle roads.

George O'Brien, the county's engineer on the project, told Mrs. Stillwell the walk which now curves around her tree will be "straightened out" because the construction contract requires straight sidewalks.

She winced when O'Brien said the stake was a marker for the ax that would surely fall sometime before July.

She got on the telephone and in her whisper-soft voice, began to investigate why the sidewalk had to be routed so as to destroy her tree and more than a dozen like it.

SHE CALLED village hall and learned that the sidewalk had originally been designed for the expressed purpose of saving the mature trees along Schaumburg Road. But the village had transferred its control over the street right-of-way to the county, she was told.

People at the village hall encouraged Mrs. Stillwell to talk to other neighbors whose trees are in the path of the new sidewalk to see if support could be gained for her effort to save the greenery.

Tuesday, though, another county worker stopped by to tell her that the plans had changed and the tree probably would be felled that day. Mrs. Stillwell also was reminded that the county would be giving her and other homeowners along Schaumburg Road new driveways.

But she was persistent. She objected to "the idea of tearing out a perfectly good sidewalk just to straighten it out."

"I THINK A CURVED walk has a lot more character than a straight ribbon of concrete. People in expensive housing developments pay a lot of money for the kind of sidewalk we have now," she said.

SOFT-SPOKEN MARY Stillman of Schaumburg spotted danger for a 20-foot pine tree in front of her home but apparently has convinced Cook County Highway Dept. officials to leave the tree.

But the woodman didn't show up. On Wednesday, Mrs. Stillwell's phone rang. It was O'Brien saying plans had been changed again and as long as the village didn't object, the sidewalk and trees would stay.

"We are going to try to save the trees, that's our main objective," County Highway Supt. Richard Goltzman explained.

Goltzman said the change in plans came about this week "after some internal discussion among our people" and not necessarily because Mrs. Stillwell complained. He said differences in elevation between property will "necessitate re-routing of the walkway."

SCHAUMBURG Village Engineer, Joseph E. Zgonina said Wednesday he wrote a letter to Goltzman asking that the county replace the sidewalk after the roadwork is completed "in such a manner to meander within the right-of-way to avoid fixed objects such as trees, telephone poles, fire hydrants or manholes."

However Zgonina said trees in or near the right-of-way "could cause sight disturbance problems for people trying to exit or enter driveways" which might result in accidents.

That left Mary Stillwell more confused than ever. "I don't want the tree left there if it will cause accidents, but it seems to me there's plenty of room between the roadway and my front yard."

She's a shy woman, unaccustomed to taking on village or county officials. For now, she is happy the tree will remain in her front yard. "But I'm going to keep a sharp eye out to see that it really does stay," she said.

Hein vows change in liquor panel

Burke, who they said is overpaid and has been "ripping off" the village by keeping his private law practice while being paid $42,000 a year.

"We haven't discussed replacing any members of the staff, but all competent people will be kept," Hein said.

The village president-elect also denied charges James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, aided in his campaign. Stavros pleaded guilty in 1974 to extorting Wheeling developers and served two years of a four-year prison sentence before being released on parole last September.

William H. Hein

"That charge is totally ridiculous," Hein said. "This campaign was run by the people of Wheeling," Hein said.

Streetlight off; woman still burns

by DEBBE JONAK

The streetlight at Rusty Drive and Estes Street was turned off quietly last week, after burning 24 hours a day for four months.

Another, at River and Riverview roads, was turned off the week before.

They now burn only at night, as they should — but correcting the problem took numerous calls to Des Plaines City Hall from citizen watchdog Kathy Jourdan, 2546 Rusty Dr.

HOWEVER, she could have made thousands of calls, and the lights would not have been fixed any sooner, according to Commonwealth Edison representative Gordon Baer.

Edison is responsible for maintenance of Des Plaines streetlights. City public works officials said they reported the problem to Baer in January and again in February.

Baer said the delay in repair was caused by a shortage of the devices needed to fix the streetlights.

"Those lights are operated by a photo-electric cell," he said, explaining the streetlights are turned off and on by that light-sensitive cell.

"SOMETIMES IT can get dirty or it can go bad," Baer said.

In this case, the cells in the streetlights went bad and needed replacement, but Edison was fresh out.

"We had run out and reordered," Baer said. "But it took a long time to get them."

The city will not pay for the electricity burned by the streetlights during the day, he said. Edison charges the city a flat rate, which is not affected by how long the lights are left on.

WHILE THE LIGHTS were on, they each consumed about 500 kilowatt hours in energy. That equals the amount of electricity used by an average household in one month.

"It's not very much at all," Baer said.

However, Mrs. Jourdan remains irate, pointing out she is advised to turn off the much smaller lights in her house during these times of energy shortages. Yet the city and Edison shrug their shoulders at leaving a streetlight burning during the day for four months.

"I wish I could talk to (President) Carter when he talks about his energy program," she said.

Congratulations greet Krause in mayoral upset

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY
Carolyn Krause's Mount Prospect law office Wednesday was strewn with flowers, telegrams and phone messages congratulating her on her election as mayor.
After startling residents with the surprising victory over her opponents by nearly a 2-1 margin, Mount Prospect mayor-elect Krause told how she successfully engineered the winning campaign.
Mrs. Krause, 38, admitted she was late in launching her mayoral bid compared to efforts of her opponents, Trustees Michael H. Minton and Edward B. Rhea Jr.
SHE ALSO was somewhat of a darkhorse candidate. Minton and Rhea have been trustees since their election in 1975 to the village board. Mrs. Krause, however, has served in the more obscure position as chairwoman of the zoning board of appeals since 1973.
"We didn't get started until late January," Mrs. Krause said. "But I had a fine group of people dedicated to the community. It began with the coffee, 37 of them, then we got out into the different areas of town and talked to the voters. We found ourselves growing and growing with enthusiastic people who wanted to get involved."

Her village-wide support was evident Tuesday when she captured 4,527 votes, or 47 per cent, to win big in the mayoral election.
Mrs. Krause said voters were attracted to the polls in part because of the political retirement this year of Mayor Robert D. Teichert after eight years in office.

"They knew a change was going to occur," she said. "And they wanted to take part in that change. I think that's what brought them out."
ABOUT 37 PER CENT of Mount Prospect's 27,000 registered voters went to the polls.
When she is sworn-in May 3, Mrs. Krause will become Mount Prospect's first woman mayor in the village's 60-year history. She said being a woman will not cramp her style of conducting public business.
"I have worked in courts of law for 11 years and have come in contact with a tremendous number of men," she said. "And I have managed to conduct meetings of the zoning board which is comprised of all men. I don't anticipate any problems with the village board or the administration."
"The voters of this community, whether they are men or women, are interested in what a candidate's qualifications and viewpoints are, not whether they are male or female."

MRS. KRAUSE SAID she made no particular effort to solicit votes from women's clubs and organizations during her campaign.
"I made an effort to reach all of the voters. Men will absolutely support a woman because they are just as interested (as women) in what they (the candidates) stand for."

Her calendar already is beginning to fill with dates, both before and after her swearing-in, when she will attend meetings and conferences on behalf of Mount Prospect.
And what will be Mayor Krause's first order of business?

"Well what I want to do is go ahead on implementing the issues in my platform," she said. "The hearings (on the acquisition of Citizens Utilities Co. water and sewer lines) and the through budget review are the major items to get going on immediately. I want to move right along."

Hawthorn students in cleanup campaign

The sixth grade class of Hawthorn School, 320 Glendale Ave., Wheeling, will take part in a cleanup campaign Saturday.
With the help of parents and two village employees, the students will collect litter along Milwaukee Avenue.

The students and adults will be treated to lunch at the McDonald's Restaurant operated by Don Conley.
The class also will go to Camp Edwards, East Troy, Wis., May 24-27, for a four-day outdoor education and ecology workshop.

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2.488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups. The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

Polyester pinch possible

by LYNN ASINOF

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wear the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

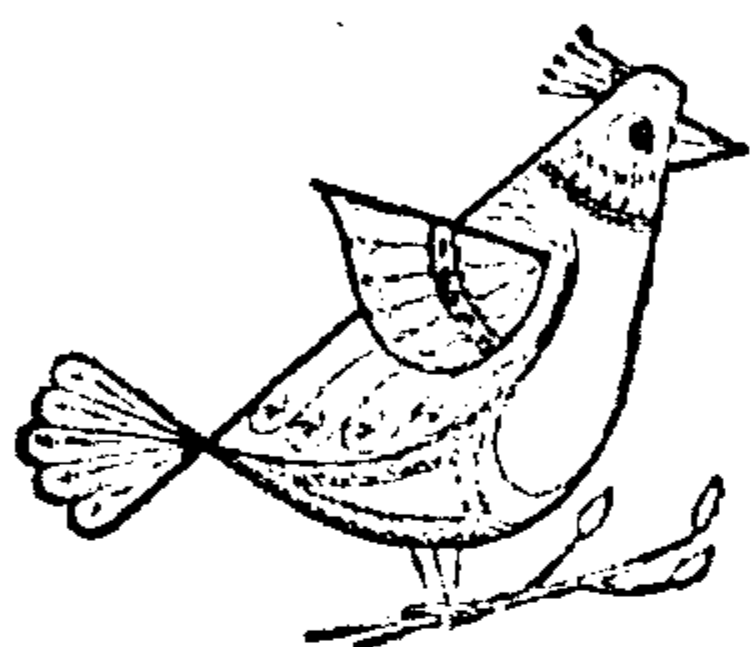

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Related story on Page 10

Lattot said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

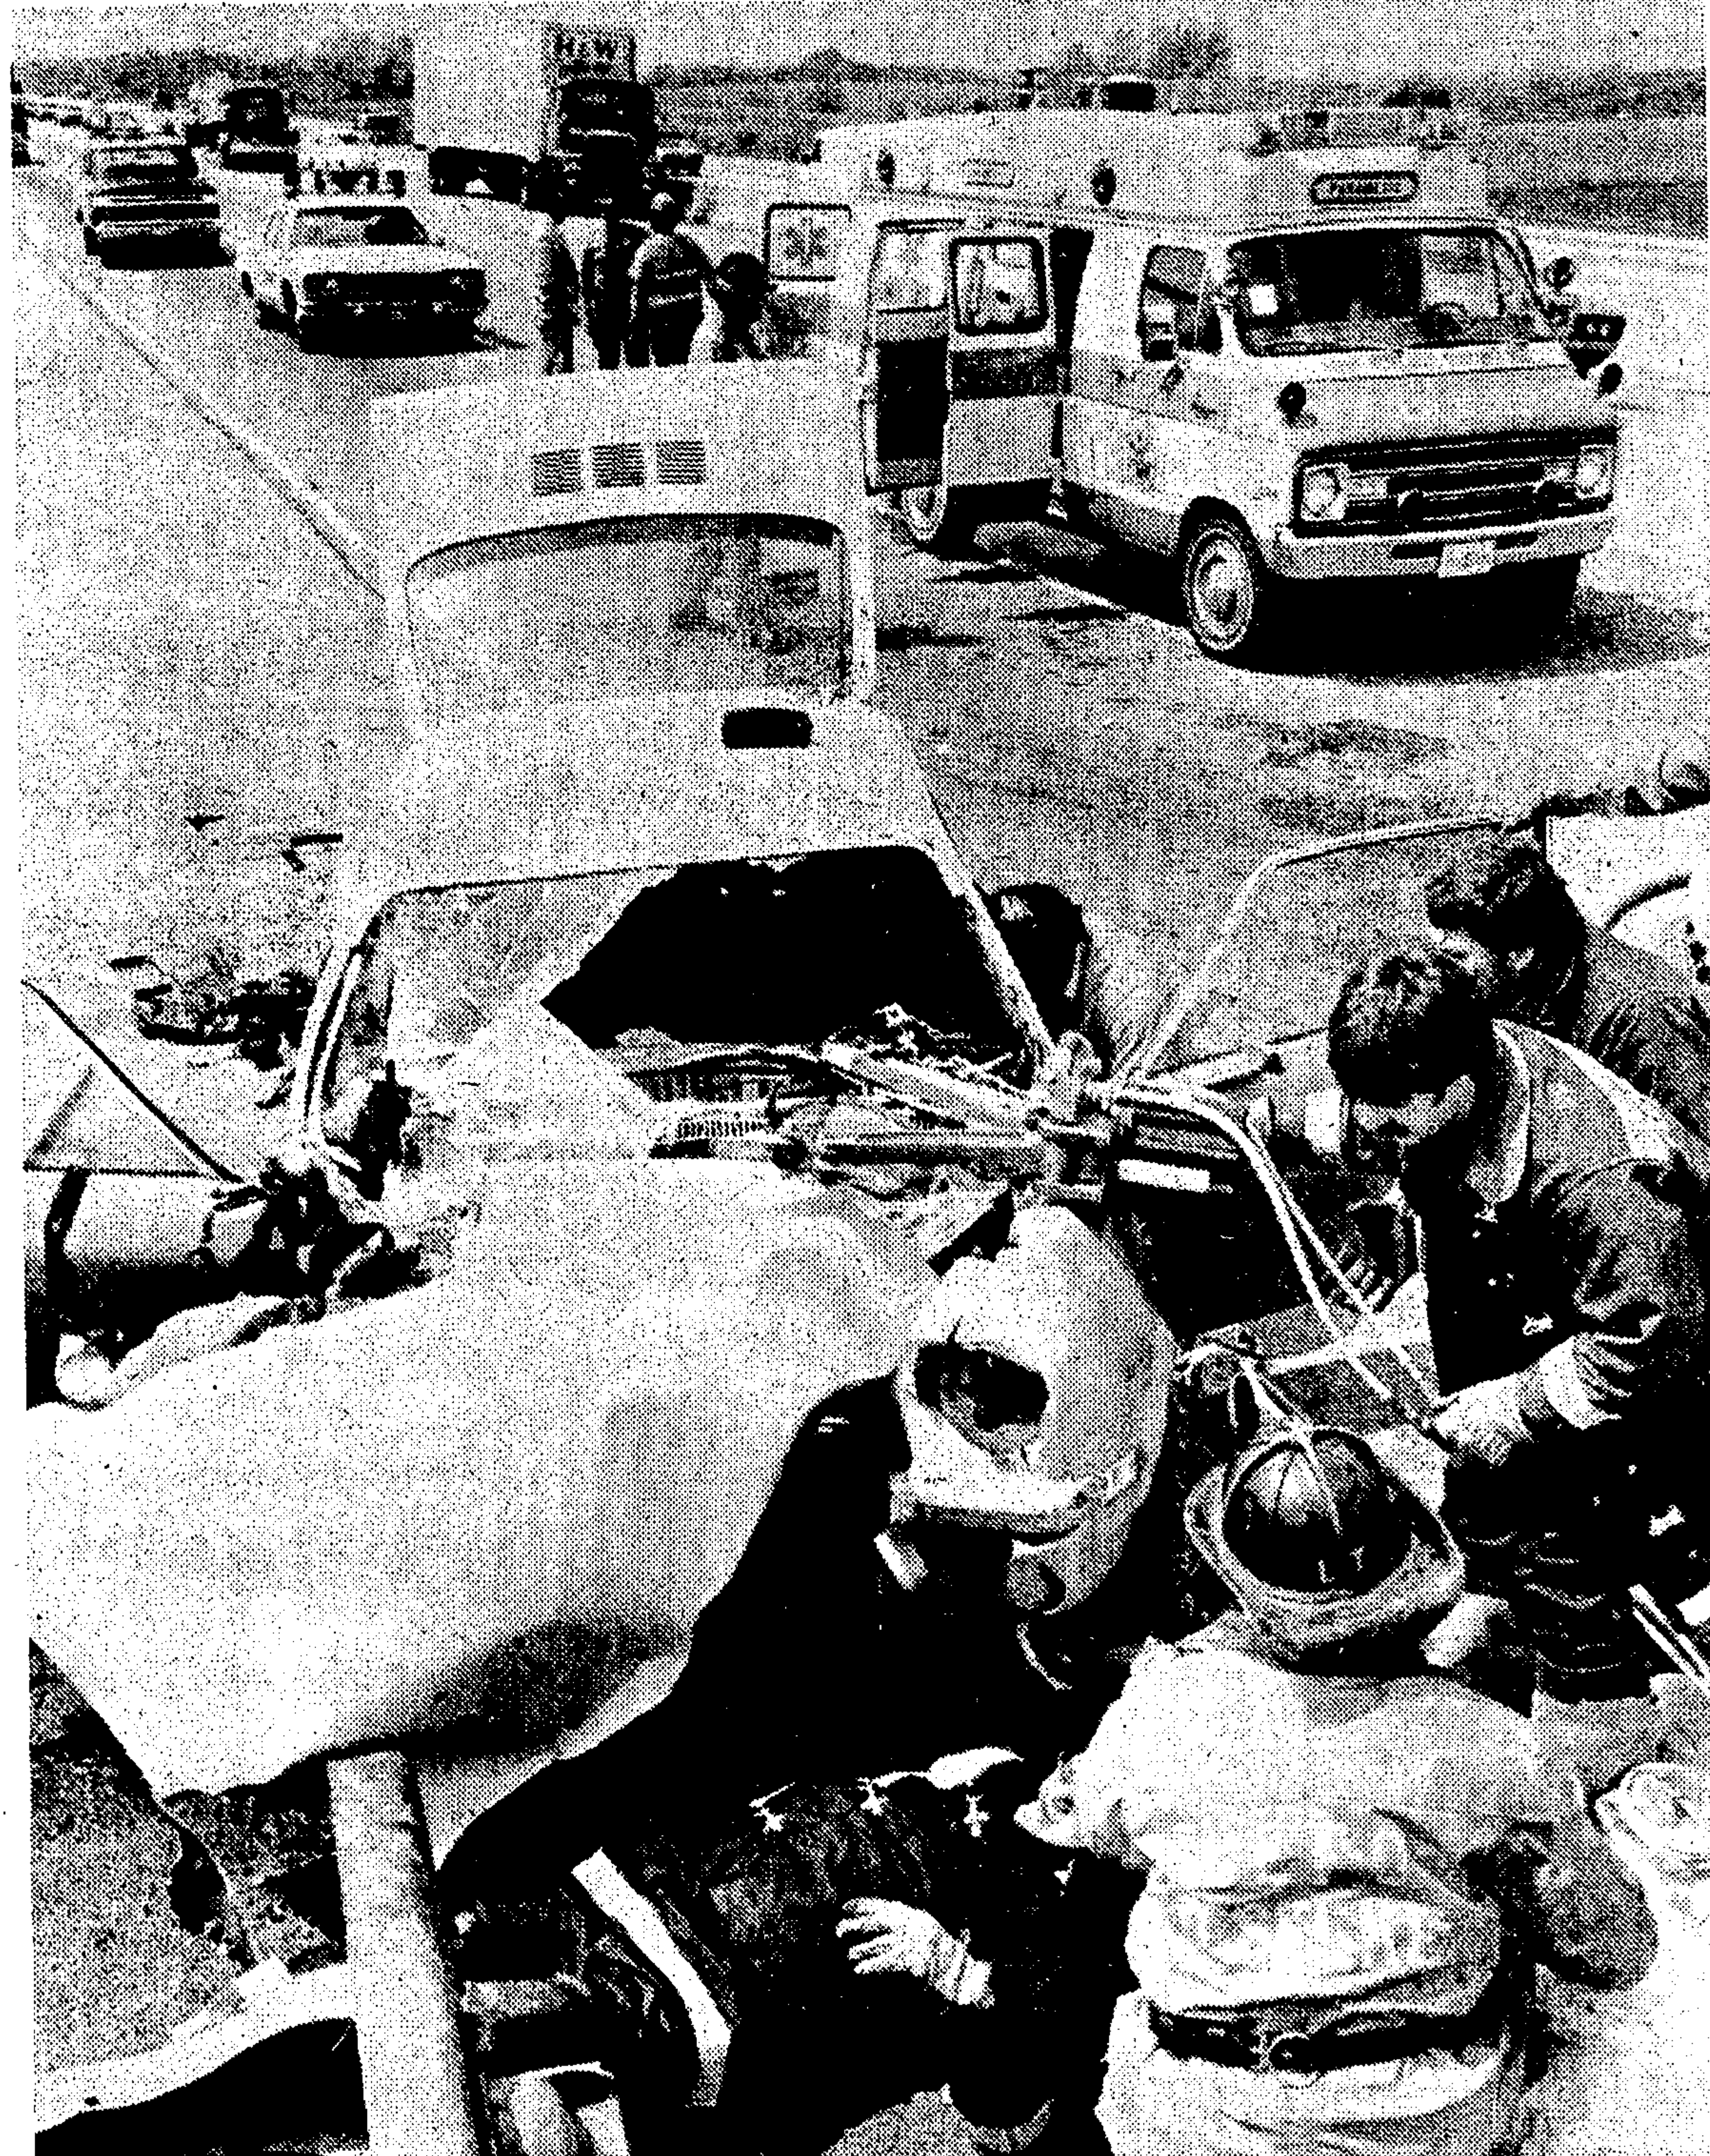

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

Residents want 'pit' cleaned up

by JOHN N. FRANK

Residents along Stanford Lane and Mill Creek Drive have been trying to get an Arlington Heights developer to clean up property he owns behind their houses.

Each year they have received assurances it will be taken care of from village officials in Buffalo Grove, where they live, and Arlington Heights, where the property is located. Yet each spring the weeds, debris and stagnant water have returned to the area they call "The Pit."

The pit in the south end of Frenchman's Cove originally was planned as a sunken tennis court, residents say. Now used as a detention basin, it is surrounded by 3-foot weeds and filled with pieces of wood, an old tire and standing water.

DONALD FELDMAN, 648 Stanford Ln., says he wants something done to the pit before the weeds and the mosquitoes "get out of hand."

"If you walk out our backyard that's all you see are weeds and we've got this horrible retention basin. We've been going through three years of this and we don't want it to happen again," says Feldman, one of 20 families affected by the pit.

Residents mounted a campaign in 1975 to get the area cleaned up. The property's owner, Edward Swartz, of Edward Schwartz & Co., 3400 Carriage Way Dr., received citations from Arlington Heights because of the weed growth and water. Arlington Heights has no record of whether he paid the fines, but Schwartz did cut the weeds last year, residents say.

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. William Balling says he is waiting for staff reports, and there are plans to contact Arlington Heights officials about the problem, before deciding the next move.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS officials say they are aware of the problem and have been in touch with Schwartz. Schwartz was unavailable (Continued on Page 5)

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals, since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

Tree keeps county from following straight, narrow

by PAT GERLACH

The 20-foot pine is one of the things Mary and Bob Stillwell like most about the house they bought last month.

It represents a touch of "back home" for the couple, a reminder of the thick pine forests and the cool lakes in their native Minnesota.

But Monday, as she was trying to choose just the right spot to display the antique typewriter of Great Grandmother Stillwell, Mary caught sight of a man in her front yard at 1811 Schaumburg Rd. He was pounding a green stake into the ground at the base of the huge tree.

SHE PULLED A raincoat over her slight frame, and went out to investigate.

She listened quietly as the man told her the pine stood in the way of progress and must be sacrificed to straighten a sidewalk on the south side of Schaumburg Road. The road is being widened to four lanes between Barrington and Roselle roads.

George O'Brien, the county's engineer on the project, told Mrs. Stillwell the walk which now curves around her tree will be "straightened out" because the construction contract requires straight sidewalks.

She winced when O'Brien said the stake was a marker for the ax that would surely fall sometime before July.

She got on the telephone and in her whisper-soft voice, began to investigate why the sidewalk had to be routed so as to destroy her tree and more than a dozen like it.

SHE CALLED village hall and learned that the sidewalk had originally been designed for the expressed purpose of saving the mature trees along Schaumburg Road. But the village had transferred its control over the street right-of-way to the county, she was told.

People at the village hall encouraged Mrs. Stillwell to talk to other neighbors whose trees are in the path of the new sidewalk to see if support could be gained for her effort to save the greenery.

Tuesday, though, another county worker stopped by to tell her that the plans had changed and the tree probably would be felled that day. Mrs. Stillwell also was reminded that the county would be giving her and other homeowners along Schaumburg Road new driveways.

But she was persistent. She objected to "the idea of tearing out a perfectly good sidewalk just to straighten it out."

"I THINK A CURVED walk has a lot more character than a straight ribbon of concrete. People in expensive housing developments pay a lot of money for the kind of sidewalk we have now," she said.

But the woodman didn't show up. On Wednesday, Mrs. Stillwell's phone rang. It was O'Brien saying plans had been changed again and as long as the village didn't object, the sidewalk and trees would stay.

"We are going to try to save the trees, that's our main objective," County Highway Supt. Richard Golterman explained.

Golterman said the change in plans came about this week "after some internal discussion among our people" and not necessarily because Mrs. Stillwell complained. He said differences in elevation between property will "necessitate re-routing of the walkway."

SCHAUMBURG Village Engineer, Joseph E. Zgonina said Wednesday he wrote a letter to Golterman asking that the county replace the sidewalk after the roadwork is completed "in such a manner to meander within the right-of-way to avoid fixed objects such as trees, telephone poles, fire hydrants or manholes."

However Zgonina said trees in or near the right-of-way "could cause sight disturbance problems for people trying to exit or enter driveways" which might result in accidents.

That left Mary Stillwell more confused than ever. "I don't want the tree left there if it will cause accidents, but it seems to me there's plenty of room between the roadway and my front yard."

She's a shy woman, unaccustomed to taking on village or county officials. For now, she is happy the tree will remain in her front yard. "But I'm going to keep a sharp eye out to see that it really does stay," she said.

Fabish to fill trustee vacancy

Buffalo Grove voters selected three trustees Tuesday, but Village Pres. Edward Fabish will have to select one more.

"I have the right to appoint, but the board has the right to confirm," Fabish said. He said he wrote a letter to village trustees Wednesday asking for their recommendations regarding selection of someone to fill the last two years of Trustee Dorothy Carroll's term.

Ms. Carroll last month submitted her resignation effective May 3 because she is moving to California.

"Hopefully, it will be filled within one meeting after Dorothy leaves," Fabish said. He plans to interview prospective trustees. "It's not going to be easy. I'm sure some people's feelings are going to be hurt," Fabish said.

MS. CARROLL said she will not make any recommendations even though people interested in the position have approached her.

"I did not feel it was my place to recommend anyone. It's his decision and his responsibility. He knows who he can work with," she said.

Trustee John Marienthal said he has not given the subject a great deal of thought, but is sure he will make his feelings known to Fabish in the next week.

The two persons who unsuccessfully ran for the board Tuesday should not be given priority in considering candidates to fill the vacancy, Marienthal said. He was referring to Edward A. Osman and Joseph A. Pecoraro, losers in Tuesday's election.

"If there are qualified people that decided not to run this time or decided too late to run I think they should be considered," he said.

"THE CHOICE WAS made for three of the five (candidates), the people made their choice there," Fabish said. "The individuals themselves are the issue," not whether or not they ran in the recent election, he said.

Fabish said he will not necessarily be looking for someone who agrees with his opinions or those of the trustees. He said he will be looking for someone who can "keep cool" as a trustee and can "weed through all the bush to get to the base of a problem."

People have already started calling him to be considered for the appointment, Fabish said.

He said he expects seven or eight persons to surface as candidates before he makes a decision.

Vote canvass, officials' installation set Monday

The official canvass of the votes cast in Tuesday's election will be conducted by the Buffalo Grove Village Board at 8 p.m. Monday, followed by the installation of the new village officials.

Howard Keister, Incumbent Trustee Clarice Rech and Stephen Stone won four-year terms on the board.

Keister received 641 votes, Mrs. Rech, 606, and Stone, 447. Edward Osman received 291 votes and Joseph Pecoraro, 269, in a losing effort.

The unofficial precinct totals are:

- Precinct 1: Keister, 37; Pecoraro 13; Osman 18; Stone, 34, and Mrs. Rech 39.
- Precinct 2: Keister, 35; Pecoraro, 19; Osman, 27; Stone, 26; and Mrs. Rech, 34.
- Precinct 3: Keister, 38; Pecoraro, 16; Osman, 19; Stone, 29; and Mrs. Rech, 33.
- Precinct 4: Keister, 48; Pecoraro, 13; Osman, 27; Stone, 26; and Mrs. Rech, 46.
- Precinct 5: Keister, 50; Pecoraro, 27; Osman, 23; Stone, 37; and Mrs. Rech, 54.
- Precinct 6: Keister, 31; Pecoraro, 18; Osman, 29; Stone, 31; and Mrs. Rech, 31.
- Precinct 7: Keister, 34; Pecoraro, 13; Osman, 22; Stone, 19; and Mrs. Rech, 31.
- Precinct 8: Keister, 68; Pecoraro, 28; Osman, 37; Stone, 53; and Mrs. Rech, 83.
- Precinct 9: Keister, 65; Pecoraro, 28; Osman, 35; Stone, 58; and Mrs. Rech, 51.
- Precinct 10: Keister, 147; Pecoraro, 43; Osman, 34; Stone, 82; and Mrs. Rech, 127.
- Precinct 11: Keister, 88; Pecoraro, 51; Osman, 20; Stone, 52; and Mrs. Rech, 73.

Residents want 'pit' cleaned up

for comment. The bureaucratic run-around, however, upset Catherine Roderick, 600 Stanford Ln., when she battled to have the area cleaned up in 1975.

"I'm angered by the fact that everybody was so very, very nice and then the whole year would go by and nothing would happen," Mrs. Roderick says.

She and her husband have erected a fence between their property and the pit, but it hasn't kept out the mosquitos, she says. One day last spring, she counted 100 mosquitos stuck to her screen door.

"I've done everything I can think of in the four years I have owned the property and nothing has been done. It is important to me and I've tried, but it's the old saying — you can't fight city hall," she says.

"It's still an eyesore," says Janice Young, 1227 Mill Creek Dr. "It's a garbage heap back here until it's developed. They said they were going to build but it takes years to do things."

IN 1975, the Youngs often were inundated with water running off the mounds of dirt near the pit, Mrs. Young says. That problem has not occurred this year, "but we haven't had the heavy rains yet," she says.

"We've been going through this for three years. The coals are still burning, we want this thing taken care of," Feldman says.

Residents are willing to work with Schwartz to keep the area clean, Feldman says.

"We'll work with him if he'll work with us. A man takes care of his house, he has to take care of his property," he says.

Streetlight off; woman still burns

by DEBBE JONAK

The streetlight at Rusty Drive and Estes Street was turned off quietly last week, after burning 24 hours a day for four months.

Another, at River and Riverview roads, was turned off the week before.

They now burn only at night, as they should — but correcting the problem took numerous calls to Des Plaines City Hall from citizen watchdog Kathy Jourdan, 2546 Rusty Dr.

HOWEVER, she could have made thousands of calls, and the lights would not have been fixed any sooner, according to Commonwealth Edison representative Gordon Baer.

Edison is responsible for maintenance of Des Plaines streetlights. City public works officials said they reported the problem to Baer in January and again in February.

Baer said the delay in repair was caused by a shortage of the devices needed to fix the streetlights.

"Those lights are operated by a photo-electric cell," he said, explaining the streetlights are turned off and on by that light-sensitive cell.

"SOMETIMES IT can get dirty or it can go bad," Baer said.

In this case, the cells in the streetlights went bad and needed replacement, but Edison was fresh out.

"We had run out and reordered," Baer said. "But it took a long time to get them."

The city will not pay for the electricity burned by the streetlights during the day, he said. Edison charges the city a flat rate, which is not affected by how long the lights are left on.

WHILE THE LIGHTS were on, they each consumed about 500 kilowatt hours, in energy. That equals the amount of electricity used by an average household in one month.

"It's not very much at all," Baer said.

However, Mrs. Jourdan remains irate, pointing out she is advised to turn off the much smaller lights in her house during these times of energy shortages. Yet the city and Edison shrug their shoulders at leaving a streetlight burning during the day for four months.

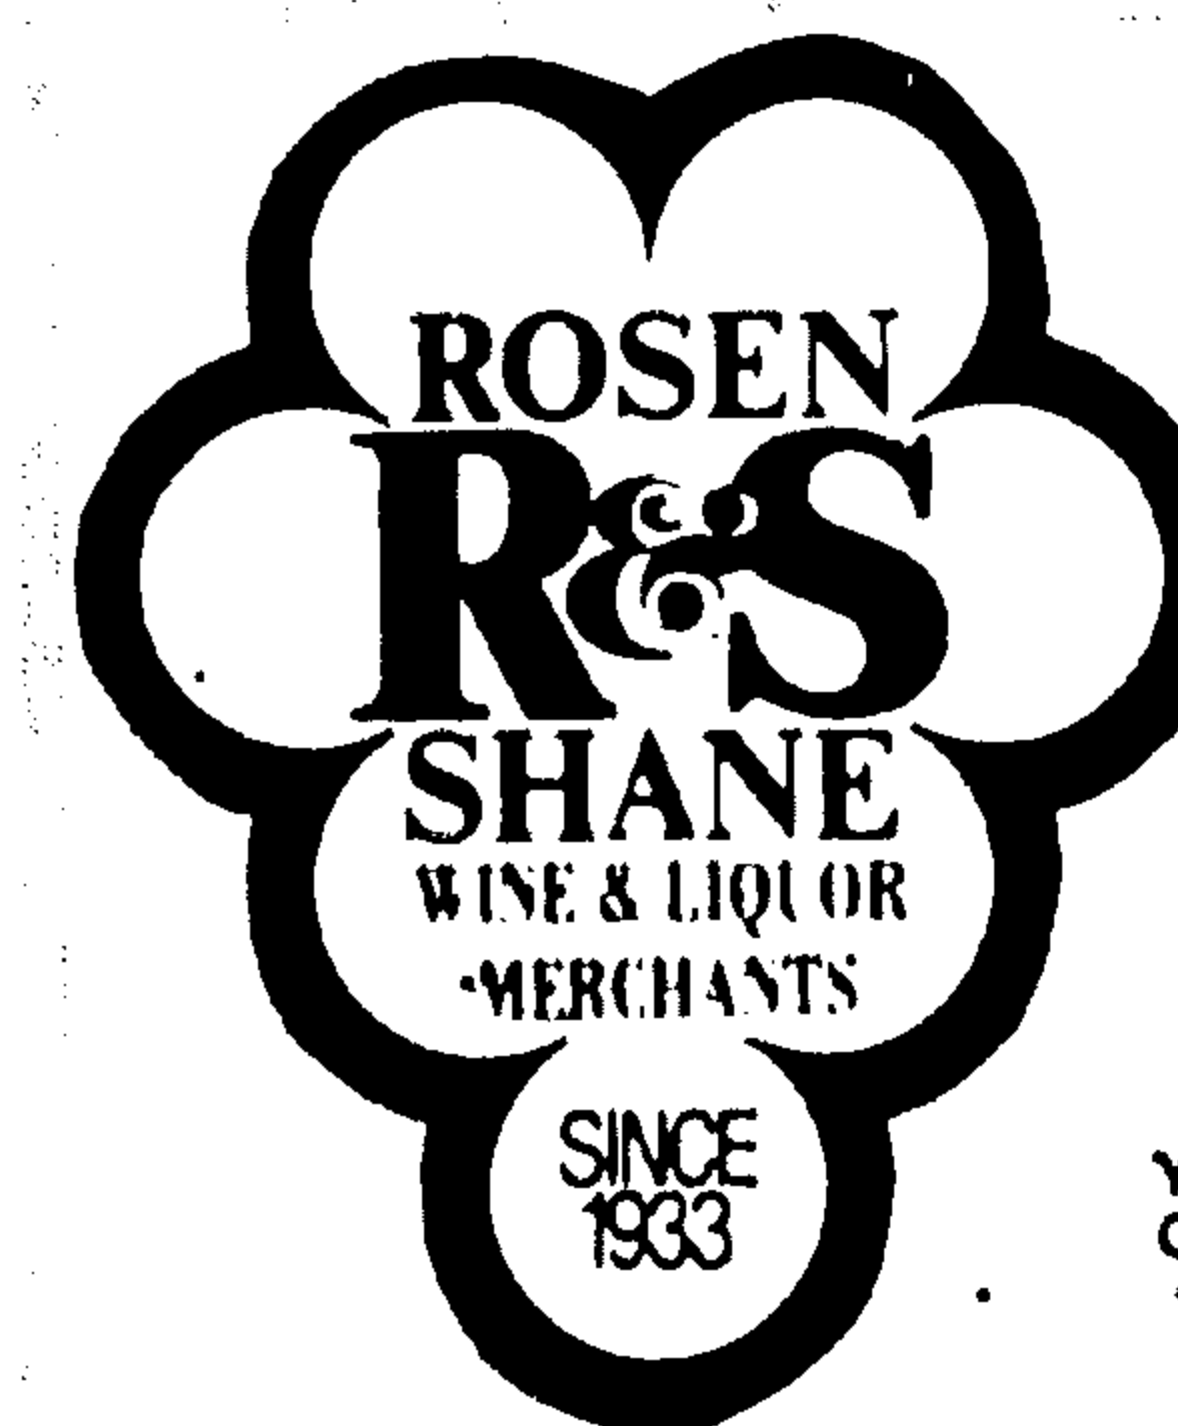

"I wish I could talk to (President) Carter when he talks about his energy program," she said.

Cleanup group on Des Plaines River asks aid

Pollution problems along the Des Plaines River have prompted the formation of a Lake County Clean Streams Committee.

The committee is looking for interested people to serve on the legal, public relations, field work, clean up and liaison subcommittees, according to Wayne Quilloco, ad hoc chairman of the committee.

Persons to contact for the different committees are: legal, Jerry Soesbe, 244-7192 or 367-6640; public relations, Joe Gilby, 234-5916; field work, Al Somner, 546-8423; agency liaison, Gwen Ferrari, 546-4133; and political action, Sarah McGowan, 234-2645.

Hotrodding teens force neighborhood tots indoors

by NANCY GOTLER

A handful of teen-age hot-rodders have forced some residents of W. Berkeley Drive in Arlington Heights to keep their children indoors and to fear retaliation if they press charges.

"I hate to say it, but one of our children isn't going to be with us by the end of the summer," one mother of seven predicted.

"I don't know who's going to get it and I hope I don't have to find out,"

she said. "I don't want to be the one to have to pick up a dead child from the street, carry it to its mother and say, 'Here, bury it.' But it's going to happen."

THE WOMAN and a half dozen of her neighbors in a two-block area along West Berkeley Drive between Mitchell and Ridge avenues refused to allow their names to be used because they fear reprisals from the teenagers.

They say the racing, which includes motorcycles, cars and minibikes, starts by 3 p.m. almost every day and sometimes lasts until midnight.

"A neighbor and I recently pulled two 3-year-olds out of the path of speeding motorcycles," the woman said. "Some of the boys involved live in this neighborhood and I've talked to them and to their parents, but it doesn't do any good."

Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights police captain, said residents who can positively identify a reckless driver can press charges.

Although many residents said they have called police numerous times to complain, Buckholz said he was not aware of a severe problem in the area.

HOWEVER, after being contacted by The Herald about the situation, Buckholz assigned an officer to monitor the area with a radar speed detection device and said the neighborhood will be watched in the future.

Another mother of two preschool children said she no longer allows them to play in front of the house in the late afternoons or evenings.

"Those kids ride motorcycles even on the sidewalks, and when I see them coming I pull my kids inside," she said. "It's so bad I hardly even let them play out in front any more."

"But there's nothing we can really do about it if we don't know who they are," she said. "When the police come the kids get away before they can be caught."

A third neighbor also feared a child could be hurt or killed.

"The way the kids drive those cars I could see a kid running into the street and getting run over. As the weather gets better the problem will probably get worse."

SHE SAID SHE has clocked speeders going as fast as 60 miles per hour in the 25 mph zone.

Parents are especially concerned because they live one block from Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School, 2800 N. Highland Ave. Many students walk home just as the hot-rodding begins.

Two brothers held after chase on motorcycles

Two Buffalo Grove brothers were arrested by Arlington Heights police Wednesday night after two separate high speed chases involving motorcycles.

Daniel Schrader, 16, and James A. Schrader, 18, both of 467 Forest Lake Dr., were taken into custody after their two motorcycles were clocked by radar at going 54 miles an hour in the 25-mile-an-hour zone on Kennicott Avenue near Ladd Street, police said.

Speeding autos recently have been reported in that area.

Daniel Schrader was charged with driving without a valid license, speeding and eluding police. His brother was charged with speeding, eluding police, reckless driving and damage to village property.

Capt. Paul Bucholz of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said Patrolman

Larry St. Pierre pursued the motorcycles after the radar clocked them speeding, but only James Schrader pulled over. His brother with an unidentified girl companion kept on going down Kennicott Avenue.

When St. Pierre chased the younger Schrader, the elder brother left the scene traveling at a high rate of speed with police in pursuit until he wrecked his motorcycle in Frontier Park, Bucholz said. The 16-year-old Schrader eluded police, but only after he ditched his vehicle and fled on foot with his girl companion.

The younger brother turned himself in to police later Wednesday night, Bucholz said.

The brothers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Schrader, had left for Jamaica only six hours before the speeding incident.

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2,488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis . . . could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups. The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

Polyester pinch possible

by LYNN ASINOF

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wears the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

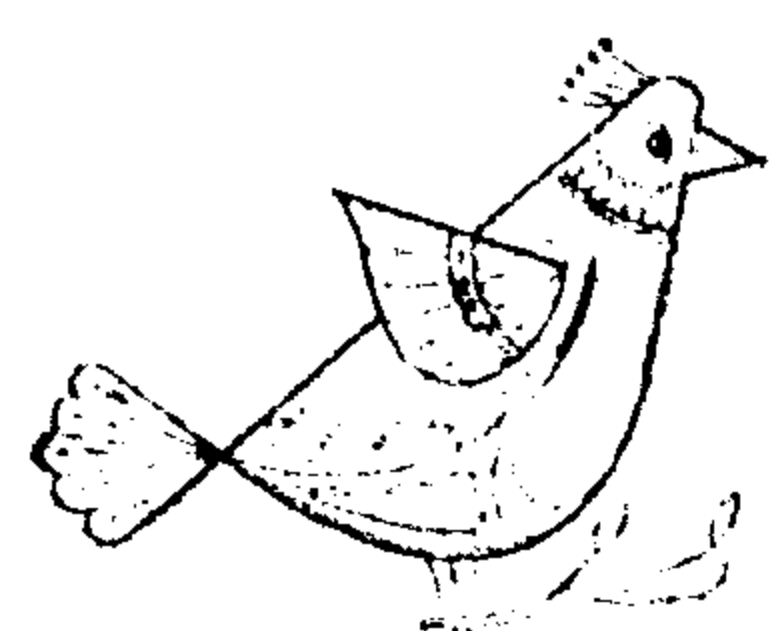

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Related story on Page 19

Lattof said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

HOFFMAN ESTATES paramedics work feverishly to free William J. Thanos of Elk Grove Village from the wreckage of his car after it plowed into the back of a parked semi-truck on the Northwest Tollway 1 mile west of Ill. Rte. 53 at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Thanos, 27, of 632 Carroll Square, was listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Illinois State Police said Thanos apparently fell asleep at the steering wheel when the accident occurred.

Last shall be first, Garr finds

by MARY DIETER

Even his campaign manager says Lee Garr started in fourth place.

He was the only candidate in Tuesday's Elk Grove Village municipal election left out when the current board chose up sides.

He was associated, particularly at its inception, with a losing Elk Grove Township unit school district cause.

HE WAS CORRECTED publicly at least twice when his opponents caught him with his facts a little confused.

But he still won — and got more votes than the other candidates in the race for three trustee posts. He even outdistanced veteran trustee Nanci Vanderweel, who four years ago topped everyone with 2,325 votes.

The biggest reason, community leaders said, is that Garr worked hard. He held a number of coffee hours and talked with the voters. He passed out thousands of brochures. He was the only candidate with campaign signs displayed before election day.

"We went to the people we thought would get out and vote," Garr said. "I thought we'd win all along."

"Lee Garr worked very hard — probably more than anyone else in the election," Village Pres. Charles Zetek said. "He concentrated on certain areas of the village not so enchanted with the current board."

Precinct totals show that may be true. Garr won heavily in precincts west of Ill. Rte. 53, the part of the village which many persons say really is not part of it at all.

ZETEK SAID that area is not disenchanted with the board — "just upset that they couldn't water their lawns" last summer.

But Randy Melind, one of Garr's campaign managers, thinks otherwise.

"The victory there was for a change in the board. They (residents) feel they are not part of Elk Grove," Melind said. "We held a lot of coffees there and they are upset with the present board."

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

But tree is in the way

County seeks straight, narrow

by PAT GERLACH

The 20-foot pine is one of the things Mary and Bob Stillwell like most about the house they bought last month.

It represents a touch of "back home" for the couple, a reminder of the thick pine forests and the cool lakes in their native Minnesota.

But Monday, as she was trying to choose just the right spot to display the antique typewriter of Great Grandmother Stillwell, Mary caught sight of a man in her front yard at 1811 Schaumburg Rd. He was pounding a green stake into the ground at the base of the huge tree.

SHE PULLED A raincoat over her slight frame, and went out to investigate.

She listened quietly as the man told her the pine stood in the way of progress and must be sacrificed to straighten a sidewalk on the south side of Schaumburg Road. The road is being widened to four lanes between Barrington and Roselle roads.

George O'Brien, the county's engineer on the project, told Mrs. Stillwell the walk which now curves around her tree will be "straightened out" because the construction contract requires straight sidewalks.

She winced when O'Brien said the stake was a marker for the ax that would surely fall sometime before July.

She got on the telephone and in her whisper-soft voice, began to investigate why the sidewalk had to be routed so as to destroy her tree and more than a dozen like it.

SHE CALLED village hall and learned that the sidewalk had originally been designed for the expressed purpose of saving the mature trees along Schaumburg Road. But the village had transferred its control over the street right-of-way to the county, she was told.

People at the village hall encouraged Mrs. Stillwell to talk to other neighbors whose trees are in the path of the new sidewalk to see if support could be gained for her effort to save the greenery.

Tuesday, though, another county worker stopped by to tell her that the plans had changed and the tree probably would be felled that day. Mrs. Stillwell also was reminded that the county would be giving her and other homeowners along Schaumburg Road new driveways.

But she was persistent. She objected to "the idea of tearing out a perfectly good sidewalk just to straighten it out."

"I THINK A CURVED walk has a lot more character than a straight ribbon of concrete. People in expensive housing developments pay a lot of money for the kind of sidewalk we have now," she said.

But the woodman didn't show up. On Wednesday, Mrs. Stillwell's phone rang. It was O'Brien saying plans had been changed again and as long as the village didn't object, the sidewalk and trees would stay.

"We are going to try to save the trees, that's our main objective," County Highway Supt. Richard Goltzman explained.

Goltzman said the change in plans came about this week "after some internal discussion among our people" and not necessarily because Mrs. Stillwell complained. He said differences in elevation between property will "necessitate re-routing of the walkway."

SCHAUMBURG Village Engineer, Joseph E. Zgonina said Wednesday he wrote a letter to Goltzman asking that the county replace the sidewalk after the roadwork is completed "in such a manner to meander within the right-of-way to avoid fixed objects such as trees, telephone poles, fire hydrants or manholes."

However Zgonina said trees in or near the right-of-way "could cause sight disturbance problems for people trying to exit or enter driveways" which might result in accidents.

That left Mary Stillwell more confused than ever. "I don't want the tree left there if it will cause accidents, but it seems to me there's plenty of room between the roadway and my front yard."

She's a shy woman, unaccustomed to taking on village or county officials. For now, she is happy the tree will remain in her front yard. "But I'm going to keep a sharp eye out to see that it really does stay," she said.

a tight-knit, chummy organization" may have hurt losing candidate James Petri, who after winning support from the board, seemed to agree with much of what the incumbents said.

"A lot of people said, 'Hey, we don't want them to have another club member,'" Zettek said.

"We didn't see much of Petri at all," Melind said. "He had no platform, no program. Perhaps he thought he would slide in with the incumbents."

PETRI HAD LITTLE public exposure. Although he attended nearly every village meeting possible, few others did.

Petri's pet issue of dividing the village into wards fell by the wayside early, and he failed to pick up another.

Instead, he used his meeting attendance as proof of his interest. But a lack of exposure to the voters may have hurt.

Petri spoke with voters in the Village-on-the-Lake planned unit development only once, said Dennis Cuny, Elk Grove Homeowners' Estates vice president. "It was sort of disappointing to us. But it's hard to overcome that hometown-boy image Lee has."

Garr, who lives in the planned unit development, won that precinct by 37 votes over Mrs. Vanderweel. And he beat Petri there 229 to 31.

ZETTEK SAID Garr's support there came because of his outspoken stands on some issues that particularly affect the area. But, more importantly, incumbent Trustee Theodore Staddler came off poorly at a candidates' night held there — giving more votes to Garr, Zettek said.

Both Cuny and Zettek said residents of the planned unit development, like Garr, strongly favored a unit district and consequently favored Garr.

Although the unit district referendum was defeated by a 2-1 margin, it lost in the village by only 132 votes out of more than 6,000 cast.

The unit district instead may have affected Mrs. Vanderweel, who worked against it, Zettek said.

"I think Mrs. Vanderweel suffered from unit district votes," he said, adding that he heard literature had been distributed urging persons not to vote for her because of her stand.

Despite that, Zettek insisted the incumbents' victories were sound.

"Vanderweel and Staddler won the election before the polls opened," he said. "Garr beat Petri — he only ran against one person."

Wiretap bug-a-boo grows: expert

Bugged martini olives don't work. "Why would you go to all the trouble to bug a martini? Give the person enough martinis and he'll tell you anything," John Magnuson told members of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce Wednesday.

"You get the wire-tapping, bugging concept from reading comic books and watching TV," he said. "But there's about as much realism in those dramas as in a Perry Mason courtroom."

Magnuson, a 30-year veteran of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., spoke about the "shadowy world of electronic snooping" — a popular topic, he said, since the Watergate break ins and allegations against the CIA.

"All of a sudden, it became a very harsh reality. What formerly was a little domestic problem now becomes a problem across the United States," he said.

AND WHILE THE chances for illegal telephone tapings are "remote," Magnuson said the scare they give people warrants new precautions.

Up until two years ago, the telephone company would remove an illegal bug from a telephone, inform the owner and go to court as an expert witness if the owner wanted to prosecute, Magnuson said.

Now, company personnel will inspect and if a bug is found, they inform the owner, he said. But the bug stays put, and the company also calls the county state's attorney's office and the FBI.

There's no question that wire-tapping is taken more seriously than ever before, Magnuson said, but it's not widespread.

NATIONWIDE, about 150 to 200 illegal taps are found each year, he said. And only 108 legal taps, ordered in 1975 by federal judges, were put on about 156 million telephones across the United States.

Magnuson said there are various types of bugs, but they're impossible to detect through noises over the phone line.

"They give no indication whatsoever there's any listening device," he said. "So what's to prevent them? Time, effort, money or laws.

Parents fear worst

Hotrodders force tots indoors

by NANCY GOTLER

A handful of teen-age hot-rodders have forced some residents of W. Berkeley Drive in Arlington Heights to keep their children indoors and to fear retaliation if they press charges.

"I hate to say it, but one of our children isn't going to be with us by the end of the summer," one mother of seven predicted.

"I don't know who's going to get it and I hope I don't have to find out," she said. "I don't want to be the one to have to pick up a dead child from the street, carry it to its mother and say, 'Here, bury it.' But it's going to happen."

THE WOMAN and a half dozen of her neighbors in a two-block area along West Berkeley Drive between Mitchell and Ridge avenues refused to allow their names to be used because they fear reprisals from the teen-agers.

They say the racing, which includes motorcycles, cars and minibikes, starts by 3 p.m. almost every day and sometimes lasts until midnight.

"A neighbor and I recently pulled two 3-year-olds out of the path of speeding motorcycles," the woman said. "Some of the boys involved live in this neighborhood and I've talked to them and to their parents, but it doesn't do any good."

Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights police captain, said residents who can positively identify a reckless driver can press charges.

Although many residents said they have called police numerous times to complain, Buckholz said he was not aware of a severe problem in the area.

HOWEVER, after being contacted by The Herald about the situation, Buckholz assigned an officer to monitor the area with a radar speed detection device and said the neighborhood will be watched in the future.

Another mother of two preschool children said she no longer allows them to play in front of the house in the late afternoons or evenings.

"Those kids ride motorcycles even on the sidewalks, and when I see them coming I pull my kids inside," she said. "It's so bad I hardly even let them play out in front any more.

"But there's nothing we can really do about it if we don't know who they are," she said. "When the police come the kids get away before they can be caught."

A third neighbor also feared a child could be hurt or killed.

"The way the kids drive those cars

I could see a kid running into the street and getting run over. As the weather gets better the problem will probably get worse."

SHE SAID SHE has clocked speeders going as fast as 60 miles per hour in the 25 mph zone.

Parents are especially concerned because they live one block from Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School, 2800 N. Highland Ave. Many students walk home just as the hot-rodding begins.

Still another woman, whose youngest child is 10, said, "It's dangerous because there are a lot of small children in the neighborhood. If something isn't done about it there's a good chance one of them will be hurt."

Dist. 59 festival slated Saturday

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 third annual festival of the arts will be from 2 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

Festival activities will include choral, instrumental, dance and drama performances by some 600 elementary and junior high school students.

Student art projects will be on display in the high school cafeteria throughout the festival.

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2.488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups. The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

Polyester pinch possible

by LYNN ASINOF

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wears the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

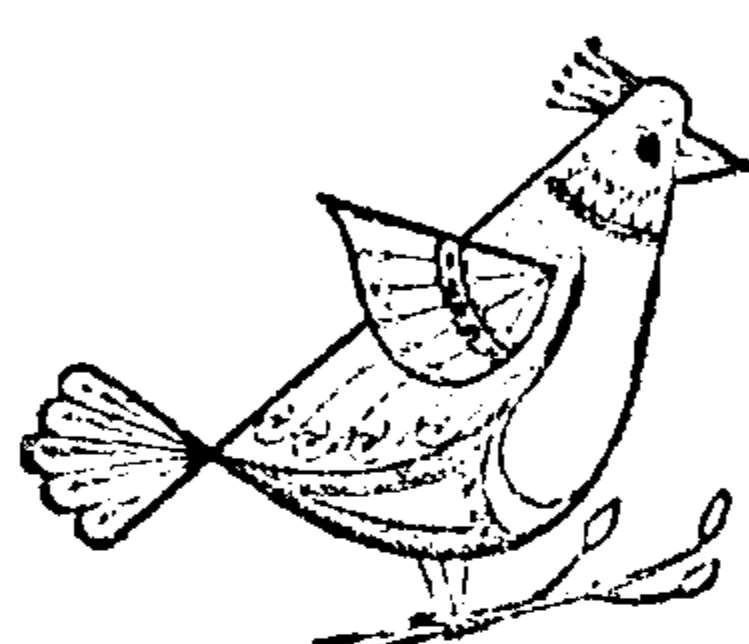

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Related story on Page 19

Lattof said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

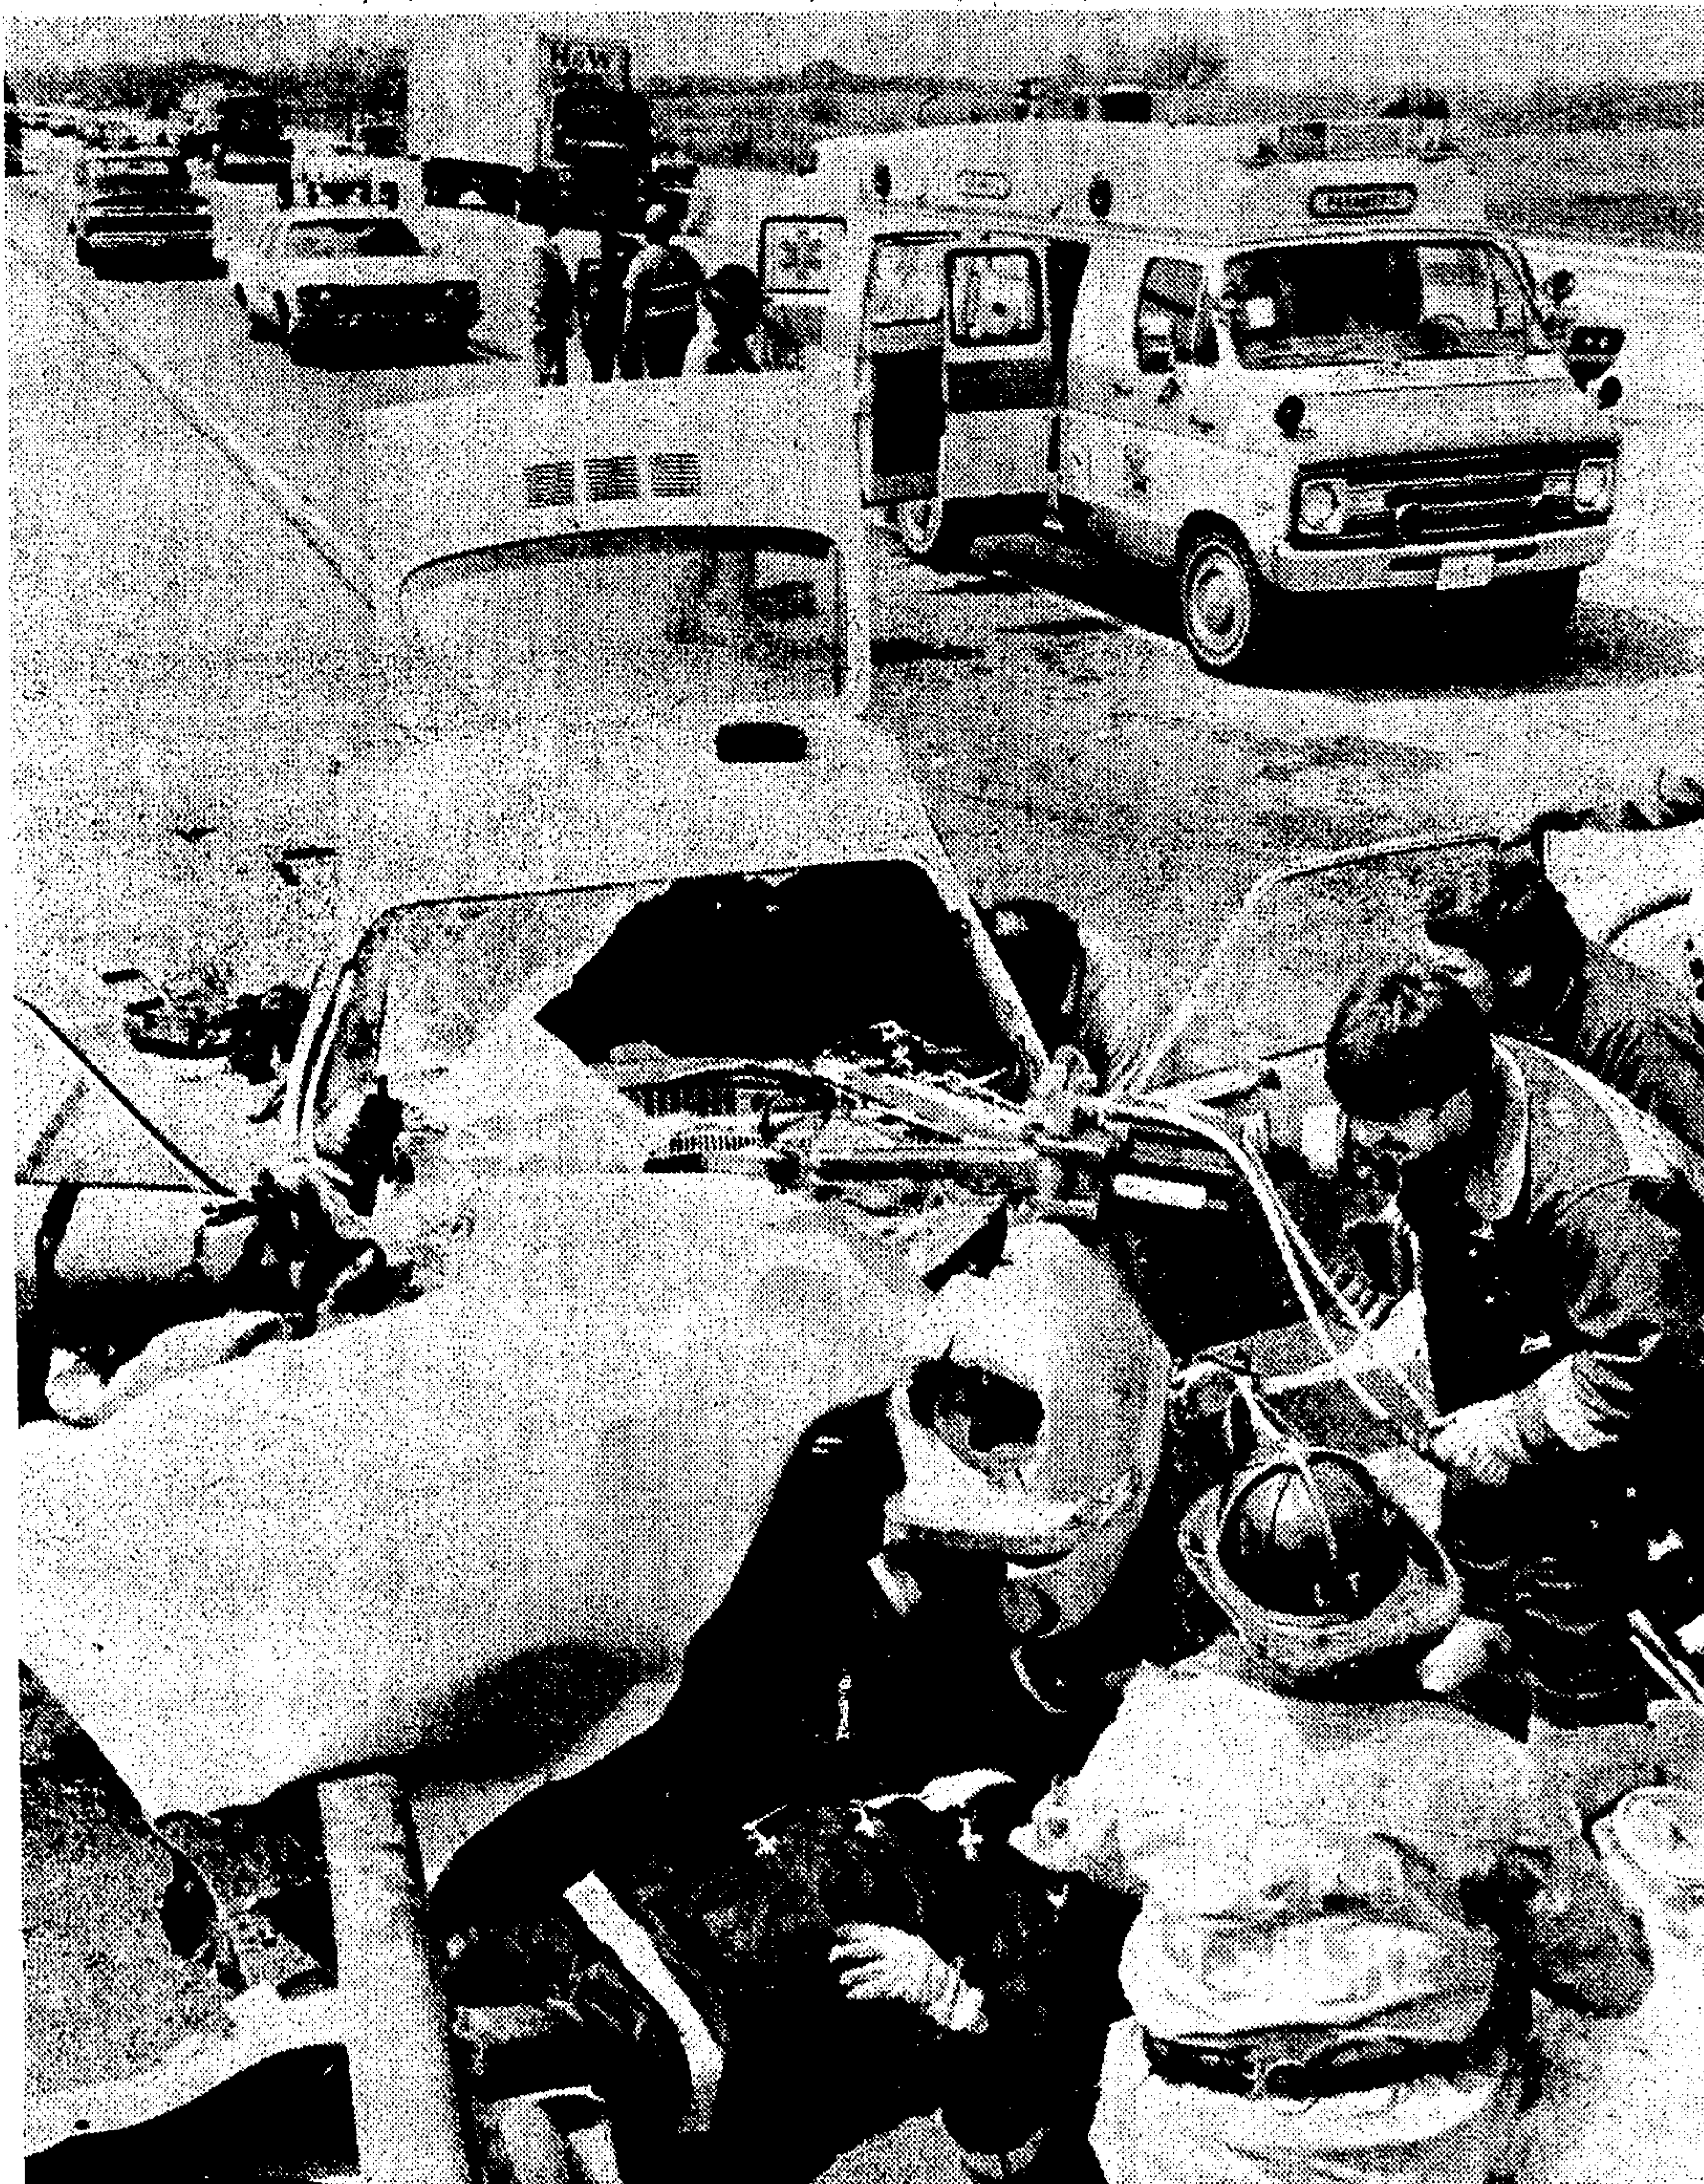

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

Tree takes plans off beaten path

by PAT GERLACH

The 20-foot pine is one of the things Mary and Bob Stillwell like most about the house they bought last month.

It represents a touch of "back home" for the couple, a reminder of the thick pine forests and the cool lakes in their native Minnesota.

But Monday, as she was trying to choose just the right spot to display the antique typewriter of Great Grandmother Stillwell, Mary caught sight of a man in her front yard at 1811 Schaumburg Rd. He was pounding a green stake into the ground at the base of the huge tree.

SHE PULLED A raincoat over her slight frame, and went out to investigate.

She listened quietly as the man told her the pine stood in the way of progress and must be sacrificed to straighten a sidewalk on the south side of Schaumburg Road. The road is being widened to four lanes between Barrington and Roselle roads.

George O'Brien, the county's engineer on the project, told Mrs. Stillwell the walk which now curves around her tree will be "straightened out" because the construction contract requires straight sidewalks.

She winced when O'Brien said the stake was a marker for the ax that would surely fall sometime before July.

She got on the telephone and in her whisper-soft voice, began to investigate why the sidewalk had to be routed so as to destroy her tree and more than a dozen like it.

SHE CALLED village hall and learned that the sidewalk had originally been designed for the expressed purpose of saving the mature trees along Schaumburg Road. But the village had transferred its control over the street right-of-way to the county, she was told.

People at the village hall encouraged Mrs. Stillwell to talk to other neighbors whose trees are in the path of the new sidewalk to see if support

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

• Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

• Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

• Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

• Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

• Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time, and I think that's where the strong vote came from,'" Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

Virginia Hayter

Republicans got out the vote

'Scared' tactics reap GOP win

Hayter 4-1 victory sets village record

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter's stunning reelection Tuesday night was by the widest margin in the history of the community.

Mrs. Hayter received 1,887 votes or 78 per cent to win by almost 4 to 1 over Democrat Charles J. DePaul, who collected 482 votes or 20 per cent, and independent Irene L. Petke, who received 63 votes or 2 per cent.

Previously, the biggest winner was Village Pres. Edward Pinger who won reelection over Robert Barnitt in 1961 with 69 per cent of the vote.

Other historical footnotes from Tuesday's village election are:

- The 2,432 casting ballots in the presidential election was the fewest number since 1961 when 2,063 went to the polls. The 17 per cent voter turnout was by far the lowest of any presidential election in the village's history.
- Bruce Lind became the second, third-term trustee in the village's history. Trustee William Cowin, who was elected for a third time in 1975, is the other.
- Helon Wozniak became the first village clerk in the community's history to be elected twice. She did not approach her 1973 vote total, when she garnered 2,173 votes, the most ever received by a political candidate in Hoffman Estates. However, Mrs. Wozniak's 70 per cent share of the vote Tuesday topped the previous high of 68 per cent compiled by Marilyn Brading when she beat Eleanor Kremer in 1959 to become the village's first clerk.
- With her defeat, Mrs. Petke became the only three-time loser in the village's history. She also lost a try for village president in 1973 and a bid for trustee in 1961. There have been two-time losers, including DePaul, who also lost a run for trustee in 1959.
- Mrs. Petke and trustee candidate Mark P. Davis were the 17th and 18th independents to run for village offices and the 17th and 18th to lose.
- Republican candidates have won the last 21 offices elected in the village. No Republican has lost a village election since the party began running slates in 1969.
- Nine of the 10 elections in the village have resulted in sweeps by one party. The only exception was in 1967 when Better Government Party candidate Cowin joined Village Party incumbents Howard Noble and James Sloan in the winners' circle.

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The Republican Party of Hoffman Estates campaign philosophy always has been; "We run scared."

This year's municipal election was no different; the candidates and the campaign workers were all out knocking on doors.

And despite the crushing victory the Republican slate handed the Democrats, the apprehension the GOP expressed earlier about the race was real.

"A LOT OF people say, 'You're a Republican community.' But you're not unless you get out that vote," said Virginia M. Hayter, who was reelected village president Tuesday by a 4-1 margin.

"I expected it to be much closer than it was because it was a possibility."

In analyzing the reasons behind the Republican's overwhelming victory, one argument stands out: the GOP got out the vote; the Democrats did not.

Democratic hopes in the election had been tied to a big turnout. William Shifka, president of the Democratic Club, had said he expected his slates to have a good chance if more than 4,000 voters came out.

Instead, only about 17 per cent of the voter went to the polls, a total of a little more than 2,400.

"IF MORE PEOPLE would have voted, it would have been different," Democratic village clerk candidate Betty Sullivan said. "But that's how it goes."

Charles J. DePaul, the Democrats' village president hopeful, maintained even after his huge defeat that the majority of people in Hoffman Estates would have preferred a change.

But for some reason, he people who had complained about the Republican administration, the ones who told him they were going to vote, never went to the polls, he said.

Melvin Budish, who finished a weak sixth in the race for three trustee seats, blamed the overcast and rainy weather and "some apathy" for the low turnout.

Mrs. Hayter said Republicans found it extremely difficult to get the voters out, particularly during the rain storm in the late afternoon when many traditionally go to the polls after getting home from work.

BUT PART OF the reason could be because the Democratic Club was formed only last summer as an alternative to the older Democratic Organization of Schaumburg Township and ran the race without the support of the older organization.

"We felt that they were probably better organized than in retrospect we think they were," Mrs. Hayter said "I don't think they really worked their Democratic vote."

No particular section of the village can be pinpointed as the deciding factor. Republicans won by margins of at least 2-4-1 in every precinct.

The GOP was expected to be strongest in the older, southern section of town, and it was. Mrs. Hayter took those five precincts with a healthy 714-215 margin over DePaul, and Democrats weren't much closer in the other races.

THE DEMOCRATS were pinning their hopes on the Palatine Township portion of the village and Barrington square.

They had worked the two areas hard, and the Democratic candidates said they felt there was a lot of unrest in those sections though they conceded that Winston Knolls was supposed to be a strong Republican area.

The votes in the northern section went heavily Republican, however, giving Mrs. Hayter a 184-43 edge over DePaul, and she defeated DePaul 86 to 34 in Barrington Square.

Students meet principal on sex bias

by HOLLY HANSON

Palatine High School students who have charged the school administration with sex discrimination and a violation of their rights to submit a petition to school officials will meet Friday with Principal Leonard Newendorp.

The students made their charges after boys enrolled in a family living class were barred by Newendorp from attending a course-related program on rape last month. Students said they want to know why Newendorp apparently refused to see a student petition asking him to reconsider the administrators' decision.

Students said they hpe to gain a clarification of their rights in the meeting, which was arranged Tuesday following a hearing four students had with Gerald Chapman, High School Dist. 211 assistant to the superintendent. The hearing was part of the Dist. 211 grievance procedure.

STUDENTS SAID if their concerns were not answered at the meeting with Newendorp, they would take their case to the Dist. 211 Board of Education April 28. The students have been scheduled on the agenda for that date, they said.

Chapman Tuesday said his meeting with the students was set up "to identify the problems as the students saw them and to reach a resolution." He and the students agreed the best way to solve the problem was for all of them to meet with Newendorp, Chapman said.

Seniors Mary Jones, Bruce Beal, Jenny Jones and Holly Vogt, who wrote and circulated the petition, will meet with Newendorp.

A fifth student, Barb Schenden, also will be present. She had helped to circulate the student petition but said she chose to remain in the background at first because of a fear she would lose her job in Palatine's guidance office if she became involved.

Students said Newendorp did not review their petition, but the principal said he did.

THE ISSUE HAS become a rallying point for both students and teachers at Palatine, Barb said. Many faculty members have praised the students for their leadership and perseverance, she said.

Additional uproar has come from parents who want an explanation of the administrative decisions, she said.

The students said they believe the decision will be explained even if they decide not to appear before the board April 28.

By following established grievance procedures, "the board will see our petition anyway," Jenny said.

The students said they realize nothing can be done to change the decision that was made last month, but they hope future controversial issues will be decided more carefully for the benefit of other students.

"The only decision that could be made would be to give Newendorp advice to move more slowly when other issues come up," Barb said.

But tree is in the way

County seeks straight, narrow

SOFT-SPOKEN MARY Stillman of Schaumburg spotted danger for a 20-foot pine tree in front of her home but apparently has convinced Cook County Highway Dept. officials to leave the tree.

could be gained for her effort to save the greenery.

Tuesday, though, another county worker stopped by to tell her that the plans had changed and the tree probably would be felled that day. Mrs. Stillwell also was reminded that the county would be giving her and other homeowners along Schaumburg Road new driveways.

But she was persistent. She objected to "the idea of tearing out a perfectly good sidewalk just to straighten it out."

"I THINK A CURVED walk has a lot more character than a straight ribbon of concrete. People in expensive housing developments pay a lot of money for the kind of sidewalk we have now," she said.

But the woodman didn't show up. On Wednesday, Mrs. Stillwell's phone rang. It was O'Brien saying plans had been changed again and as long as the village didn't object, the sidewalk and trees would stay.

"We are going to try to save the trees, that's our main objective," County Highway Supt. Richard Goltzman explained.

Goltzman said the change in plans came about this week "after some internal discussion among our people" and not necessarily because Mrs. Stillwell complained. He said differences in elevation between property will "necessitate re-routing of the walkway."

SCHAUMBURG Village Engineer, Joseph E. Zgonina said Wednesday he wrote a letter to Goltzman asking that the county replace the sidewalk after the roadwork is completed "in such a manner to meander within the right-of-way to avoid fixed objects such as trees, telephone poles, fire hydrants or manholes."

However Zgonina said trees in or near the right-of-way "could cause sight disturbance problems for people trying to exit or enter driveways" which might result in accidents.

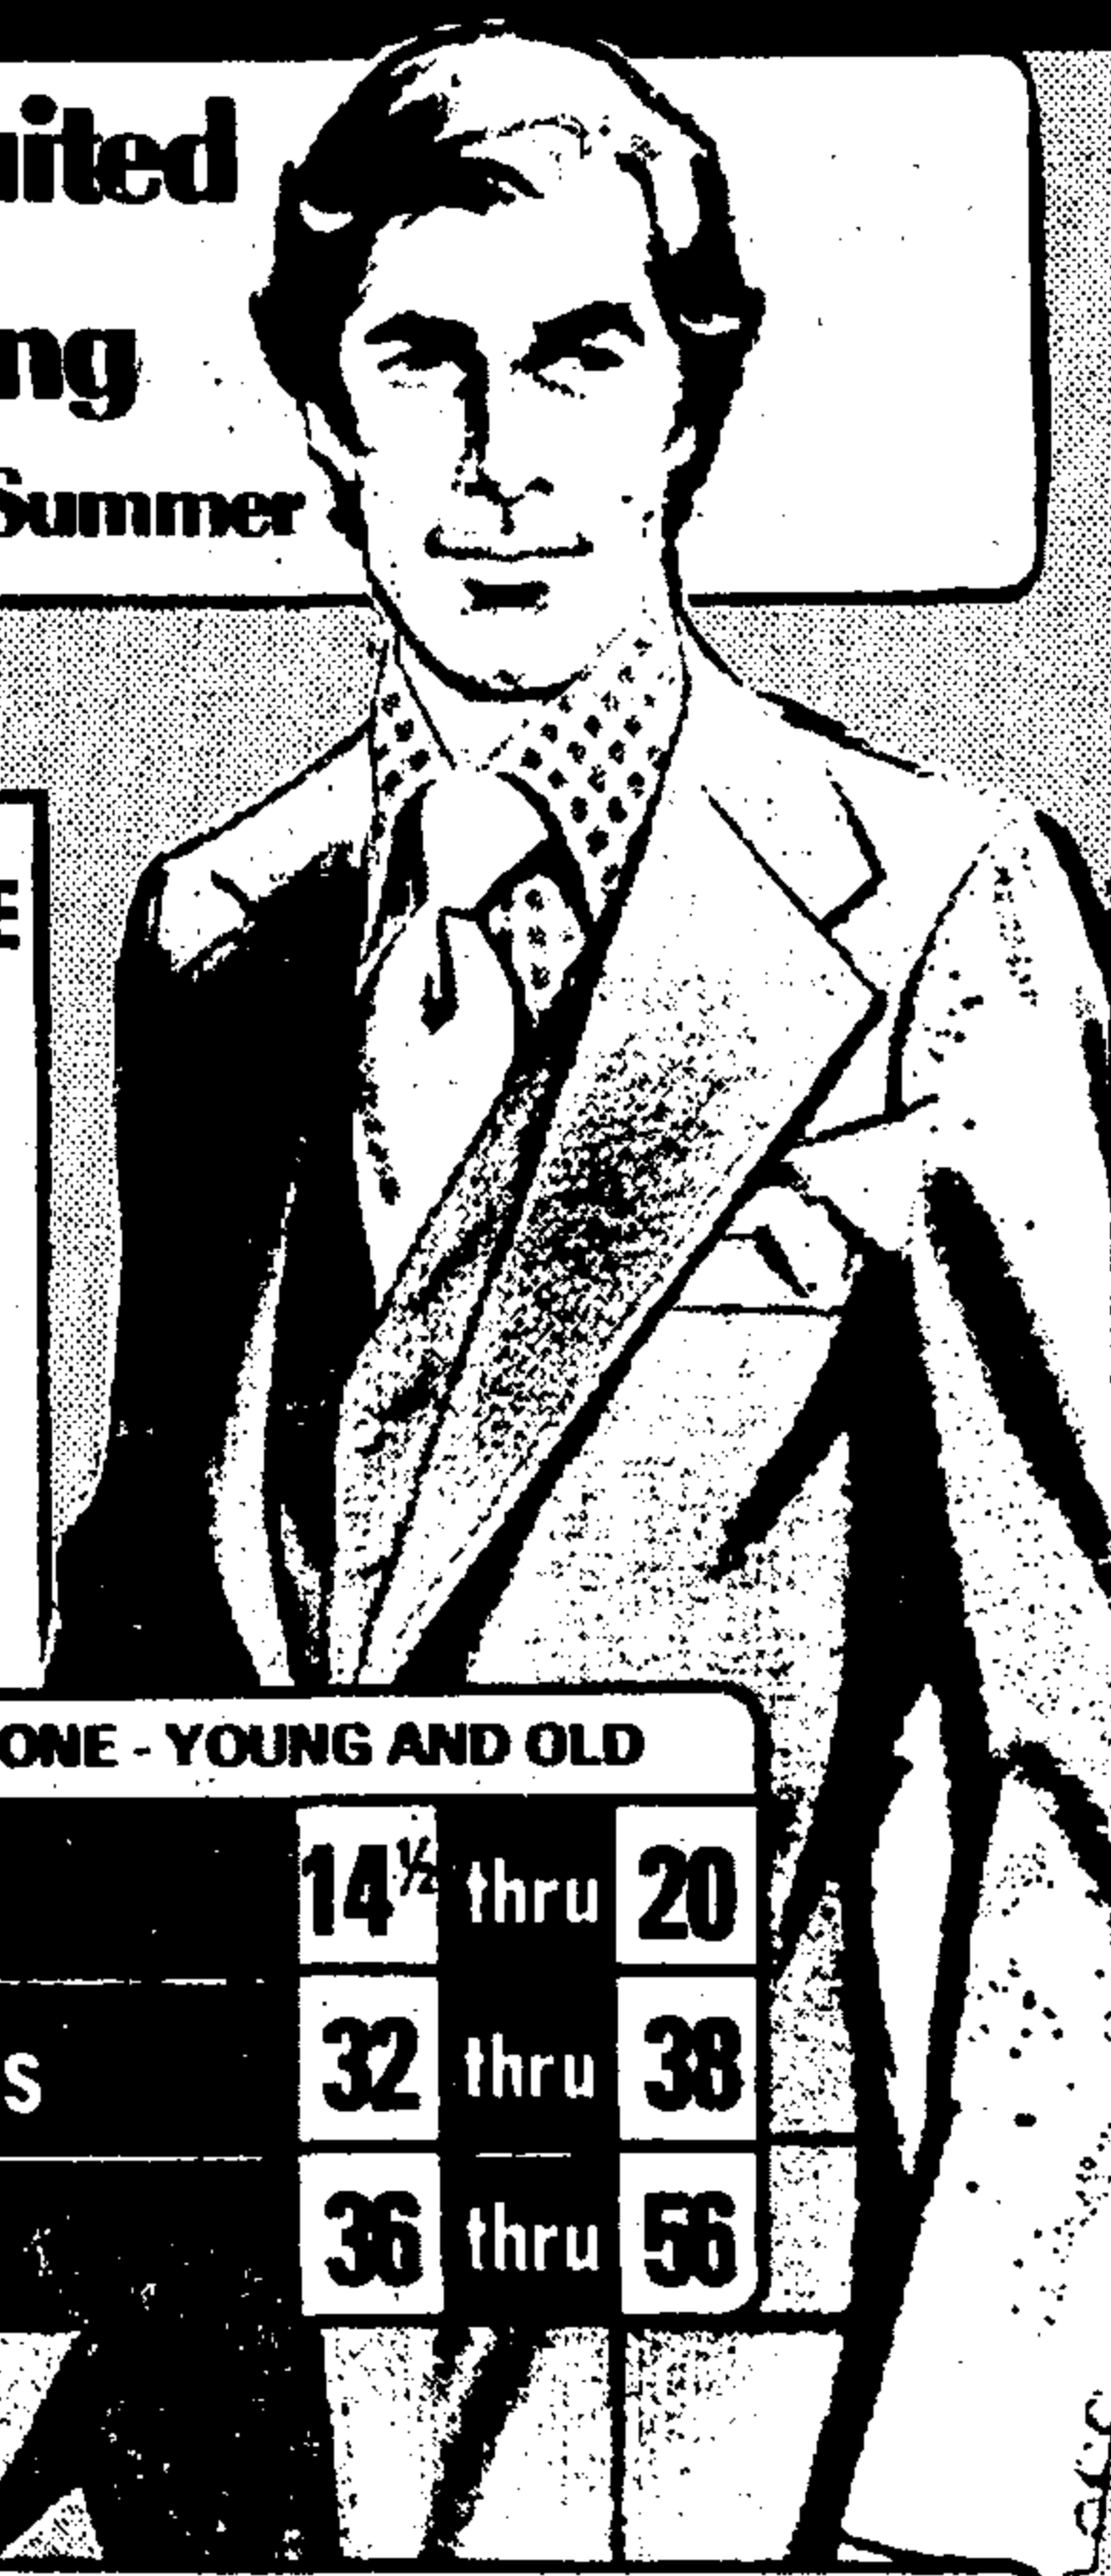

That left Mary Stillwell more confused than ever. "I don't want the tree left there if it will cause accidents, but it seems to me there's plenty of room between the roadway and my front yard."

She's a shy woman, unaccustomed to taking on village or county officials. For now, she is happy the tree will remain in her front yard. "But I'm going to keep a sharp eye out to see that it really does stay," she said.

Bell worker promises phone check

Wiretap bug-a-boo warrants precautions: expert

Bugged martini olives don't work. "Why would you go to all the trouble to bug a martini? Give the person enough martinis and he'll tell you anything," John Magnuson told members of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce Wednesday. "You get the wire-tapping, bugging concept from reading comic books and watching TV," he said. "But there's about as much realism in those dramas as in a Perry Mason courtroom."

Magnuson, a 30-year veteran of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., spoke about the "shadowy world of electronic snooping" — a popular topic, he said, since the Watergate break ins and allegations against the CIA. "All of a sudden, it became a very harsh reality. What formerly was a little domestic problem now becomes a problem across the United States," he said.

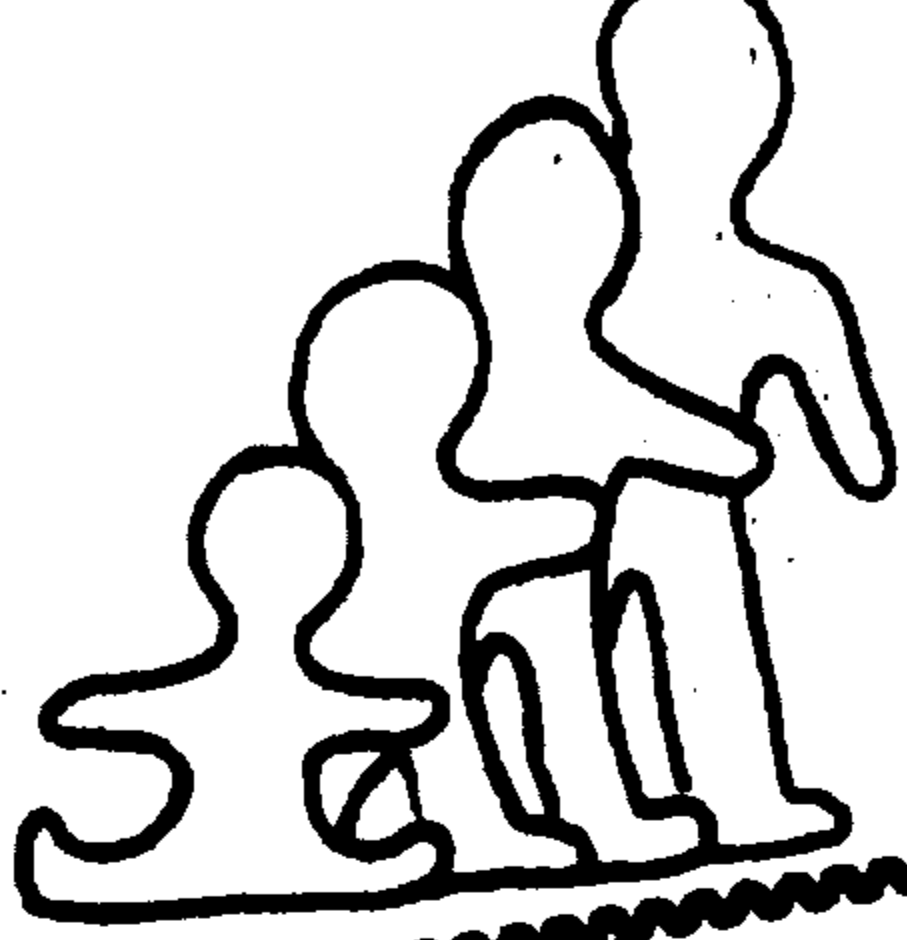

AND WHILE THE chances for illegal telephone tappings are "remote," Magnuson said the scare they give people warrants new precautions. Up until two years ago, the telephone company would remove an illegal bug from a telephone, inform the owner and go to court as an expert witness if the owner wanted to prosecute, Magnuson said. Now, company personnel will inspect and if a bug is found, they inform the owner, he said. But the bug stays put, and the company also calls the county state's attorney's office and the FBI.

There's no question that wire-tapping is taken more seriously than ever before, Magnuson said, but it is not widespread. NATIONWIDE, about 150 to 200 illeg gal taps are found each year, he said. And only 108 legal taps, ordered in 1975 by federal judges, were put on about 156 million telephones across the United States.

Magnuson said there are various types of bugs, but they're impossible to detect through noises over the phone line. "They give no indication whatsoever there's any listening device," he said. "So what's to prevent them? Time, effort, money or laws. "But when you hear one of those clicks or clacks — think repair."

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2,488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups.

The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wears the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Related story on Page 19

Lattot said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

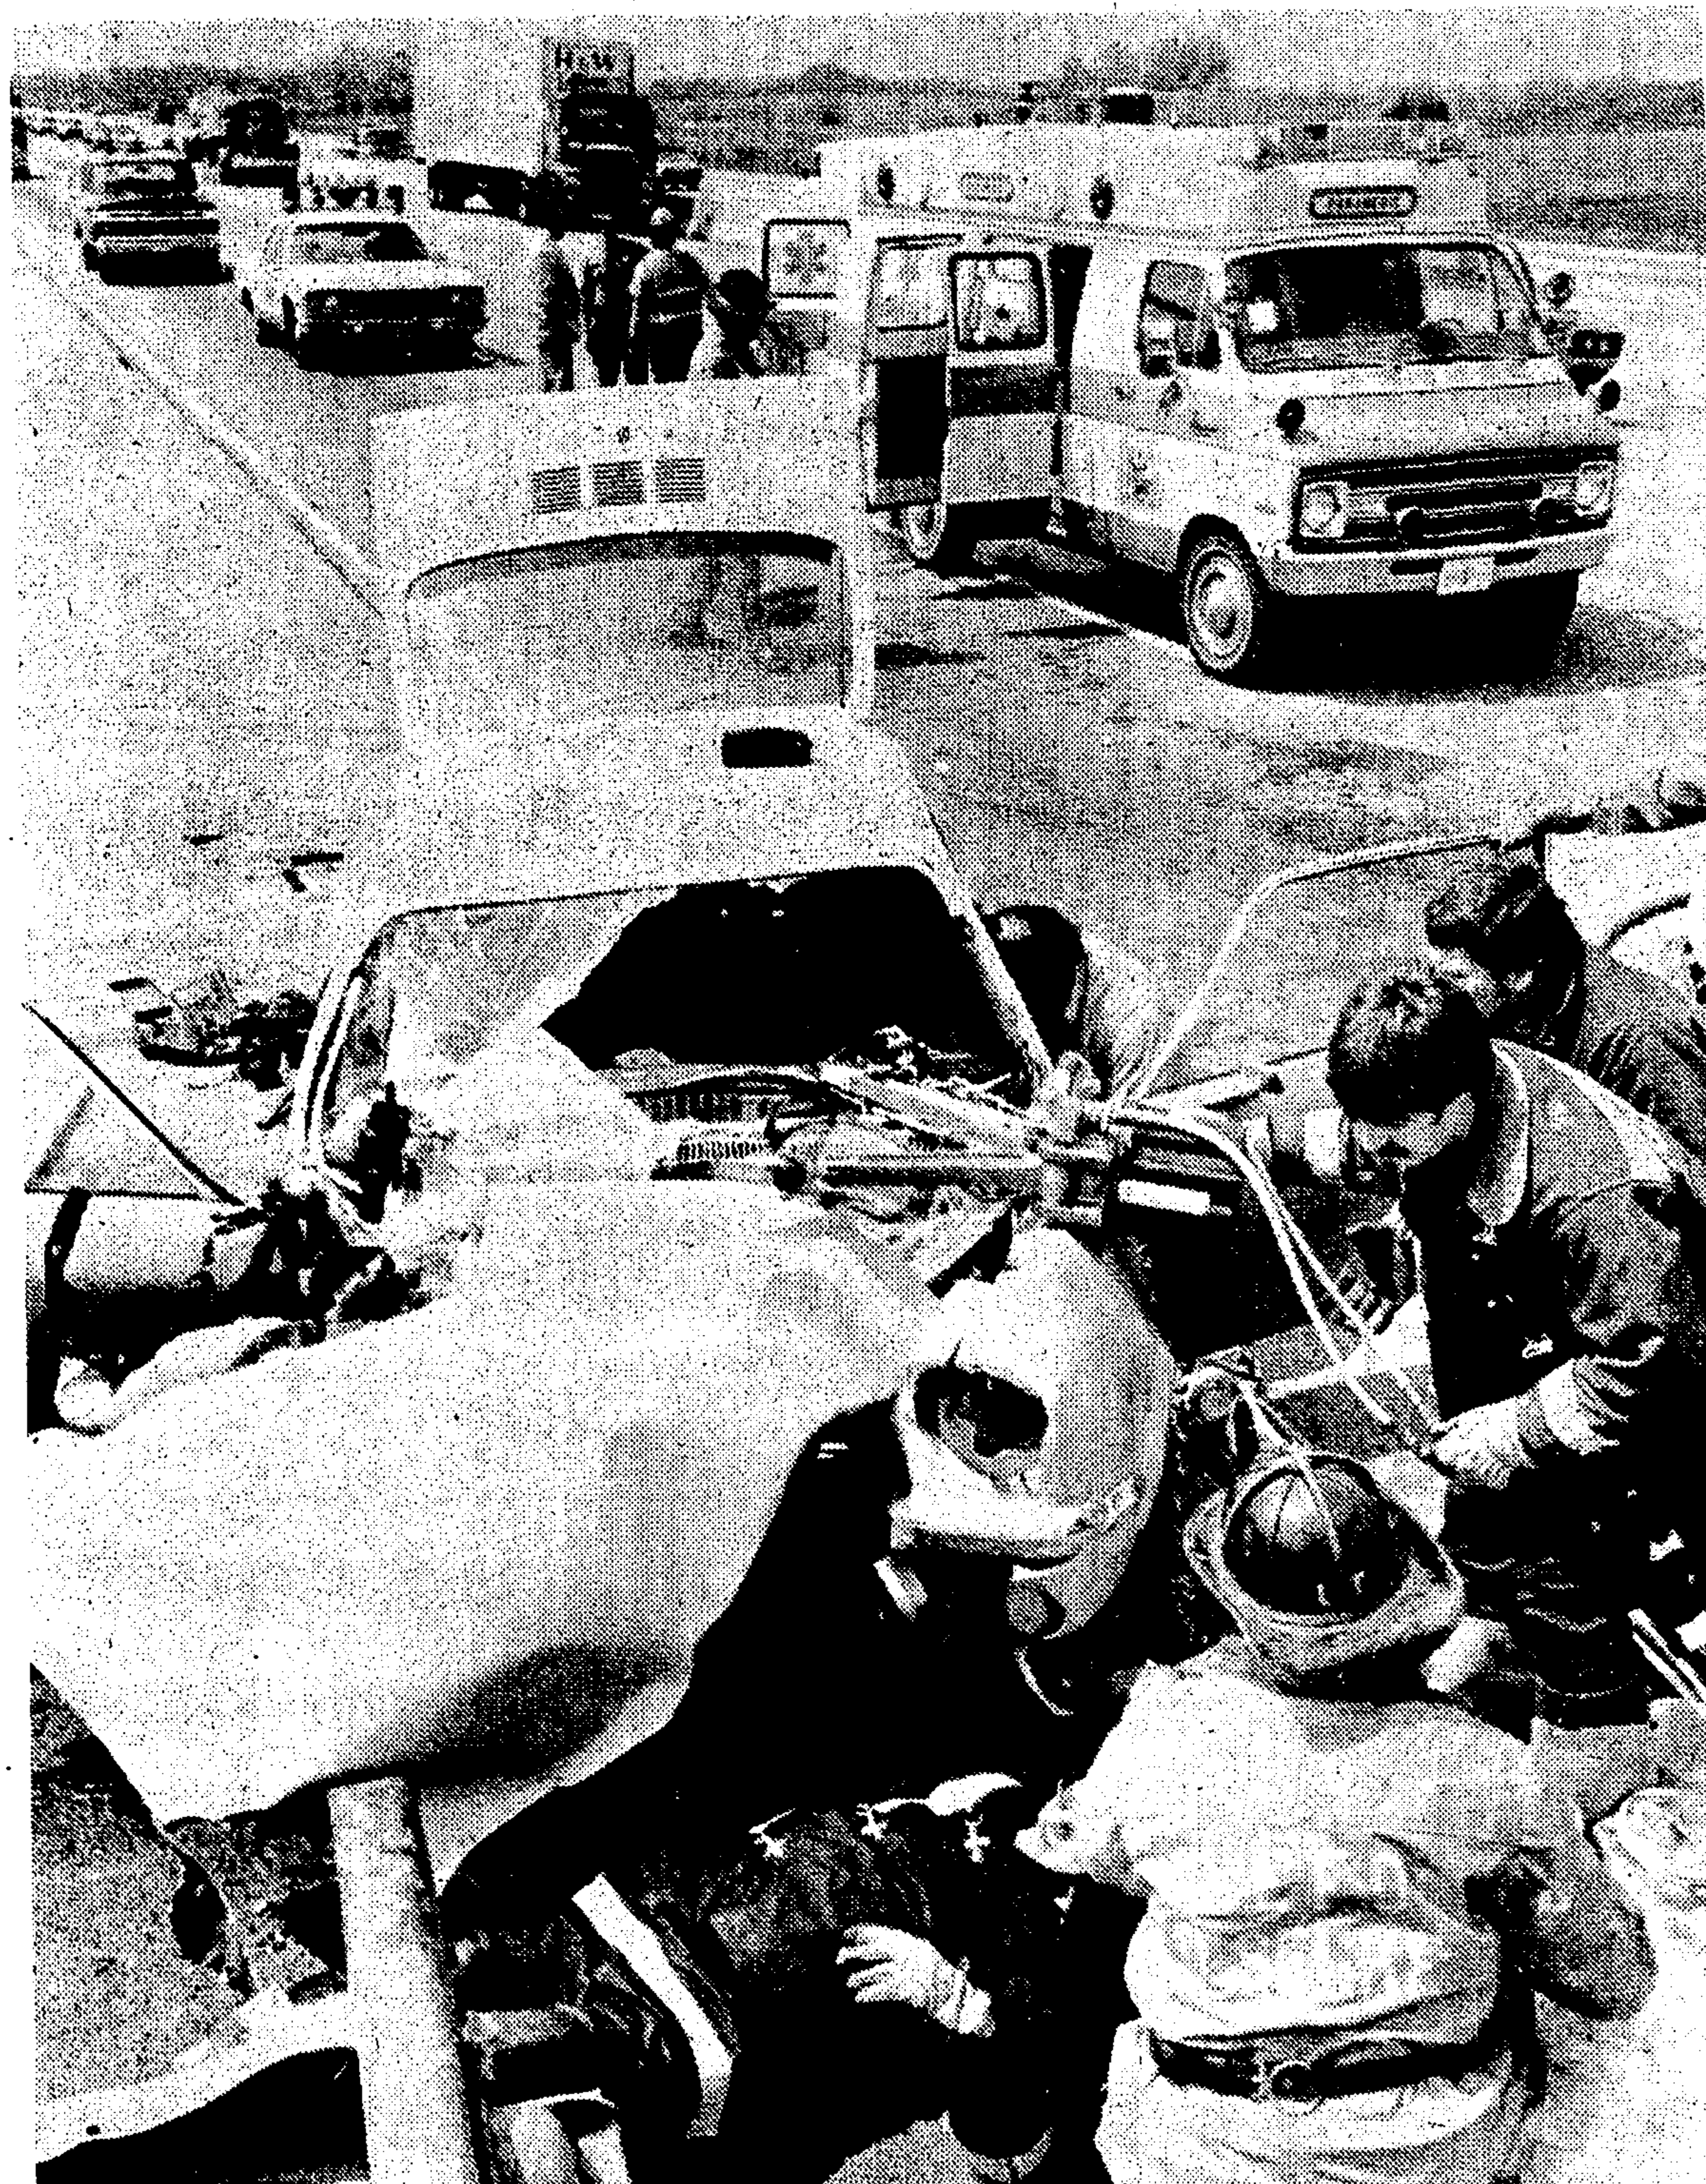

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

Winners downplay Meyer tie

by RUTH MUGALIAN

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer was in high spirits as the election returns came in Tuesday night.

He patted himself on the back for endorsing the top vote-getter in the endorsing the top vote-getter in the city — the only candidate he endorsed. He gleefully pointed out to his long-time foe, Ald. Fredrick Jacobson, 5th, that Jacobson did not have a majority of the votes in his ward, though he won the election.

He joked with new alderman Lorraine Godawa about giving her a key to the aldermen's washroom.

He commented to a reporter that the election was "going great."

BUT THE MORNING after, when the celebrating was over, Meyer was not claiming victory.

"I'm satisfied with the way it went," he said matter-of-factly, then noted a few qualifications of the winners.

Meyer had a right to be satisfied. Three of his favorites won election including Billy K. McMinn, who defeated incumbent Thomas Waldron Jr. by a 2-1 margin. McMinn received Meyer's only official endorsement.

Meyer also worked closely with 3rd Ward candidate Godawa. She was the only candidate Meyer went door to door for, and she was the only candidate whose sole completion was from a write-in candidate.

Meyer also had words of praise for 4th Ward winner Nicholas Quinnett, though he did not work hard for him.

BUT THE CITY'S aldermen do not view this election as a victory for Meyer, and Meyer and others played down the importance of his endorsements.

"I don't know what it could mean to the mayor, because I don't know anyone who was elected who was tied to his apron strings," said Ald. William Ahrens, 1st. "If he thinks he has those guys in his back pocket, he's going to be shocked."

Ahrens, who worked for McMinn and favored Quinnett, said he didn't think Meyer's, or anyone else's, endorsement was a factor.

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

• Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

• Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

• Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

• Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

• Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

McMinn credits victory to desire for 'new blood'

Billy K. McMinn sat in his accounting office at 3413 Kirchoff Rd. Wednesday afternoon, letting his overwhelming victory sink in.

As he did, the new 2nd Ward alderman tried to explain how he defeated the city's senior alderman, Thomas Waldron Jr., by a 2-1 margin.

"I was very surprised," he said in a soft voice touched with a southern accent. "My opponent was in so many years and he's done so much for the city and people know him so well."

BUT AS McMINN discussed the reasons for his success, he stressed the one that has been heard so many times throughout the campaign — the people wanted new blood.

"I got a lot of votes from people who really loved the man," he said. "They were just really ready for a change."

McMinn pointed out that he loves "the man" too. "I was on the committee that named him man of the year," he said, referring to the Jaycees distinguished service award Waldron received in 1969.

But somewhere along the line Waldron "lost his effectiveness" and McMinn was at a loss to explain why or when.

ALTHOUGH THE PEOPLE knew Waldron well, McMinn is not a stranger to them. He has lived in the city for 17 years and has operated his accounting office, McMinn and Troutman, in the city for 15 years.

"I've been around for a long time too and have been somewhat active," he said. "My wife and I work with the schools and I've done a lot of work for the people in the ward. I got a lot of votes from clients."

His office not only helped with contacts, but also provided McMinn with a good campaign issue.

"I think the voters remember the times they hesitated to call their aldermen because they work outside the city, and they would have to call them at home," he said. "Knowing Tom and others, I know they would have been happy to get the calls, but the people themselves are hesitant."

"I'll encourage people to call and stop by the office and chat anytime," he said.

McMINN ACKNOWLEDGED that

Winners downplay Meyer support

dorsements "carry that much weight."

Former Mayor William Miseska said Meyer's endorsements did not so much affect the outcome of the election, as the probable outcome affected Meyer's endorsements. In other words, Meyer wanted to be on the winning side.

Miseska said McMinn's overwhelming victory was expected. "The people wanted change and they were disgruntled with Waldron. Anyone who was known could have beat him," Miseska said.

AHRENS ALSO was not surprised by McMinn's large margin of victory. "When I saw that the turnout was heavy, I knew we had a landslide," he said.

Meyer probably worked hardest for Godawa, who had the easiest race. In the 1st and 5th Wards, where his favorite candidates lost, Meyer did little or nothing.

First Ward candidate Leland Gibbs had asked Meyer for his endorsement and was turned down. Meyer said he avored Gibbs, but "told him he'd have to get elected on his own."

Gibbs, a Falaine Township Dist. 15 School board member, faced a tough fight, apparently because residents of his ward held him responsible for the closing of Cardinal Drive School, 2200 Cardinal Dr.

Gibbs said as he campaigned door to door people wanted to know why the district closed "their school," which is in the 1st Ward.

Gibbs said that many residents recognized him as a school board member and may have recalled that, a year ago, he was the only one to state publicly that the school should be closed, even though the board's vote was unanimous.

THOMAS MENZEL, who won in the 1st Ward, was strongly supported by incumbent Ald. Raymond Neuckranz, and Gibbs said that played a large part in Menzel's success.

Miseska suggested that Meyer knew Menzel could not be defeated, so he instead tried to remove his name from the ballot.

his business could present a conflict of interest, but he says he is not too concerned.

He said he plans to talk to a lawyer about it and that "if necessary, I would drop certain clients."

"I can't imagine where I'd have to. There are businessmen serving on city councils all over the United States."

McMinn also discussed the endorsement Mayor Roland J. Meyer gave him — the only endorsement Meyer made this year.

He spoke of it slowly and thoughtfully.

"I've been here 17 years. I asked for the mayor's endorsement because I feel he has been a good mayor. I also felt the people knew me well enough to know I would never be a yes man to anyone."

Parents fear worst

Hotrodders force tots indoors

by NANCY GOTLER

A handful of teen-age hot-rodders have forced some residents of W. Berkeley Drive in Arlington Heights to keep their children indoors and to fear retaliation if they press charges.

"I hate to say it, but one of our children isn't going to be with us by the end of the summer," one mother of seven predicted.

"I don't know who's going to get it and I hope I don't have to find out,"

she said. "I don't want to be the one to have to pick up a dead child from the street, carry it to its mother and say, 'Here, bury it.' But it's going to happen."

THE WOMAN and a half dozen of her neighbors in a two-block area along West Berkeley Drive between Mitchell and Ridge avenues refused to allow their names to be used because they fear reprisals from the teen-agers.

They say the racing, which includes motorcycles, cars and minibikes, starts by 3 p.m. almost every day and sometimes lasts until midnight.

"A neighbor and I recently pulled two 3-year-olds out of the path of speeding motorcycles," the woman said. "Some of the boys involved live in this neighborhood and I've talked to them and to their parents, but it doesn't do any good."

Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights police captain, said residents who can positively identify a reckless driver can press charges.

Although many residents said they have called police numerous times to complain, Buckholz said he was not aware of a severe problem in the area.

HOWEVER, after being contacted by The Herald about the situation, Buckholz assigned an officer to monitor the area with a radar speed detection device and said the neighborhood will be watched in the future.

Another mother of two preschool children said she no longer allows them to play in front of the house in the late afternoons or evenings.

"Those kids ride motorcycles even on the sidewalks, and when I see them coming I pull my kids inside," she said. "It's so bad I hardly even let them play out in front any more."

"But there's nothing we can really do about it if we don't know who they are," she said. "When the police come the kids get away before they can be caught."

A third neighbor also feared a child could be hurt or killed.

"The way the kids drive those cars I could see a kid running into the street and getting run over. As the weather gets better the problem will probably get worse."

SHE SAID SHE has clocked speeders going as fast as 60 miles per hour in the 25 mph zone.

Parents are especially concerned because they live one block from Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School, 2800 N. Highland Ave. Many students walk home just as the hot-rodding begins. Still another woman, whose youngest child is 10, said, "It's dangerous because there are a lot of small children in the neighborhood. If something isn't done about it there's a good chance one of them will be hurt."

LARRY ST. PIERRE, Arlington Heights policeman, Drive, in response to area residents who complain monitors the speed of motorists on W. Berkeley about speeding teen-agers.

Tree a thorn in sidewalk plans

by PAT GERLACH

The 20-foot pine is one of the things Mary and Bob Stillwell like most about the house they bought last month.

It represents a touch of "back home" for the couple, a reminder of the thick pine forests and the cool lakes in their native Minnesota.

But Monday, as she was trying to choose just the right spot to display the antique typewriter of Great Grandmother Stillwell, Mary caught sight of a man in her front yard at 1811 Schaumburg Rd. He was pounding a green stake into the ground at the base of the huge tree.

SHE PULLED a raincoat over her slight frame, and went out to investigate.

She listened quietly as the man told her the pine stood in the way of progress and must be sacrificed to straighten a sidewalk on the south side of Schaumburg Road. The road is being widened to four lanes between Barrington and Roselle roads.

George O'Brien, the county's engineer on the project, told Mrs. Stillwell the walk which now curves around her tree will be "straightened out" because the construction contract requires straight sidewalks.

She winced when O'Brien said the stake was a marker for the ax that would surely fall sometime before July.

She got on the telephone and in her whisper-soft voice, began to investigate why the sidewalk had to be routed so as to destroy her tree and more than a dozen like it.

SHE CALLED village hall and learned that the sidewalk had originally been designed for the expressed purpose of saving the mature trees along Schaumburg Road. But the village had transferred its control over the street right-of-way to the county, she was told.

People at the village hall encouraged Mrs. Stillwell to talk to other neighbors whose trees are in the path of the new sidewalk to see if support could be gained for her effort to save the greenery.

Tuesday, though, another county worker stopped by to tell her that the plans had changed and the tree probably would be felled that day. Mrs. Stillwell also was reminded that the county would be giving her and other homeowners along Schaumburg Road new driveways.

But she was persistent. She objected to "the idea of tearing out a perfectly good sidewalk just to straighten it out."

"I THINK A CURVED walk has a lot more character than a straight ribbon of concrete. People in expensive housing developments pay a lot of money for the kind of sidewalk we have now," she said.

SOFT-SPOKEN MARY Stillman of Schaumburg spotted danger for a 20-foot pine tree in front of her home but apparently has convinced Cook County Highway Dept. officials to leave the tree.

But the woodman didn't show up. On Wednesday, Mrs. Stillwell's phone rang. It was O'Brien saying plans had been changed again and as long as the village didn't object, the sidewalk and trees would stay.

"We are going to try to save the trees, that's our main objective," County Highway Supt. Richard Goltzman explained.

Goltzman said the change in plans came about this week "after some internal discussion among our people" and not necessarily because Mrs. Stillwell complained. He said differences in elevation between property will "necessitate re-routing of the walkway."

SCHAUMBURG Village Engineer, Joseph E. Zgonina said Wednesday he wrote a letter to Goltzman asking that the county replace the sidewalk

after the roadwork is completed "in such a manner to meander within the right-of-way to avoid fixed objects such as trees, telephone poles, fire hydrants or manholes."

However Zgonina said trees in or near the right-of-way "could cause sight disturbance problems for people trying to exit or enter driveways" which might result in accidents.

That left Mary Stillwell more confused than ever. "I don't want the tree left there if it will cause accidents, but it seems to me there's plenty of room between the roadway and my front yard."

She's a shy woman, unaccustomed to taking on village or county officials. For now, she is happy the tree will remain in her front yard. "But I'm going to keep a sharp eye out to see that it really does stay," she said.

Streetlight off; woman still burns

by DEBBE JONAK

The streetlight at Rusty Drive and Estes Street was turned off quietly last week, after burning 24 hours a day for four months.

Another, at River and Riverview roads, was turned off the week before.

They now burn only at night, as they should — but correcting the problem took numerous calls to Des Plaines City Hall from citizen, watchdog Kathy Jourdan, 2546 Rusty Dr.

HOWEVER, she could have made thousands of calls, and the lights would not have been fixed any sooner, according to Commonwealth Edison representative Gordon Baer.

Edison is responsible for maintenance of Des Plaines streetlights. City public works officials said they reported the problem to Baer in January and again in February.

Baer said the delay in repair was caused by a shortage of the devices needed to fix the streetlights.

"Those lights are operated by a photo-electric cell," he said, explaining the streetlights are turned off and on by that light-sensitive cell.

"SOMETIMES IT can get dirty or it can go bad," Baer said.

In this case, the cells in the streetlights went bad and needed replacement, but Edison was fresh out.

"We had run out and reordered," Baer said. "But it took a long time to get them."

The city will not pay for the electricity burned by the streetlights during the day, he said. Edison charges the city a flat rate, which is not affected by how long the lights are left on.

WHILE THE LIGHTS were on, they each consumed about 500 kilowatt hours in energy. That equals the amount of electricity used by an average household in one month.

"It's not very much at all," Baer said.

However, Mrs. Jourdan remains irate, pointing out she is advised to turn off the much smaller lights in her house during these times of energy shortages. Yet the city and Edison shrug their shoulders at leaving a streetlight burning during the day for four months.

"I wish I could talk to (President) Carter when he talks about his energy program," she said.

Earth day ceremonies Friday to plant shrubs

Rolling Meadows soon will have trees, shrubs and petunia beds in front of the shopping areas on the south side of Kirchoff Road.

The city will hold groundbreaking ceremonies at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Earth Day. Mayor Roland J. Meyer and Evelyn Drummond, recycling, ecology and beautification chairwoman, will attend the ceremonies.

The landscaping is being paid for by recycling funds and is being done in cooperation with the city's public works department.

The city is planning to plant seven trees, three petunia beds and 10 shrubs extending from Meadow Drive to the Jack-in-the-Box Restaurant.

Ms. Drummond said residents have been asking for years why there are no trees on the south side of Kirchoff Road. She said the committee "hopes these plantings will not only enhance our downtown, but will also encourage pride among the retail businesses of the area concerning their landscaping."

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2,488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.

- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.

- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.

- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.

- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups. The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

Polyester pinch possible

by LYNN ASINOF

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means petrochemical in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wears the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

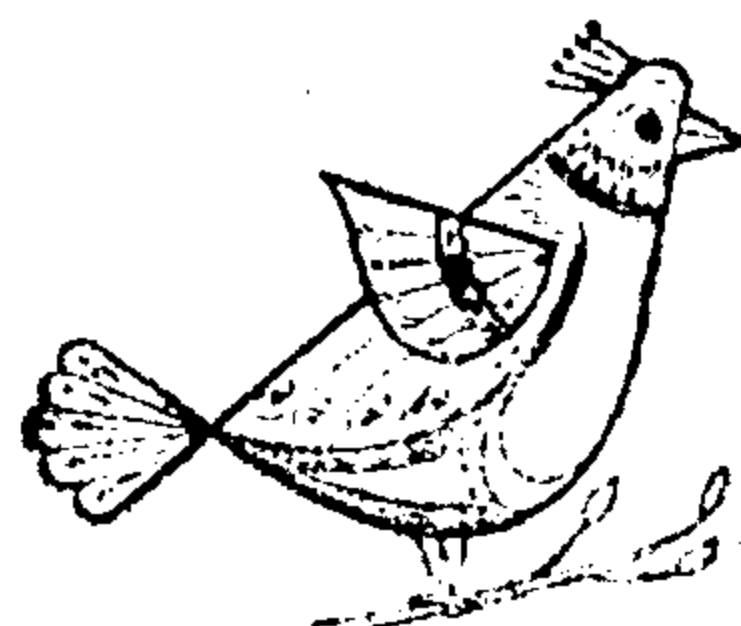

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Related story on Page 19

Lattof said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOF WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

GOP win puts aside all doubts

by LUISA GINETTI
A news analysis

The Republican party is alive and well in Palatine. Doubts about the GOP's political strength in the village were laid to rest by the results of Tuesday's election.

Although the figures were not as impressive as four years ago when the Republicans regained control of village government, workers at GOP headquarters were confident from the first early returns that their efforts would pay off.

They knew where their strong points were, how much of a margin of victory they needed in their strong areas and how much of a loss they could expect in some precincts.

THEY TOOK NOTHING for granted and worked as hard as four years ago when they succeeded in defeating an incumbent slate and winning a majority on the board.

The GOP spent more than $6,000, commissioned polls and canvassed precincts weeks before the election and in the end, admitted that every ounce of their labor was needed to garner a 500-vote victory margin for Village President-elect Robert J. Guss.

Wendell E. Jones, outgoing village president and GOP campaign chairman, said it was the best run campaign he has seen in 10 years of politicking.

"They worked hard as a team and they won as a team," he said. "If they had not worked hard, it would have been very different."

Guss, too, confessed awareness of the personal struggle he had in making the decision to take on Trustee Fred H. Zajonc, a popular, 10-year veteran of the village board who had never before lost an election and was often among the high vote-getters.

A REPUBLICAN commissioned poll in late January showed Guss running in a dead heat with Zajonc. The poll also showed that voters were extremely pleased with Jones, whose popularity and approval rating were (Continued on Page 5)

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

Mrs. Hayter, who became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time has come,' affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

Coughlin stands alone; GOP split final for trustee

GOP victory puts aside all doubts

found to be bordering on the phenomenal.

The GOP used Jones' voter appeal as their main campaign ingredient to help Guss in his uphill fight because the poll also showed that if the top of the ticket won, the entire Republican slate would be victorious.

Jones made as visible a personal campaign with Guss as possible, walking precincts and ringing doorbells with the candidate to stress that Guss was his man.

Pictures of Guss and Jones together were displayed prominently in campaign literature and newspaper ads, often with Jones the dominant figure.

And in the end, all the work and planning paid off for the Republicans, even though Guss admitted his confidence was always tempered.

"YOU'RE ALWAYS apprehensive," he said. "Nobody has the feeling of being a winner with the unknown out there. 'I haven't even thought about the next four years. Our whole emphasis has been 'first I have to win'."

The rival Citizens Party of Palatine took defeat calmly. Zajonc said he plans to stay on the village board to complete the remaining two years of his trustee term as a member of the "loyal opposition."

Zajonc attributed his party's defeat to the strength and organization of the Republicans and added that his own effort was probably too little too late.

But the GOP victory cannot be chalked up to the work of a machine alone. Republicans by and large stuck to the principles of their 1973 platform and carried out many if not all the promises they made.

And for that reason as much as any other, the voters have chosen to reward the GOP with a vote of confidence and another four years at the village helm.

by LUISA GINETTI
(A news analysis)

GOP Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin is a man without a party today, a label that has come by choice rather than accident.

Coughlin, twice elected to the Palatine Village Board as a Republican, has broken with the local party organization in a dispute which began as a difference of opinion on fiscal policy matters.

The split since has become an all-out break which has sparked personal animosities among some GOP stalwarts against the articulate, bespectacled village board veteran. The bitterness is in part returned by Coughlin.

IF ANY DOUBTS exist about Coughlin possibly rejoining the GOP camp, they were put aside Tuesday night when he showed up at the election night party of the defeated Citizens Party of Palatine slate.

The Republican schism has been brewing for more than a year. Indications of the rift first surfaced in debates over water improvements and budgets. In both cases Coughlin found himself voting with Trustee Fred H. Zajonc in the minority against the other Republican village board members.

Public criticism of Coughlin started and the trustee made no attempts to quell the talk. Instead he continued his outspoken, opposition stances.

Coughlin, who said he will be a Republican "until the day I die," made an attempt last September at reconciliation during a meeting with party leaders; a session which was agreed to by GOP members.

Bryan P. Coughlin

The meeting, however, proved fruitless. Tempers flared and Coughlin walked out. In attendance at the session were Palatine Township Committeeman Bernard Pedersen, Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, Trustees Robert J. Guss, Richard W. Fonte and Philip E. Stern.

DESPITE THE stormy session, Coughlin still attended the party's convention, although he did not agree to back the entire slate.

Coughlin took no part in campaigning for the ticket and indeed severed whatever connection remained between himself and the party by publicly endorsing Zajonc for village president over Republican Robert J.

Guss. He also endorsed two trustee candidates from Zajonc's ticket.

Such acts of treason do not go unscathed by GOP members. Chants of "Goodbye Bryan, we're glad to see you leave" were greeted with cheers Tuesday night at victorious Republican headquarters.

Coughlin himself admitted the break is final and he doubts if the wounds can be mended. He said the results of the election, in which Republicans swept all 5 contested seats, mean status quo for the next four years.

"The people have spoken and that's what it's all about," he said. "I'm sure they (Republicans) will read this vote as a mandate and total endorsement of their policies and maybe it is."

ZAJONC ALSO HAS helped promote the split by cajoling Coughlin at every point, supporting his stands and courting his endorsement.

"Bryan Coughlin supported us and I owe him my allegiance there (on the board)," Zajonc said following his loss Tuesday. "I will work with Bryan as the loyal opposition to get a more stable situation."

Coughlin said he had hoped if Zajonc and some of the Citizens Party candidates had been elected, he and Zajonc could have approached the GOP in hopes of compromise.

"If we had some control on the board, there would be a basis for compromise, but the situation being

Liquor store censured for beer sale to minor

McRay's Discount Liquors, 305 S. Rohlwing Rd., was reprimanded Wednesday by the Palatine Liquor Commission for an incident in February in which an 18-year-old man was sold a six-pack of beer.

The action came following a one-hour hearing into the matter in which the 18-year-old, William D. Murphy, and the store owner, Michael McKinney, testified.

Murphy testified that he purchased the beer from McKinney and was never asked for identification. Palatine Patrolman Kenneth Mrozek arrested Murphy after he saw him leave the store and after he failed to prove he was of legal age to purchase the liquor.

McKinney, however, testified that he did ask Murphy for identification and the youth produced a driver's license showing him to be of age. McKinney said the description on the license matched Murphy's description.

McKINNEY TOLD THE commission that the following week, Murphy's 20-year-old brother entered the store and said he understood there had been some problem the week before.

"I told him yes, or that's right, and he then told me that it was his brother," McKinney told the commission. McKinney said he had just finished checking the older Murphy's driver's license when the conversation occurred. McKinney said he believed the license was the same one he had checked the week before.

The commission, including Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones and Trustee James L. Shaw, said that because the incident was the store's first offense and because it believed McKinney's testimony, only a reprimand was issued.

Jones cautioned McKinney to continue to make a diligent effort to screen minors from purchasing alcohol by pursuing a stringent identification policy.

In another matter, the commission dismissed charges against Southland Liquors, 749 W. Palatine Rd., which alleged sold beer in February to a 17-year-old. The commission said there was insufficient evidence to hear the matter.

Dundee improvements revised

THE HERALD Thursday, April 21, 1977 Section 1 —7

Plans for improving sections of Dundee Road between Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 59 in Palatine Township have been revived with major changes by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

New plans call for widening a five-eighths mile stretch of Dundee Road between Hicks and Rand roads from two to four lanes at an estimated cost of $400,000.

The plans also call for widening and resurfacing the two lanes of a 3.2-mile stretch of Dundee Road between Ill. Rte. 59 and Ela Road. This project would include intersection improvements at Dundee and Barrington roads where left turn bays and new traffic signals are proposed. Estimated cost of the work is $1 million.

Construction on both road improvement projects would start in 1979 at the earliest, according to Edward Kramarz, program development section chief with the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

A FEDERAL GRANT to finance 70 per cent of both road projects is being sought by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

portation and the remaining 30 per cent of the project cost would be paid for by the state, Kramarz said.

No public hearings have been scheduled for the two improvement projects.

Public hearings on the original plans for Dundee Road improvements were held in 1971. Plans at that time called for widening a 6.5-mile stretch of Dundee Road between Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 59 from two to four lanes separated by a 16-foot median, new traffic signals and improvements at several intersections. The cost of the project in 1971 was estimated at $7 million.

A lack of funds for new road construction was the main reason the Dundee Road improvement project was revised, Kramarz said.

"NO MONEY PLUS the general lack of acceptance by local communities. Barrington and Barrington Hills had both indicated it was not acceptable to add additional lanes and this coupled with the lack of funds was the reason the additional lanes were deferred," Kramarz said of the stretch of Dundee Road between Ill. Rte. 59 and Ela Road.

He said widening of that section of Dundee would not be reconsidered for 10 to 15 years after the resurfacing work is completed.

Money was also the reason that improvements along Dundee Road between Ela and Hicks roads were dropped completely, Kramarz said. He said there are no plans for improvements along this section of Dundee Road for at least five years.

Swim passes offered Salt Creek

Families in the Salt Creek Rural Park District will be able to buy passes for swimming this summer at two Arlington Heights pools.

The Salt Creek office will sell family passes for $45 for swimming in either the Olympic Park Pool, 500 N. Ridge Ave., or the Frontier Park Pool, 1933 N. Kennicott Ave. Individual passes will cost $26.

In other business, the Salt Creek Park Board has agreed to release unapproved minutes of park board meetings to residents upon request. The minutes will be stamped "unapproved" until after they are accepted and revised, if necessary, at the following board meeting.

The board agreed to adopt a policy on releasing the minutes after several park district residents complained they were not able to get minutes of the March board meetings.

Parks gymnastic club

The Palatine Park District is sponsoring a gymnastic club. Developmental classes will be offered to boys and girls of all ability levels from third grade through high school beginning Monday.

Prospective gymnasts may register at the park office, 282 E. Palatine Rd. The fee for the six week session is $20. An informational meeting will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. today at Maple Park, Winston and Andersen drives.

Book sale May 21-22

Plans are being made for the Palatine Historical Society's book sale May 21-22 at Countryside Mall, Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive, Palatine.

Proceeds will go to the historical society's museum development fund.

Book donations can be dropped off at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St. They should be marked for the historical society book sale. Pick up can be arranged for large quantities by calling Dolores Kayler at 359-5059.

Correction

Parents of incoming seventh graders are invited to attend an information session at 1:15 p.m. Thursday at Winston Park Junior High School, 900 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

The Herald incorrectly reported the information session was for parents of entering sixth graders.

Dems to meet Thursday

The Democratic Party of Palatine Township will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

The agenda includes the nomination of candidates for the executive board. The election meeting will be May 19.

Garlick Eagle Scout

Boy Scout Troop 348 recently presented the Eagle Scout award to David Garlick during a court of honor. After the award ceremony there was a pot-luck dinner at St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Palatine.

Parks offer new events

Salt Creek Rural Park District begins a new season of activities Wednesday. Most events are at Rose Park, 530 S. Williams, Palatine.

Beginning trampoline and tumbling classes are from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays. Advanced trampoline classes meet from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Thursdays. Trail riding lessons begin May 7.

Shape-up or Suffer, structured exercise classes for adults, begin Monday. Stitch 'N' Stuff, a new needlework class, meets on Thursday mornings beginning May 5.

For registration and information, call the park office, 259-6890.

Mail carriers continue picket

Mail carriers will continue to picket the Roselle Post Office until management agrees to negotiate its order that carriers take shortcuts across lawns, a union official said.

The picketing has not affected mail deliveries, said Roselle Postmaster Edward Budzyn, and the postal service has no intention of negotiating its shortcut order.

The dispute centers on the postal service's order that carriers save time by cutting across the lawns between houses, but each side offers a different version of the rule.

DON CALDERONE, president of Local 825 of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, said carriers have been ordered to continue taking shortcuts even after homeowners have objected.

"The homeowner has to call the post office and complain," he said. "And then he has to fill out a form — I think it's called an 1147 — and send it back before the carrier is allowed to go back to using the sidewalks."

"I've had carriers who come back and say, 'This lady doesn't want me on her lawn,' and the supervisor just says, 'We don't have a card on file.'"

Calderone said carriers who inform their customers of the procedure risk being reprimanded for "maliciously the postal service."

BUDZYN, HOWEVER, denied all that.

"I've never heard of this form," he said. "If the homeowner doesn't want the carrier on his lawn, he can just write a letter or call us or tell the carrier who'll notify the supervisor. We'd rather have it in writing, but it doesn't have to be."

Budzyn said the shortcut order is not a matter for negotiations because a 1975 contract approved by the union and the postal service agreed to a "requirement that letter carriers take shortcuts, in those circumstances where no safety hazards exist and the customer does not object."

CALDERONE SAID the shortcuts also increase the risk of injuries to the carrier and lawsuits against the homeowner.

He acknowledged that many carriers were taking shortcuts before Budzyn issued his order. "But we don't feel that the USPS can take over private property like this," he said. "We feel they should ask the homeowners for permission to cross the lawns, not make them object."

'Force people to conserve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged Congress Wednesday to put Americans on a painful, mandatory energy conservation diet including taxes that could bring $1-a-gallon gasoline and add $2.488 to the price of gas guzzling cars.

In a sober, nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, Carter said Americans must be forced to save energy because they are unlikely to give up wasteful habits voluntarily.

He called it "a thankless job" but said the alternative is that "crisis ... could overwhelm us."

Carter's 30-minute speech — the first of his presidency before Congress — presented the grand design for a national energy policy officially unveiled earlier Wednesday. Its central points:

- Gas pump taxes geared to add 5 cents to the price of a gallon every year for 10 years, if necessary.
- Hefty taxes on "gas guzzling" cars, starting with the 1978 models due this year, but tempered by rebates for gas efficient cars.
- Taxes on domestic oil designed to drive the prices gradually up to world market levels, and boost consumer prices further.
- Tax credits for insulating homes and businesses. The same for converting to solar heat.
- Standby gasoline rationing authority for emergency use.

The President got standing ovations from his bipartisan audience before and after his address, but members of Congress predicted his program would face a tough battle from many lawmakers, lobbyists and citizens groups. The gas pump tax seemed particularly vulnerable.

Carter made plain at the outset of his speech his proposals would not be politically popular ones, amending his prepared text to add: "I don't expect much applause."

He said his goals for 1985 include cutting U.S. energy growth to the point where it will double every 40 years instead of every 18; reducing gasoline consumption 10 per cent below present levels; insulating 90 per cent of America's homes and putting solar energy devices on 2.5 million homes.

"I hope the Congress will adopt these goals by joint resolution," he said.

THE PRESIDENT admitted his plan would drive up inflation, but he said it would also generate jobs and have "generally positive" effects on the economy.

He said all the money collected (Continued on Page 3)

Polyester pinch possible

by LYNN ASINOF

An energy crisis could hit Americans right in their no-iron shirts.

People who think a shortage of crude oil is just going to mean less gasoline in their tanks had better take a look in their closets, cleaning cupboards and medicine cabinets.

America's petro-technology has spawned a lot of products that most people now take for granted. And few stop to think that the term synthetic on fabrics means 'petrochemical' in any language.

NYLON, ORLON, dacron, rayon and polyester have become household words. They are found in shirts, pants, sheets, carpeting, pantyhose, underwear and blankets.

In the medicine cabinet, many of the old standbys come from petroleum. A few, like Vaseline, even wear the name petroleum jelly on its label.

All kinds of cleaning solvents, detergents and lubricants come from crude oil, as do dyes, explosives and paints.

And finally there is plastic, used almost everywhere to do everything. There are plastic bags, hangers, garbage cans, eyeglasses, pens, plates and surgical implants.

DESPITE THE proliferation of petrochemical products, they account for only about 10 per cent of the crude oil used in this country.

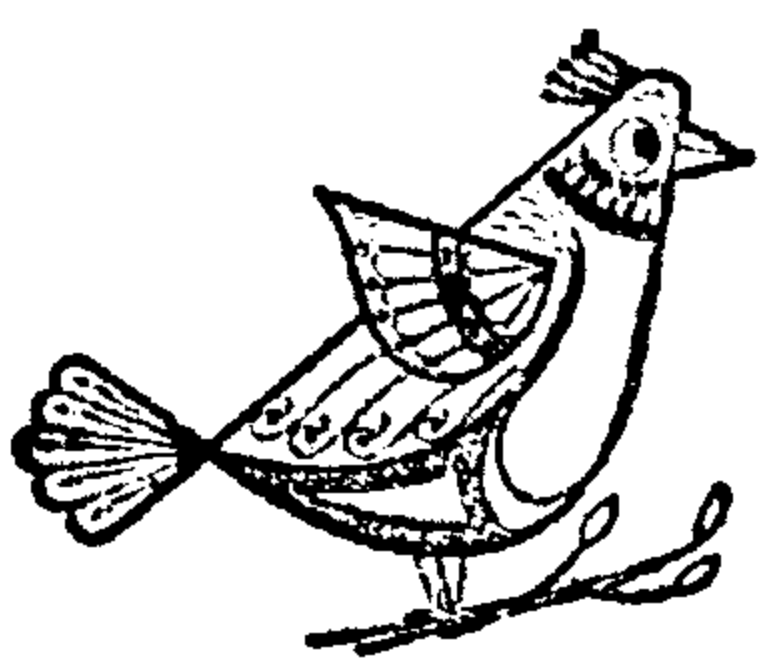

"Of the total barrel, less than 10 per cent goes into petrochemicals," said Vladimir Haensel, vice president of science and technology at UOP Inc., Des Plaines.

In the event of a massive conservation program, Haensel said, the most immediate shortages will be in gas, oil, jet fuel and diesel fuel. "Those are the big ones," he said. Petrochemicals would be affected "to a lesser degree."

Haensel said Carter's energy package does not look like it will hurt the petrochemical industry, because many industries using oil will be converted to coal. This would make more crude oil available for other uses, he said.

In the long run, Haensel said petrochemicals will be able to be produced from coal, "but it will be a long transition process."

Carter plan 'hurts' owner of small car

Rebates offered to buyers of new fuel-efficient cars will penalize current owners of small cars by making their cars worthless, said Warren Lattof, of Lattof Motor Sales, Arlington Heights.

And while small-car owners will be hurt, owners of bigger cars will see their values increase, Lattof said.

"He (President Carter) is really penalizing those who have already bought a small car to save gasoline,"

Related story on Page 19

Lattot said, adding that higher gasoline prices would be a more effective incentive for small-car buyers.

LATTOT WAS one of several businessmen Wednesday asked to respond to President Carter's proposals to reduce the use of energy through tax incentives and a gasoline tax. Reactions were mixed.

A spokesman at Bierk Cadillac, Schaumburg, said Carter's "gas guzzler" tax on 1978 models won't have much effect in the short run.

He said the maximum $2,488 tax penalty eventually would curb some sales, but the "people who buy Cadillacs already spend a lot of money on them."

"And I don't think $449 is going to make a lot of difference to them," he said.

James Johnston, a senior economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago, said:

"You can't just put a Form 1040 under your pillow and expect the good fairy to leave you a gallon of gasoline."

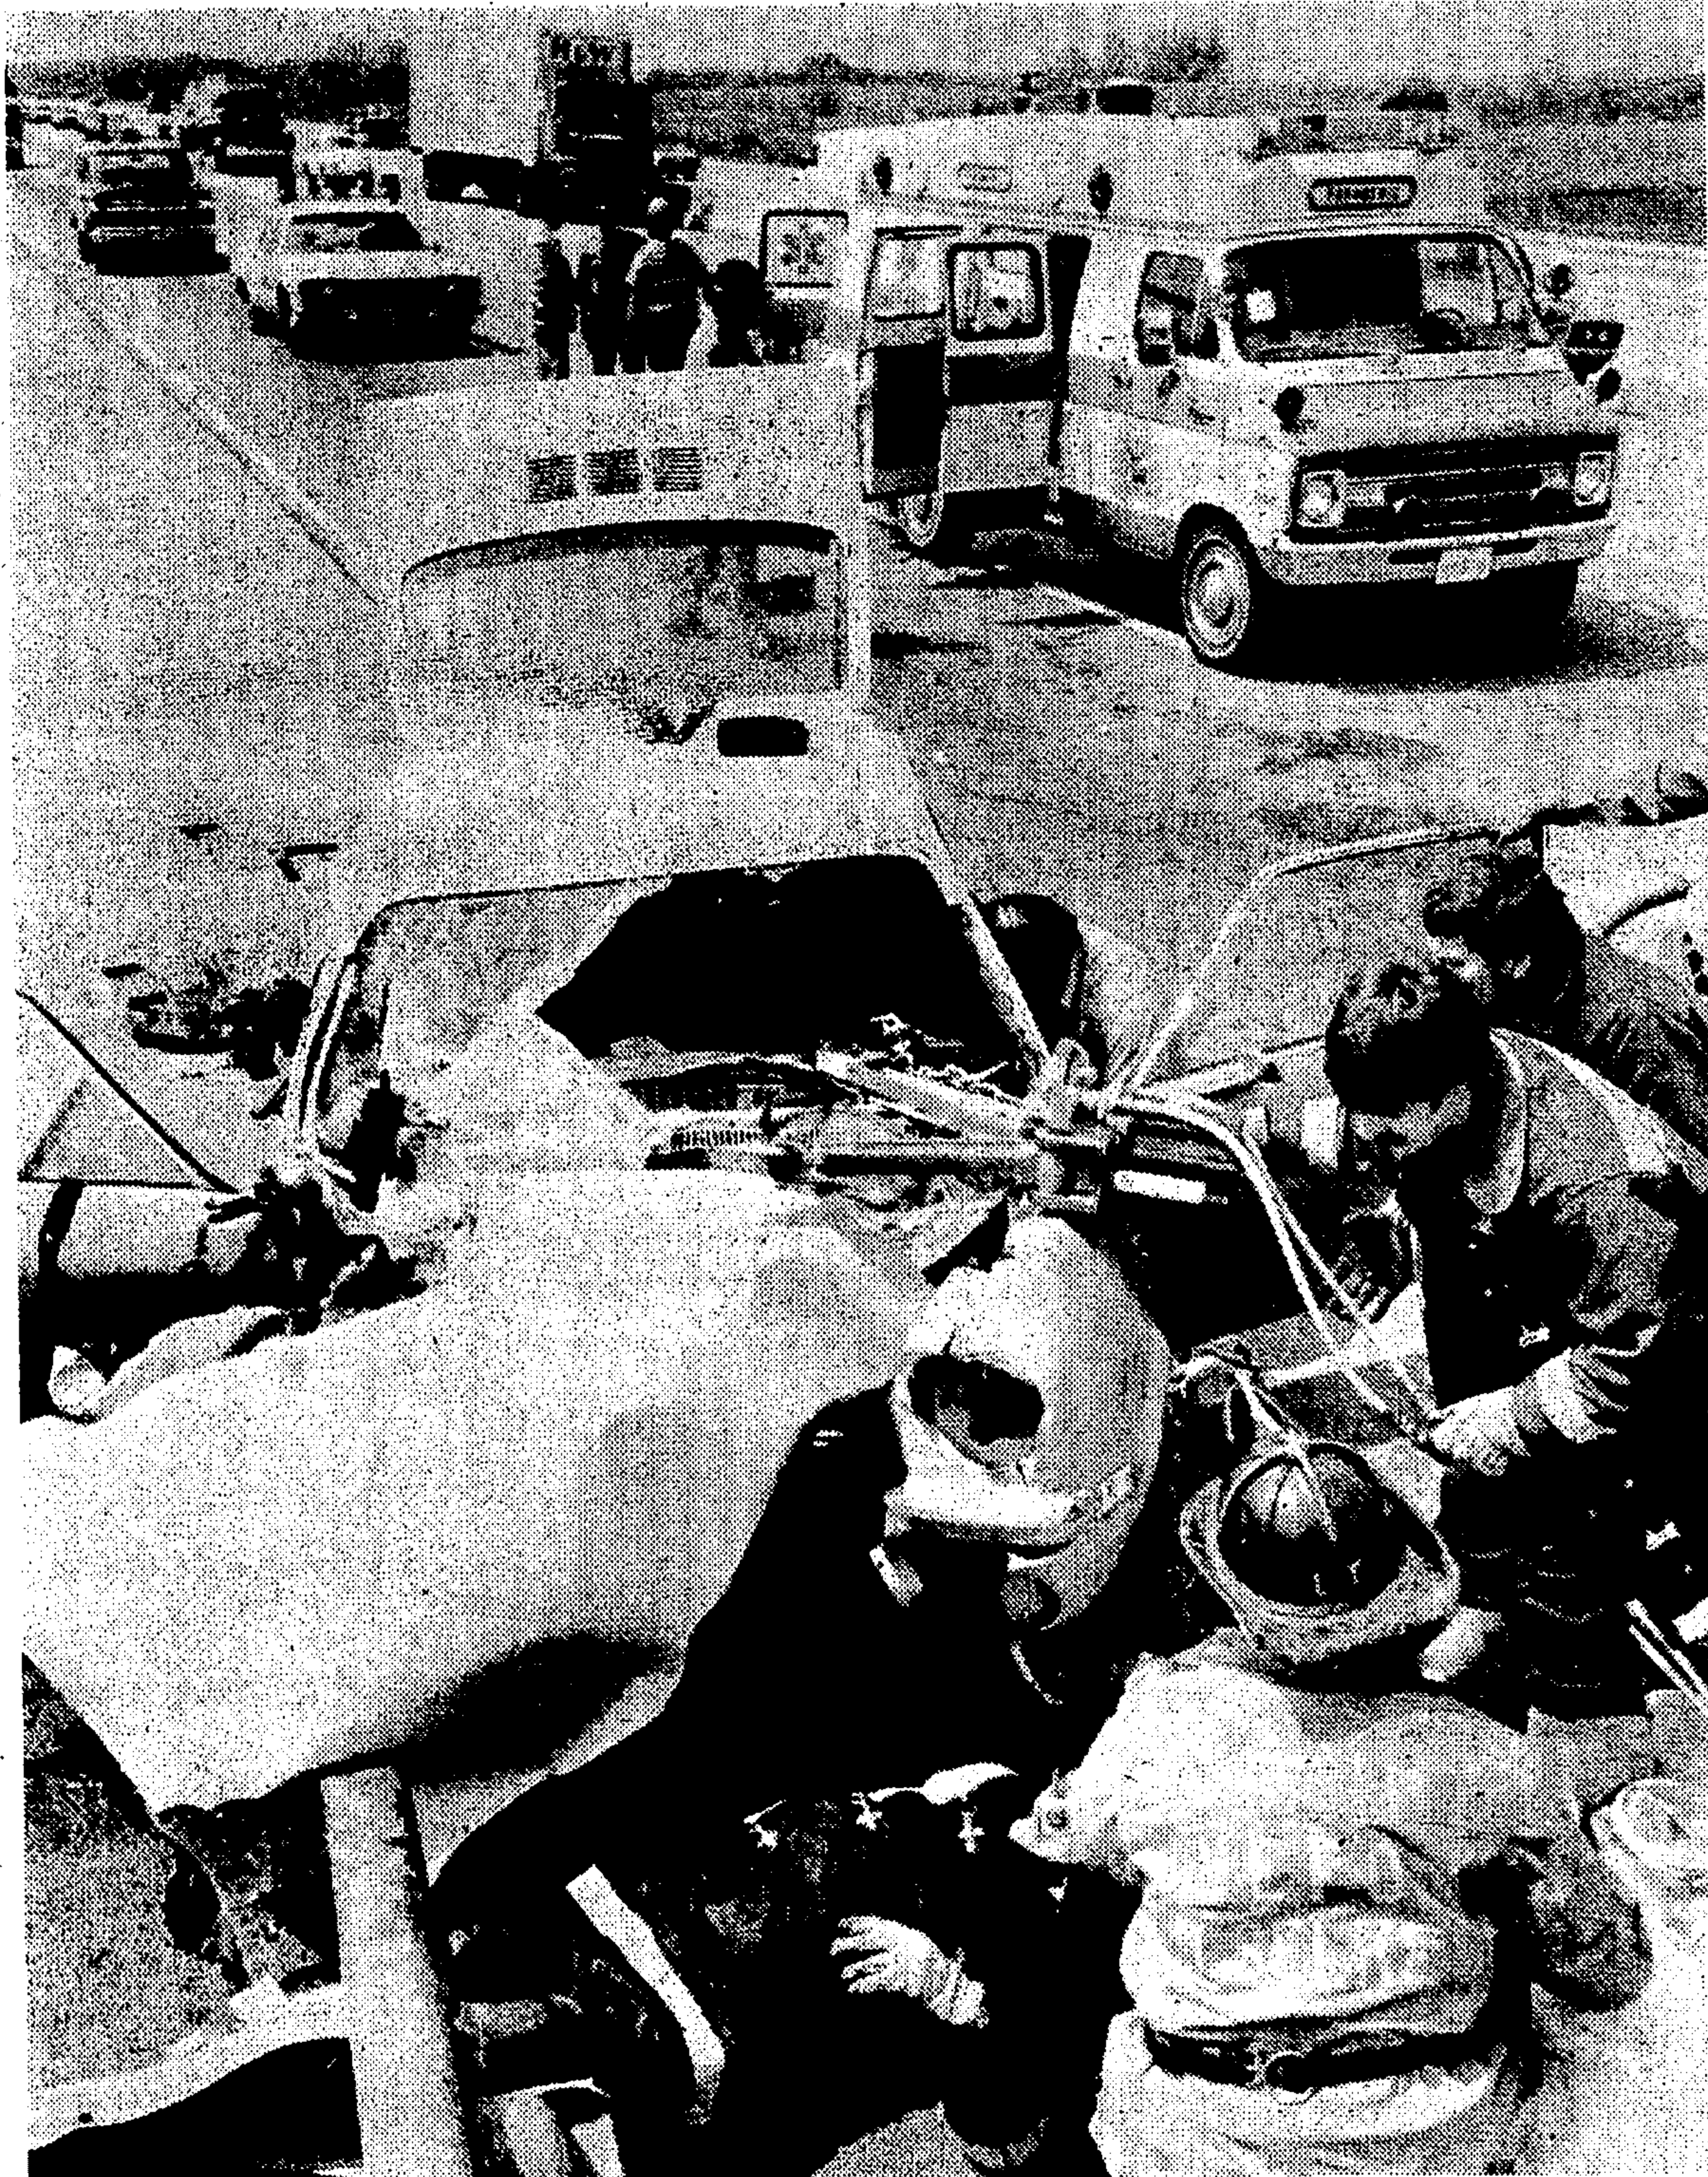

JOHNSTON SAID Carter's gasoline tax would have a small impact on consumers.

"In the short run, if you increase the gas tax 10 per cent, there will be only a 1 per cent reduction in consumption," he said.

The gas tax proposal could hurt low-income consumers who cannot use mass transportation to get to work, Johnston said.

Johnston called for incentives to de-

Blame gets passed for defeats

Ed Rhea blamed it on his own convictions. Mike Minton blamed it on Rhea.

Whatever the reason, the two Mount Prospect trustees bowed to defeat in Tuesday's mayoral election to Carolyn H. Krause, a fresh face in village politics.

"I think the biggest single reason (for his unsuccessful mayoral bid) was that I refused to say I would cut village spending," Rhea said. "I would like to see the budget in four years."

THROUGHOUT HIS campaign, Rhea pledged to reduce spending and reduce taxes only if Mount Prospect residents are willing to live without police, fire and other village services. Mrs. Krause, however, promised to "hold the line" on spending by conducting a thorough budget review to determine which village expenses may be eliminated.

"I was very surprised," Rhea said of the 2-1 margin by which Mrs. Krause swept the mayoral race. "Our canvass didn't show that. She and I were running very close and we didn't know how to treat the undecideds."

Mrs. Krause received 48 per cent of the vote while Minton finished second with 26.7 per cent and Rhea trailed with 24.7 per cent.

"IF WE HAD THE campaign to run all over again, we wouldn't have run it any differently," Minton said. "What hurt me in the election was being the object of Rhea's personal attacks. Even though I did not respond, it put me in the same ring as him in the voters' minds. We tried like heck to avoid that. It was unfortunate."

Rhea, during the campaign, charged Minton with incompetence and soliciting support from "big city" political workers.

Rhea would not comment on his future political plans after his two-year term as trustee expires May 3.

MINTON, HOWEVER, has two years remaining on his term as vil-

Women gaining ground in suburban politics

by JOHN LAMPINEN

She is the first woman mayor in Mount Prospect's 60-year history. Yet, the distinction means little to Carolyn H. Krause, who was elected in a landslide vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Krause said candidates are candidates and issues are issues. Sex shouldn't — and didn't — make much of a difference in her successful election campaign, she said.

The simple truth is that the gender of candidates doesn't seem to matter any more. The growing number of women seeking and winning office in the Northwest suburbs is testimony to that.

Fifteen years ago, women seemed confined to running for clerk. It was unique if a woman ran much less won, any other municipal office.

BUT IF TUESDAY'S results in the local elections are any indication, women are coming into their own in suburban politics.

Mrs. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter are the most visible of the women politicians. They are the only ones in the Northwest suburbs to hold the highest municipal office. Mrs. Hayter, who has become a seasoned veteran, is a pioneer of women in municipal government. She broke the ice in 1973.

This month, 20 women ran for other municipal offices in the 11 Northwest suburbs. Twelve of them won.

• Mrs. Krause became mayor in Mount Prospect Tuesday night when she garnered 48 per cent of the vote to defeat handily two male contenders who split the remainder of the vote.

• Mrs. Hayter, who "became the area's first village president four years ago, won reelection in a landslide victory Tuesday when she racked up 78 per cent of the vote against two opponents.

• Dolores Dahm was the fourth woman to run for a seat on the Wheeling Village Board and the first to win when she was the top vote-getter among three trustees elected Tuesday despite poor ballot position.

• Rolling Meadows got its first woman alderman when Lorraine Godawa was elected in the Third Ward Tuesday.

• Kathryn Graham was the only woman in a field of 12 candidates seeking four trustee positions in the Arlington Heights election April 5. She won despite a campaign that spent less than $50.

MRS. KRAUSE, an attorney who has been on Mount Prospect's zoning board of appeals since 1973 and chairwoman of that board for four years, said voters now are considering qualifications rather than sex.

Nanci Vanderweel, who was elected to a third term on the Elk Grove Village Board, agreed.

"The fact that I was a woman had almost nothing to do with the election," she said.

However, a few of Tuesday's successful candidates viewed their sex as a political advantage.

"The women of the village said, 'Yes, it's about time,' and I think that's where the strong vote came from," Mrs. Dahm said.

MRS. HAYTER said the Northwest

suburbs appear more "sophisticated" than other parts of the country in the way voters view candidates.

However, she said crediting a radical change in voter viewpoints of women as candidates might be oversimplifying.

Mrs. Krause had served a long time on the zoning board in Mount Prospect, Mrs. Hayter said. Mrs. Vanderweel also has served a great deal of time in government.

Mrs. Hayter said she has been involved in politics since 1965. And other winners in Tuesday's election have been active in their communities if not in government itself.

"They're not overnight successes," Mrs. Hayter said. "Some people say it's 'Woman's time' has come," affirmative action and all that stuff. I don't think that's true."

Hotrodding teens force neighborhood tots indoors

by NANCY GOTLER

A handful of teen-age hot-rodders have forced some residents of W. Berkeley Drive in Arlington Heights to keep their children indoors and to fear retaliation if they press charges.

"I hate to say it, but one of our children isn't going to be with us by the end of the summer," one mother of seven predicted.

"I don't know who's going to get it and I hope I don't have to find out," she said. "I don't want to be the one to have to pick up a dead child from the street, carry it to its mother and say, 'Here, bury it.' But it's going to happen."

THE WOMAN and a half dozen of her neighbors in a two-block area along West Berkeley Drive between Mitchell and Ridge avenues refused to allow their names to be used because they fear reprisals from the teenagers.

They say the racing, which includes motorcycles, cars and minibikes, starts by 3 p.m. almost every day and sometimes lasts until midnight.

"A neighbor and I recently pulled two 3-year-olds out of the path of speeding motorcycles," the woman said. "Some of the boys involved live in this neighborhood and I've talked to them and to their parents, but it doesn't do any good."

Paul Buckholz, Arlington Heights police captain, said residents who can positively identify a reckless driver can press charges.

Although many residents said they have called police numerous times to complain, Buckholz said he was not aware of a severe problem in the area.

HOWEVER, after being contacted by The Herald about the situation, Buckholz assigned an officer to monitor the area with a radar speed detection device and said the neighborhood will be watched in the future.

Another mother of two preschool children said she no longer allows them to play in front of the house in the late afternoons or evenings.

"Those kids ride motorcycles even on the sidewalks, and when I see them coming I pull my kids inside," she said. "It's so bad I hardly even let them play out in front any more."

"But there's nothing we can really do about it if we don't know who they are," she said. "When the police come the kids get away before they can be caught."

A third neighbor also feared a child could be hurt or killed.

"The way the kids drive those cars I could see a kid running into the street and getting run over. As the weather gets better the problem will probably get worse."

SHE SAID SHE has clocked speeders going as fast as 60 miles per hour in the 25 mph zone.

Parents are especially concerned because they live one block from Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School, 2800 N. Highland Ave. Many students walk home just as the hot-rodding begins.

Still another woman, whose youngest child is 10, said, "It's dangerous because there are a lot of small children in the neighborhood. If something isn't done about it there's a good chance one of them will be hurt."

LARRY ST. PIERRE, Arlington Heights policeman, Drive, in response to area residents who complain monitors the speed of motorists on W. Berkeley about speeding teen-agers.

Congratulations greet Krause after victory

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

Carolyn Krause's Mount Prospect law office Wednesday was strewn with flowers, telegrams and phone messages congratulating her on her election as mayor.

After startling residents with the surprising victory over her opponents by nearly a 2-1 margin, Mount Prospect mayor-elect Krause told how she successfully engineered the winning campaign.

Mrs. Krause, 38, admitted she was late in launching her mayoral bid compared to efforts of her opponents, Trustees Michael H. Minton and Edward B. Rhea Jr.

SHE ALSO WAS somewhat of a darkhorse candidate. Minton and Rhea have been trustees since their election in 1975 to the village board. Mrs. Krause, however, has served in the more obscure position as chairwoman of the zoning board of appeals since 1973.

"We didn't get started until late January," Mrs. Krause said. "But I had a fine group of people dedicated to the community. It began with the coffees, 37 of them, then we got out into the different areas of town and talked to the voters. We found ourselves growing and growing with enthusiastic people who wanted to get involved."

Her villagewide support was evident

Carolyn Krause

Tuesday when she captured 4,527 votes, or 47 per cent, to win big in the mayoral election.

Mrs. Krause said voters were attracted to the polls in part because of the political retirement this year of Mayor Robert D. Teichert after eight years in office.

"They knew a change was going to occur," she said. "And they wanted to take part in that change. I think that's what brought them out."

ABOUT 37 PER CENT of Mount Prospect's 27,000 registered voters went to the polls.

When she is sworn-in May 3, Mrs. Krause will become Mount Prospect's first woman mayor in the village's 60-year history. She said being a woman will not cramp her style of conducting public business.

"I have worked in courts of law for 11 years and have come in contact with a tremendous number of men," she said. "And I have managed to conduct meetings of the zoning board which is comprised of all men. I don't anticipate any problems with the village board or the administration."

"The voters of this community, whether they are men or women, are interested in what a candidate's qualifications and viewpoints are, not whether they are male or female."

MRS. KRAUSE SAID she made no particular effort to solicit votes from women's clubs and organizations during her campaign.

"I made an effort to reach all of the voters. Men will absolutely support a woman because they are just as interested (as women) in what they (the candidates) stand for."

Her calendar already is beginning to fill with dates, both before and after her swearing-in, when she will attend meetings and conferences on behalf of Mount Prospect.

And what will be Mayor Krause's first order of business?

"Well what I want to do is go ahead on implementing the issues in my platform," she said. "The hearings (on the acquisition of Citizens Utilities Co. water and sewer lines) and the through budget review are the major items to get going on immediately. I want to move right along."

Food co-op to open in Park Ridge

The Good People's Food Cooperative, homeless since Nov. 1 when it lost its lease at Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, because of the school's renovation project, will open its door again April 29 in Park Ridge.

Good People's new location will be in the Good Shepherd Community Church, 2100 Home Ave., Park Ridge. The co-op still will be operated by its nearly 100 member families, but will be sponsored by the church.

"We're thrilled," co-op coordinator Carolyn Roberts said. "I think everyone has missed the good quality food we were able to get."

THE FOOD distribution center tried relocating in Parkview School, Mount Prospect. However, the village board earlier this year refused to grant a zoning variance to allow the co-op to operate in a residential neighborhood. Trustees said a harmful precedent could have been set if the co-op was permitted to relocate in a vacant classroom in the school.

Co-op membership fees are $15 per family.

"Ten dollars is refunded when you give notice and quit," Mrs. Roberts said. "Five dollars goes for maintenance of the equipment."

Co-op members work at the center, taking and filling orders and distributing the food one day a week. Food cooperatives purchase products directly from their distributors. The Good People's Food Cooperative, established in 1974, was operated from Maryville for 2½ years.

Co-op membership is open to the public. Current members of Good People's will present a program on food cooperatives at 1:30 p.m. April 28 in the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave.

lage trustee. Rhea and Minton were elected to the village board in 1975.

"I doubt there will be an election in Mount Prospect that I will not be involved in (as a candidate)," Minton said. "I do not have any intention of dropping out of serving the village."

Minton will have a chance to seek reelection as a trustee in 1979. The next mayoral race is in 1981.

Plant conservatory Monday deadline on trip to arboretum

open house Sunday

An open house at the Mount Prospect Park District Friendship Park Conservatory will be from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The conservatory is located at 395 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

Park District horticulturalist Doug Whalen, will conduct tours of the facility, which has been in operation for one year, and give demonstrations on repotting, taking cuttings and other planting techniques.

Plants will be given to residents attending the open house and a dried floral arrangement will be awarded as a door prize.

All outdoor foliage, bedding and house plants and flower gardens for the Mount Prospect Park District are grown at the conservatory. In addition, classes on house plant culture, vegetable gardening and floral design are offered at the facility.

Monday is the deadline to register for the May 18 trip to the Morton Arboretum near Lisle sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District.

The tour will be conducted by park district horticulturalist Doug Whalen. Buses will leave the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St., at 9 a.m. and return at 3 p.m.

The $8 fee includes transportation, lunch and a bus tour of the arboretum. A minimum of 35 persons must register for the trip in order to reserve the tour date.

For registration information, call the park district office, 255-5380.

Rosen reelected Dist. 26 president

Leora Rosen has been reelected president of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education.

Mrs. Rosen, who has served on the board since 1972, has been board president since September 1975. Patrick Fauceglia, a board member since December, was elected board secretary.

"I'm pleased to have the opportunity to continue in that capacity," Mrs. Rosen said. "I hope I can fulfill the leadership requirements that are part of the position."

Mrs. Rosen also appointed the following board committees:

- Budget and finance: chairman is Richard Foster; William Haase and Fauceglia are members.

- Policy: members are Joy Daskal and Fauceglia.

Foster also will serve as the district's representative to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization, which serves special education children from 10 area school districts including Dist. 26.

Mrs. Rosen also appointed residents and board members to serve on a committee to study the possibility of consolidation with other school districts, particularly Mount Prospect Dist. 57. Supt. John Fridlund has recommended consolidation as a way to maintain a balanced budget.

Citizen committee members are Mount Prospect residents Walter Cuneo, Michael Freeman and Idyl Nipper. Freeman was defeated April 9 in his bid for a board seat.

Other members will be Fridlund and board members Richard Carter and Sylvia Lurie. Mrs. Lurie will chair the committee. Mrs. Rosen said a representative from the Dist. 26 teachers' union also will serve on the panel.

Dist. 57, a district of comparable size and finances to the south of Dist. 26, formed a consolidation committee last fall. But Board of Education Pres. David Kluxdal said Dist. 57 has not begun discussion of a merger.

"We haven't given it much thought, but we're interested in doing the best we can for all the youngsters in Mount Prospect," Kluxdal said. "If that can be done with Dist. 26, I don't think as a board we'd throw it out."

Streetlight off; woman still burns

by DEBBE JONAK

The streetlight at Rusty Drive and Estes Street was turned off quietly last week, after burning 24 hours a day for four months.

Another, at River and Riverview roads, was turned off the week before. They now burn only at night, as they should — but correcting the problem took numerous calls to Des Plaines City Hall from citizen watchdog Kathy Jourdan, 2546 Rusty Dr.

HOWEVER, she could have made thousands of calls, and the lights would not have been fixed any sooner, according to Commonwealth Edison representative Gordon Baer.

Edison is responsible for maintenance of Des Plaines streetlights. City public works officials said they reported the problem to Baer in January and again in February.

Baer said the delay in repair was caused by a shortage of the devices needed to fix the streetlights.

"Those lights are operated by a photo-electric cell," he said, explaining the streetlights are turned off and on by that light-sensitive cell.

"SOMETIMES IT can get dirty or it can go bad," Baer said.

In this case, the cells in the streetlights went bad and needed replacement, but Edison was fresh out.

"We had run out and reordered," Baer said. "But it took a long time to get them."

The city will not pay for the electricity burned by the streetlights during the day, he said. Edison charges the city a flat rate, which is not affected by how long the lights are left on.

WHILE THE LIGHTS were on, they each consumed about 500 kilowatt hours in energy. That equals the amount of electricity used by an average household in one month.

"It's not very much at all," Baer said.

However, Mrs. Jourdan remains irate, pointing out she is advised to turn off the much smaller lights in her house during these times of energy shortages. Yet the city and Edison shrug their shoulders at leaving a streetlight burning during the day for four months.

"I wish I could talk to (President) Carter when he talks about his energy program," she said.

Lace elected chief of Dist. 23 board

Melvin A. Lace has been reelected president of the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education for the ninth year in a row.

Lace, who was reelected to his fourth three-year term on the Dist. 23 Board April 9, was reelected board president this week. He has served as board president since April 1969.

A district resident for 18 years, Lace, his wife and their four children live at 3 Garden Ct., Prospect Heights.

Henry Vallely, school board attorney, was reelected board secretary.

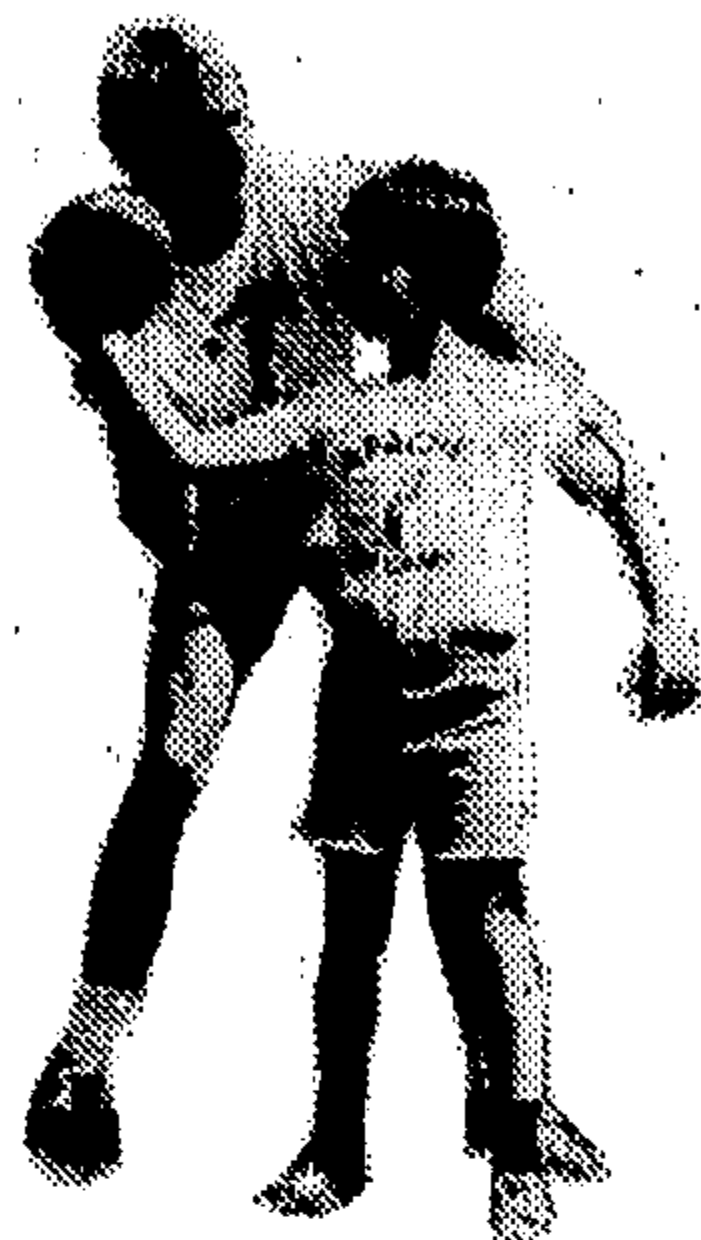

Board members elected in the April 9 election were sworn in this week. These were Lace and incumbent Mary Ann Stitak for three-year terms and newcomer Jane Adelman for a one-year term.

Stamm elected new board president in Dist. 59

Richard Stamm is the new president of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education. Stamm, who was elected to a two-year term on the board April 9, was elected board president Monday by a 5-0 vote.

Voting for Stamm were board members Judith Zanca, Emil Bahnmaier, Barbara Somogyi, Sharon Chavoen and Stamm.

Board members Paul Kucharski and Harold Harvey abstained.

Kucharski was nominated for the board presidency before Stamm by Harvey, but he only got his and Harvey's votes.

STAMM, 1414 S. Redwood, Mount Prospect, served on the Dist. 59 board from 1965-67 and on the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education from 1969-73.

Mrs. Chavoen, who was elected to a one-year board term April 9, was elected board secretary.

The board authorized she be paid $150 for assuming the secretary's duties. Dist. 56 Board secretaries had been paid an annual $150 salary until two years ago when the secretary's salary was abolished.

Committee chairman appointments made were Harvey as chairman of the district's finance committee and Kucharski as chairman of the policy committee.

Harvey, Kucharski and Mrs. Chavoen volunteered to serve on the board's negotiating committee.

Mrs. Somogyi retained her position as the board's representative to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Assn.

Mrs. Zanca and Bahnmaier did not volunteer for committees, but they automatically will serve on the finance committee, which is a committee-of-the-whole.

'Save the Elm Trees' seminars set

The Mount Prospect Public Works Dept. will conduct four "Save the Elm Trees" seminars for residents interested in salvaging the increasing number of trees in the village victimized by Dutch Elm disease.

Seminars are scheduled for 10 a.m. April 23 at Busse Avenue and School Street and See Gwon Avenue and Council Trail; and at 7:30 p.m. April 25 in the public works garage, 11 S. Pine St.

Public works employees are prepared to train residents to inoculate their elm trees with a recently marketed chemical that treats the disease and helps prevent its spreading.

Public Works Director David L. Creamer said the village is trimming dead wood and inoculating only a select group of diseased trees because of time and money limitations. "We have additional chemical applicator kits which we will loan to residents free of charge," he said. "The only charge would be for the cost of the chemicals."

Residents interested in the tree-saving program would pay approximately $10 for each tree they treat. Creamer said time spent inoculating the sick elms varies according to their size and how well they accept the chemical.

The chemical is a preventive and will not cure a tree already infected more than 5 per cent. It must be reapplied each year to be effective. For further information call Creamer at 382-6000 Ext. 155.
